No Fords Expected
Until Early October

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co. and United Auto Workers bargainers resume formal negotiations Monday aimed at ending the biggest industrial strike in six years. Observers predicted it would be at least early October before automobiles begin rolling off assembly lines again.

Top-level meetings aimed at setting up formal negotiating sessions continued through the weekend, a strong sign that both sides are seeking an early end to the strike by 170,000 workers at the No. 2 auto company.

Its assembly lines were silenced at 11:59 p.m. last Tuesday.

White Vigilantes Kill 'Troublemaker'

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (UPI) — White vigilantes shot and killed a colored youth caught trying to steal a bottle of milk Saturday after police warned white civilians against forming roving bands to hunt down "troublemakers."

Maj. Gen. Dawid Kriel, the officer commanding riot control operations in South Africa, said one colored teen-ager, Antonie Plaatjes, was killed and another wounded when they were caught allegedly stealing milk in the country town of Oudtshoorn, about 200 miles east of Cape Town.

Kriel said they were shot by a white civilian protecting a nearby business.

Cape Town police Friday expressed "increasing concern" at groups of gun-carrying white vigilantes who were patrolling the streets of white suburbs, "looking for troublemakers." But one white said he had formed a vigilante group "with the blessings of police."

Kissinger Signals
New Peace Hope

PRETORIA, South Africa (UPI) — Secretary of State Henry Kissinger announced Saturday he will meet with Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith, signaling a breakthrough in his shuttle diplomacy to bring peace to southern Africa.

Kissinger's precondition for a meeting was that Smith would have to be ready to make major concessions to African demands for transition to black majority rule in two years.

Diplomatic sources said Kissinger's announcement signaled the imminent end of white minority rule in Rhodesia and the probable resignation of Smith, who has been the symbol of the hard-line white opposition against black rule.

3 Arab Hijackers
Sentenced to Life

CAIRO (UPI) — Three Arab gunmen who hijacked an Egyptian airliner on a domestic flight last month were sentenced Saturday to life imprisonment at hard labor.

But the three-man military court which handed down the judgment in effect exculpated Libya whom Egypt had accused of masterminding the hijacking.

In Egypt's first hijack trial, the court acquitted three other defendants charged with complicity although they were not aboard the Boeing 737 when it was commandeered Aug. 23 en route from Cairo to the southern winter resort and antiquity center of Luxor.

The prosecution had demanded the death penalty for all six defendants.

Lebanese on Alert
For Inauguration

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The Christian Phalangist party put its forces on alert Saturday to guard against possible attempts by militant Christian factions to disrupt the inauguration of President-elect Elias Sarkis Sept. 23.

A volley of mortars fired from the eastern Christian sector of Beirut fell on the uptown Western quarter as a nearby rally sponsored by leftist parties got underway. But reports broadcast by a rightist radio station of a sharp escalation in combat across the capital were exaggerated, witnesses said.

A radio station controlled by followers of militant Christian President Suleiman Franjeh, said fierce fighting erupted throughout the capital with rocket and tank battles in the downtown and southern suburbs.

HONEST

ON A $10 BILL?

This "$10 bill" was used for a purchase Saturday at Big Scot Department Store. It's actually a $1 bill with the ends of a $10 bill taped on. Town of Ulster police officer James Freer explained the person who passes the bogus bill makes his illicit profit by taking the center part of the original $10 bill to a bank for a new bill. Since he still has more than half the original $10, the bank will give him a trade-in. Freer said his department received a similar bogus $10 from Wallace's several weeks ago. "I can't understand why anybody would take one of these things," he commented Saturday.

NBC, CBS Threaten Not to Broadcast

Networks Balk At Debates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Officials of the three major commercial networks said Saturday they did not know whether they would televise next week's presidential debate because of restrictions imposed by the League of Women Voters.

However, after a meeting at which the broadcast networks protested the restrictions, Public Broadcasting System President Larry Grossman said his network would carry the debates.

NBC and ABC officials said they had not decided whether to carry the debates on a "pool" basis because of a restriction against turning cameras on the audience.

Officials for the National League of Women, which is sponsoring the debate, said they would meet with representatives of President Ford and Jimmy Carter to advise them of the networks' position.

League representatives and network officials met in a closed session for 2½ hours Saturday.

CBS News President Richard Salant

stormed out of the meeting after, he said, being told to "shut up" by Charles Walker, one of three persons handling debate arrangements for the league.

Like officials of NBC and ABC, Salant said he did not know whether CBS would participate in the debates, the first of which is scheduled for next Thursday in Philadelphia. The second and third debates have been set for Oct. 6 and 23.

Network officials at the meeting included NBC executive vice president Bob Mulholland and ABC vice president Walter J. Pfister Jr., both of whom said they did not yet know whether their networks would boycott the debates.

Salant left the meeting about an hour after it began and told reporters he objected to the screening of panelists who will question the candidates. He said at least one was stricken from the panel by the candidates' representatives.

Walker told reporters later that he "might have used those words" ("shut up") but he apologized and regretted doing so.

Newton Minow, former Federal Communications Commission chairman and another League representative, said he regretted CBS representatives had not remained for the entire meeting.

He said NBC, ABC and PBS had agreed to pool coverage of the debate but there were "strenuous objections" to the restriction against turning cameras on the audience.

He said that restriction was accepted by the League in discussions with the candidates' representatives but he would convey the networks' objections to the candidates.

Minow said "everything possible" should be done so that the first such debates since the John Kennedy and Richard Nixon debates of 1960 would be conducted in "an open and fair forum."

Spokesmen for Ford and Carter said shots of the audience — League officials and reporters — would reveal expressions that could influence television viewers.

Claims Rerouted Sewer Line Devalued Her Land

Mrs. Sabino Sues Ulster For Her $49,350 'Loss'

TOWN OF ULSTER — Lucia Sabino, mother of Town of Ulster Supervisor Carmine Sabino, has brought suit in Ulster County Court against the town demanding $49,350 for a sewer line easement through property she sold to Kingston School District in 1974 for $353,000.

Meanwhile some resident critics are questioning why the original sewer plans were later altered to add an allegedly "unnecessary" sewer line through her property.

A hearing on the amount of the easement to be granted Mrs. Sabino is before a committee of three men appointed by County Judge Raymond J. Mino — Charles Roach, Ward Ingalsbe Jr. and James Thompson. Cross examination of Walter Donnaruma, the town's appraiser is scheduled for Monday. Edward O'Connor is the appraiser for Mrs. Sabino.

In 1972, records show, Supervisor Sabino signed an offer by the Ulster Sewer Improvement to pay his mother $10,000 for the easement.

Later Guido Napolitano, Mrs. Sabino's lawyer, asked the Ulster town board for $27,600 in compensation but the board countered with an offer of $4,700 in April 1974. Sabino absented himself from the meeting and appointed a committee of four board members to decide on a price.

Now Mrs. Sabino claims that the lands in question were worth $7,800 an acre before the sewer line was put in and dropped to to $7,020 an acre — by O'Connor's appraisal — after the sewer was in.

The school district paid Mrs. Sabino $9,412 an acre after the sewer was installed.

Mrs. Sabino specifically seeks $36,655 for the easement through the school district lands and the balance for a parcel on the southeast side of Neighborhood Road, two parcels on Sawmill Road and a parcel on Genesee Avenue.

The school district paid Mrs. Sabino $9,412 an acre after the sewer was in.

Original maps drawn by the sewer project engineers, J. Kenneth Fraser and Associates of Rensselaer in 1965 show a sewer trunk line running along a town road (Sawmill Road) which divides the Sabino property.

But later, after Sabino took office, the map was redrawn by Fraser and an additional sewer line was run through Mrs. Sabino's property at right angles.

Asked why the additional line was added and if it was necessary, Fraser referred the questioner back to the town government.

Records also show that when Mrs. Sabino sold the land to the school district, the July 30, 1974 deed reserved her right to recover from the Town of Ulster any damages because of the 30-foot wide easement.

At the time the school board took the option on the Sabino property at $9,412 an acre, the sewer had already been installed.

Donnaruma places the value of the land at $3,000 an acre before the sewer improvement and $8,000 an acre after its installation, claiming that the project enhanced the value of the land, changing it from agricultural to residential.

Critics of the Sabino sewer line claim the supervisor negotiated a settlement for the Boice property across from IBM in 1971 for $25,000, setting a precedent for substantial sums for sewer easements. Boice in turn sold the land to Beachaven Associates Dec. 26, 1973 for a reported $590,000.

Therefore they reason, sewer lines increase the value of property rather than lessen it as Mrs. Sabino claims.

Testimony has also been taken from Mrs. Sabino's son Michael as well as from Donnaruma and O'Connor.

A decision in the matter is expected within 30 to 45 days after the hearing.

Kingston firemen make a final inspection of the Clinton Avenue house from which a tenant was rescued moments before flames consumed her first-floor apartment.

Neighbor Saves A Woman from Fire

KINGSTON — Kingston firemen credit Natalie Gulisone's next-door neighbor with saving her life yesterday morning when flames erupted from her Clinton Avenue house.

According to a spokesman for the Kingston Fire Department, Howard Fox noticed the smoke pouring from her apartment, entered, and helped her out of the burning building.

"Fox's action undoubtedly saved her from death," stated the spokesman.

Firemen received the alarm at 9:42 a.m. When they reached 192 Clinton Avenue, flames were already leaping from a door on the first floor side of the building.

Smoke poured from the rear of the house, firemen said, but Mrs. Gulisone, 53, had already been helped from her apartment.

Shortly after Fox rescued her, the entire apartment was "engulfed in flame," said firemen. Fire damage to her first floor apartment was extensive and the rest of the two-story frame building sustained heavy smoke damage, said firemen.

The department had the blaze under control — with two 2½ inch pumper streams aimed at the side and rear of the building — within a half hour, they said, and the equipment was able to return to active service by 11:30 a.m.

Mrs. Gulisone was reportedly unharmed.

Con Man Bilks TV Dealers of Large Sums

KINGSTON — An alleged con man who gave his victims receipts and then walked out the front door of a store while they waited for merchandise has been arrested by state police. Lawrence M. Sicca, 22, of New York City, was charged with two counts of grand larceny and held in Ulster County Jail Friday in lieu of $30,000 bail.

Sicca allegedly bilked Hudson Valley TV dealers out of thousands of dollars in cash.

According to police, Sicca would phone television dealers, posing as a liquidation sales manager for a large appliance firm. He would arrange to meet them at the loading dock of Montgomery Ward here in Kingston.

Dressed in a Montgomery Ward uniform, the suspect would accept his victims cash, give a receipt and tell them to wait while he arranged for the sets to be loaded. He would then enter the rear of the store and exit through the front.

Police stressed that Montgomery Ward was in no way implicated in the flim-flam scheme.

The investigation began when a Newburgh man was fleeced of $8,500 Aug. 31.

The arrest of Sicca, resulting from a joint investigation by the Loudonville State Police, the Kingston State Police and the Ulster County District Attorney's Office, came about when a Troy television dealer was contacted by Sicca. The dealer was skeptical of the plan and alerted state police who set up a surveillance team with Investigator Frank Connelly of Loudonville posing as the Troy dealer.

Sicca reportedly accepted a cash payment of $12,000 from Connelly and instructed the man to wait and the sets would be loaded on the dock. Police arrested Sicca as he was about to enter the rear of the store. He was later identified by the Newburgh man who was involved in the Aug. 31 deal.

Arraigned before town of Kingston Justice Richard Alberstadt, Sicca was ordered held in the Ulster County Jail in lieu of $30,000 bail. A court appearance has been scheduled for Tuesday.

Double Shifts, Austerity Bring Grumbling

Infirmiry Overworked, Understaffed, It Says

KINGSTON — Employees at the county infirmiry are leaving faster than the social services department can replace them — and the remaining staff is overworked, grumbling and on the verge of staging a public protest against their working conditions.

The president of the infirmiry unit of the Civil Service Employees Association, says that the problem stems from the county legislature's austerity-minded employe replacement resolution passed last spring.

Under that ruling, department heads must present all requests for replacements to their legislative committees who in turn present their recommendations to the entire legislature for final approval.

In many cases there can be a lag of as much as four weeks between the time a job is vacated and the legislature approves hiring a replacement.

"We've been continually short of staff in nursing and the other departments," commented Ms. Swartzmiller, and LPN at the facility. "We're getting some replacements, but it takes four to six weeks training before they're any good to us."

Nurses at the infirmiry have been continually asked to work double shifts to compensate for the lack of personnel. This can mean 16 hours of duty at a time, in order to insure adequate patient care.

The CSEA unit is discussing the possibility of setting up an informational picket line either at the infirmiry or at the county office building in order to air their grievances, but no definite action has been outlined yet.

Social Service Commissioner Bernhardt Kramer says he is aware of the situation but there's nothing he can do about it.

"The problem occurs between the time a position is vacated and the time I can fill it again. In order to cover those jobs some people have to work overtime," Kramer said.

"The legislature has been filling the positions as we request them, but the time lag will continue as long as the resolution is on the books."

Kramer had said earlier that many of the resigning staff were women who were either leaving the area or taking maternity leaves of absence.

He couldn't estimate the number of personnel changes which had occurred at the facility since the new policy went into effect.

Users Want PSC to Force Phone Firm To Give Data

KINGSTON — Advocates of expanded toll-free telephone service in northern Ulster county have asked the Public Service Commission to order N.Y. Telephone to provide information on the subject requested at a hearing six weeks ago.

Irate Consumers of Ulster County, the State Consumer Protection Board, the office of Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., and petitioners from six towns in the county have joined forces in their appeal to the PSC to order the telephone company to provide this requested data, which includes the condition of the company's physical plant, the cost of expanding service as requested, customer use data and rate data.

The request to PSC examiner Harold Colbeth, who is presiding over the hearings, says that "during this time and at the Aug. 26 hearing, the telephone company has failed to answer a single question. They have failed to explain why expanded area service has not been extended to northern Ulster county.

Hinchey said "The telephone company obviously has the needed information and could be speeding up the hearing process. The longer the delay, the more convinced I am that the telephone company has never intended to follow PSC guidelines."

"If they do not comply with this request I ask that PSC subpoena the record and make them available to the interested parties in the case."

The current move to expand service includes customers from the towns of Olive, Shandaken, Woodstock, Hurley, Marletown and Saugerties.

Hotrodders from every New England state gathered at the Prudential parking lot in Kingston yesterday afternoon for a rally sponsored by the Northeastern Hot Rod Association. Among the 350 cars that showed up for the event

Breakthrough Seen In Treating Lung Cancer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Medical researchers at the University of Chicago believe they have made a "dramatic" breakthrough in treating doomed lung cancer victims, it was revealed Saturday.

The discovery already has prolonged by an average of about six months the lives of a test group of persons with terminal lung cancer, said Dr. Harvey Golomb, a medical oncologist (cancer chemotherapist).

"For probably the first time we have developed effective, fairly non-toxic chemotherapy treatment for lung cancer victims," Golomb said.

Golomb said the researchers discovered the treatment by trying a combination of drugs normally used on patients with advanced stages of the disease on persons with earlier stages of cancer.

"As we find effective treatment for the advanced disease, then we can apply it to the earlier disease with the effect of eradicating it," he said. "These are slow steps that are being made. We're probably talking 15 to 20 years...It's taken almost 15 years to get Hodgkins Disease under control."

However, Golomb said the results so far had been "dramatic."

First reports of the discovery aimed at the killer of almost one-third of all male cancer victims appeared in a copyrighted story in the Chicago Daily News.

Golomb told UPI that of 40 patients who were treated in the early stages of lung cancer, 75 per cent "are surviving near to a year." Fifty per cent of patients with more severe lung cancer responded to the treatment and survived an average of 12.5 months, he said.

In the past, the average survival rate for persons diagnosed to have lung cancer in its early stages has been four to six months. Persons with more extensive levels of the disease normally survive two months to a maximum of four months, Golomb said.

The research first focused on the worst kind of lung cancer — the inoperable form which spreads throughout the body. Those lung cancer patients were treated with a method called "CAMP," named for the first initial of four different drugs administered to the patient in a combination.

When a successful combination was found, similar treatments were given to patients at earlier stages of cancer "with reduced toxic side effects," Golomb said.

The cancer was detected at earlier stages with use of the "Gallium Tumor Scan," a device developed at the University of Chicago in the late 1960s. The highly sensitive nuclear tool enabled doctors to determine whether cancer had spread beyond the lung.

Besides Golomb, the research team includes co-director Dr. Tom R. DeMeester, a chest surgeon; Dr. Melvin Griem, a radiotherapist; Dr. Jacob D. Bitran, a tumor scientist, and Dr. Richard K. Kessler, a tumor scientist at Michael Reese Hospital, where some patients have received the newly developed treatment.

Viking II Is Scooping

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The Viking 2 soil-digging scoop is working but scientists won't know until today whether any Martian soil was dropped into the experimental life-seeking hopper.

Officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Saturday a faulty position switch may have caused the scoop head to stop operating last Sunday during the first attempt to deliver pebbles into the miniature laboratory.

"Mission control reports that Viking 2 followed its instructions perfectly Friday to turn its scoop right side up, open its door and dump pebbles into the hopper of the craft's inorganic chemistry experiment," a spokesman said. "But," he added, "scientists aren't sure there were any pebbles in the scoop."

Meanwhile, JPL scientists decided to delay until Sept. 29 their next soil sampling mission to make sure they have found the most likely spot for inorganic material. The test had been scheduled for Sunday.

School Bus Accident Injures Girl, 11

TOWN OF ULSTER—A school bus accident Friday at what town police termed "a narrow roadway with obstruction of view" resulted in minor injuries to an 11-year-old girl. "It was really nobody's fault," explained the police officer. "The bus was just too wide for the road."

Injured was Elizabeth Legg, daughter of the driver of the oncoming car, Daniel Legg of Saugerties. She received treatment at Benedictine Hospital.

The school bus, owned by School Transit Lines, Inc., contained 17 children and was driven by Ernest Stevens of Lake Katrine.

 Car Stolen

Town of Ulster police also arrested a 15-year-old Kingston juvenile for possession of a stolen car, a 1976 Toyota that had been reported taken April 21 in Kingston from a Saugerties resident. The youth was turned over to juvenile authorities.

A High Falls man was seriously injured yesterday when the truck he was driving hit a tree at the intersection of Joys Lane and Lucas Avenue in Hurley. State police said that Charles J. Hafner, 20, of 81 Meadow court, was pinned in the wreckage for ten minutes before trooper Tony Kolakowski arrived at the scene. Hafner was taken to the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital, where his condition was described as poor.

Double Shifts, Austerity Bring Grumbling

Infirmary Overworked, Understaffed, It Says

KINGSTON — Employees at the county infirmary are leaving faster than the social services department can replace them — and the remaining staff is overworked, grumbling and on the verge of staging a public protest against their working conditions.

The president of the infirmary unit of the Civil Service Employees Association, says that the problem stems from the county legislature's austerity-minded employee replacement resolution passed last spring.

Under that ruling, department heads must present all requests for replacements to their legislative committees who in turn present their recommendations to the entire legislature for final approval. In many cases there can be a lag of as much as four weeks between the time a job is vacated and the legislature approves hiring a replacement.

"We've been continually short of staff in nursing and the other departments," commented Ms. Swartzmiller, and LPN at the facility. "We're getting some replacements, but it takes four to six weeks training before they're any good to us."

Nurses at the infirmary have been continually asked to work double shifts to compensate for the lack of personnel. This can mean 16 hours of duty at a time, in order to insure adequate patient care.

The CSEA unit is discussing the possibility of setting up an informational picket line either at the infirmary or at the county office building in order to air their grievances, but no definite action has been outlined yet.

Social Service Commissioner Bernhardt Kramer says he is aware of the situation but there's nothing he can do about it.

"The problem occurs between the time a position is vacated and the time I can fill it again. In order to cover those jobs some people have to work overtime," Kramer said.

"The legislature has been filling the positions as we request them, but the time lag will continue as long as the resolution is on the books."

Kramer had said earlier that many of the resigning staff were women who were either leaving the area or taking maternity leaves of absence.

He couldn't estimate the number of personnel changes which had occurred at the facility since the new policy went into effect.

Users Want PSC to Force Phone Firm To Give Data

KINGSTON — Advocates of expanded toll-free telephone service in northern Ulster county have asked the Public Service Commission to order N.Y. Telephone to provide information on the subject requested at a hearing six weeks ago.

Irate Consumers of Ulster County, the State Consumer Protection Board, the office of Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st Dist., and petitioners from six towns in the county have joined forces in their appeal to the PSC to order the telephone company to provide the requested data, which includes the condition of the company's physical plant, the cost of expanding service as requested, customer use data and rate data.

The request to PSC examiner Harold Colbeth, who is presiding over the hearings, says that "during this time and at the Aug. 26 hearing, the telephone company has failed to answer a single question. They have failed to explain why expanded area service has not been extended to northern Ulster county.

Hinchey said "The telephone company obviously has the needed information and could be speeding up the hearing process. The longer the delay, the more convinced I am that the telephone company has never intended to follow PSC guidelines."

"If they do not comply with this request I ask that PSC subpoena the record and make them available to the interested parties in the case."

The current move to expand service includes customers from the towns of Olive, Shandaken, Woodstock, Hurley, Marlinton and Saugerties.

Hotrodders from every New England state gathered at the Prudential parking lot in Kingston yesterday afternoon for a rally sponsored by the Northeastern Hot Rod Association. Among the 350 cars that showed up for the event

Breakthrough Seen In Treating Lung Cancer

CHICAGO (UPI) — Medical researchers at the University of Chicago believe they have made a "dramatic" breakthrough in treating doomed lung cancer victims, it was revealed Saturday.

The discovery already has prolonged by an average of about six months the lives of a test group of persons with terminal lung cancer, said Dr. Harvey Golomb, a medical oncologist (cancer chemotherapist).

"For probably the first time we have developed effective, fairly non-toxic chemotherapy treatment for lung cancer victims," Golomb said.

Golomb said the researchers discovered the treatment by trying a combination of drugs normally used on patients with advanced stages of the disease on persons with earlier stages of cancer.

"As we find effective treatment for the advanced disease, then we can apply it to the earlier disease with the effect of eradicating it," he said. "These are slow steps that are being made. We're probably talking 15 to 20 years...It's taken almost 15 years to get Hodgkins Disease under control."

However, Golomb said the results so far had been "dramatic."

First reports of the discovery aimed at the killer of almost one-third of all male cancer victims appeared in a copyrighted story in the Chicago Daily News.

Golomb told UPI that of 40 patients who were treated in the early stages of lung cancer, 75 per cent "are surviving near to a year." Fifty per cent of patients with more severe lung cancer responded to the treatment and survived an average of 12.5 months, he said.

In the past, the average survival rate for persons diagnosed to have lung cancer in its early stages has been four to six months. Persons with more extensive levels of the disease normally survive two months to a maximum of four months, Golomb said.

The research first focused on the worst kind of lung cancer — the inoperable form which spreads throughout the body. Those lung cancer patients were treated with a method called "CAMP," named for the first initial of four different drugs administered to the patient in a combination.

When a successful combination was found, similar treatments were given to patients at earlier stages of cancer "with reduced toxic side effects," Golomb said.

The cancer was detected at earlier stages with use of the "Gallium Tumor Scan," a device developed at the University of Chicago in the late 1960s. The highly sensitive nuclear tool enabled doctors to determine whether cancer had spread beyond the lung.

Besides Golomb, the research team includes co-director Dr. Tom R. DeMeester, a chest surgeon; Dr. Melvin Griem, a radiotherapist; Dr. Jacob D. Bitran, a tumor scientist, and Dr. Richard K. Kessler, a tumor scientist at Michael Reese Hospital, where some patients have received the newly developed treatment.

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI) — The Viking 2 soil-digging scoop is working but scientists won't know until today whether any Martian soil was dropped into the experimental life-seeking hopper.

Officials at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory said Saturday a faulty position switch may have caused the scoop head to stop operating last Sunday during the first attempt to deliver pebbles into the miniature laboratory.

"Mission control reports that Viking 2 followed its instructions perfectly Friday to turn its scoop right side up, open its door and dump pebbles into the hopper of the craft's inorganic chemistry experiment," a spokesman said. "But," he added, "scientists aren't sure there were any pebbles in the scoop."

Meanwhile, JPL scientists decided to delay until Sept. 29 their next soil sampling mission to make sure they they have found the most likely spot for inorganic material. The test had been scheduled for Sunday.

School Bus Accident Injures Girl, 11

TOWN OF ULSTER—A school bus accident Friday at what town police termed "a narrow roadway with obstruction of view" resulted in minor injuries to an 11-year-old girl.

"It was really nobody's fault," explained the police officer. "The bus was just too wide for the road."

Injured was Elizabeth Legg, daughter of the driver of the oncoming car, Daniel Legg of Saugerties. She received treatment at Benedictine Hospital.

The school bus, owned by School Transit Lines, Inc., contained 17 children and was driven by Ernest Stevens of Lake Katrine.

Car Stolen

Town of Ulster police also arrested a 15-year-old Kingston juvenile for possession of a stolen car, a 1976 Toyota that had been reported taken April 21 in Kingston from a Saugerties resident. The youth was turned over to juvenile authorities.

A High Falls man was seriously injured yesterday when the truck he was driving hit a tree at the intersection of Joys Lane and Lucas Avenue in Hurley. State police said that Charles J. Hafner, 20, of 81 Meadow court, was pinned in the wreckage for ten minutes before trooper Tony Kolakoski arrived at the scene. Hafner was taken to the intensive care unit at Benedictine Hospital, where his condition was described as poor.

Moon Climaxes U.S. 'Crusade'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, the self-styled Korean prophet whose Unification Church claims thousands of followers in this country, climaxed his U.S. "crusade" Saturday with a well promoted "God Bless America" rally on the Washington Monument grounds.

Sponsors predicted 100,000 persons would turn out for the six-hour rally.

Many of the 56-year-old evangelist's followers, known as "Moonies," arrived in Washington weeks ahead of the rally — selling carnations on sidewalks and in restaurants to raise funds for the church.

Some opponents of the cult also visited Washington to protest the rally. They charged that youthful members were "brainwashed" into following Moon.

About 100 persons held a prayer vigil Friday night at the Lincoln Memorial to protest Moon and various "cult religions."

"After this rally, we have no other plan for the continuation of his public ministry," Neil A. Salonen, president of the Unification Church of America, said of Moon's appearance Saturday night.

He said Moon "will make plans to take this crusade to other parts of the world," and wants to return to Korea eventually.

The rally featured singers, dancers, musicians and a fireworks display promoted as "the world's greatest international fireworks" to draw people to hear Moon speak in Korean with the aid of an interpreter.

Brass bands and a spate of television, radio and full-page advertisements had been used to promote the rally.

They tended to emphasize entertainment and fireworks. The religious and political controversy surrounding Moon and the church were downplayed.

They said posters plastered all over Washington would be scraped off walls after the rally to "help keep America beautiful."

Free bus transportation was offered for people attending the rally.

Heckling and smoke bombs interrupted a June rally in New York's Yankee Stadium that drew 35,000 persons.

Mao Is Given Final Tribute

HONG KONG (UPI) — China entered the post-Mao era Saturday, with the political heirs of Mao Tse-tung using his funeral eulogy to carry on the struggle for power.

More than 800 million Chinese people, one-fourth of all mankind, paid their final tribute to Mao in a series of memorial services held throughout the country.

Sirens wailed a mournful farewell for three minutes and the people of the country stood at silent attention at the start of the 30-minute mid-afternoon funeral service.

The main service was in Peking, where more than one million persons gathered in Tien An Men (Gate of Heavenly Peace) Square. A large portrait of Mao, draped in black crepe, hung on Tien An Men Gate. The national flag, with five yellow stars on a red field, flew at half-staff in the center of the square.

Wang Hung-wen, a vice chairman of the Chinese Communist party, presided over the memorial service for the former party chairman and founder of modern China, who died on Sept. 9 at the age of 82.

Premier Hua Kuo-feng, now the ranking party leader as first vice chairman, delivered the eulogy to Mao.

Hua, Wang and other party, state and military leaders stood on a large red ochre rostrum specially constructed for the final memorial service. Wreaths from Mao's surviving comrades in the top leadership also were on the rostrum.

Bowing three times before a portrait of Mao while an army band played "The East is Red," Hua and the other Chinese leaders pledged to "turn grief into strength" and carry out Mao's policies.

As the service ended, they led the crowd in chanting, "Long live Marxism-Leninism-Mao Tse-tung thought. Long live the great, glorious and correct Communist party of China. Chairman Mao is immortal."

Analysts specializing in Chinese affairs described Hua's eulogy as "dull and uninspiring" but said he undoubtedly was restricted in what he could say by the power struggle that has split the Chinese leadership.

Hua alluded to the split and even mentioned by name former acting premier Teng Hsiao-ping, onetime close friend and presumed successor to the late Chou En-lai who was purged after his death.

"Internally, we must...consolidate the great unity of the people...deepen the struggle to criticize Teng Hsiao-ping...combat and prevent revisionism...and rely on our own efforts to turn the country into a powerful Socialist state," Hua said.

Teng, who was first purged during the Cultural revolution 10 years ago and brought back to power by Chou, was purged again last April in a power struggle initiated by Mao.

Hua was elevated to the premiership and the newly created post of first vice chairman of the party when Teng was purged a second time after serious riots in Peking.

Hua is the top man in the party and government now. But he has not been confirmed as Mao's successor. The failure of the party leadership to do so while it was together in Peking for Mao's memorial service was considered a clear indication of the sharp split that still exists in the party and among other factional groups, including the military.

School Aid Received

ALBANY — Ulster county has received $2,034,944.66 in state public school assistance — the first payment of the 1976-77 year.

State Comptroller Arthur Leavitt reported that some $238,719,290 was distributed state-wide under the program. This represents approximately 8 1/2 per cent of all assistance due during the fiscal year.

Payments are made to school districts on the basis of apportionment statistics for the 1974-75 school year by the department of education and the department of audit.

Results Are Reported Of Ellenville Tests

ELLENVILLE — Pupil Evaluation Program (PEP) tests administered last October by the State Education Department show Ellenville third graders improved their scores in both mathematics and reading. Grades for sixth graders and ninth graders remained stable.

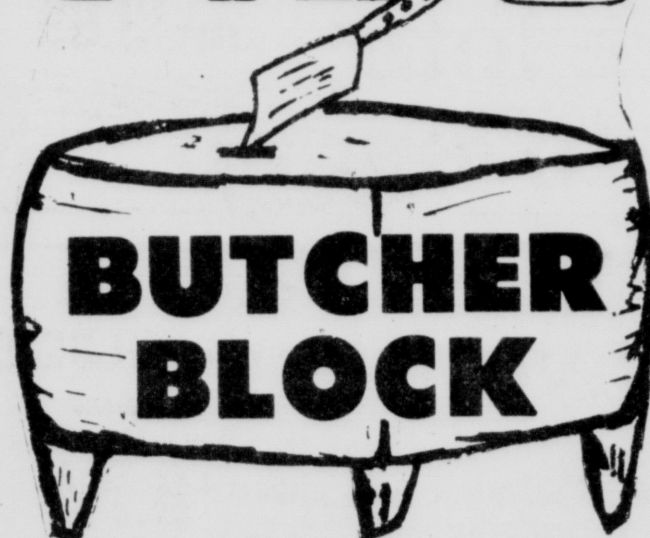

The third grade results have been on the rise during the past several years, the report shows. Sixth and ninth grade scores, which dipped and then recovered during the 10 years the tests have been administered, have reached what is considered to be a stable position.

One of the most significant findings of the tests has been the consistent improvement shown in upstate large city schools in both mathematics and reading. There has been marked improvement in third grade reading and mathematics in New York City, with sixth and ninth grade results remaining relatively stable.

The tests are given to the three grades, which are measured against a statewide reference point to help identify low achieving pupils in need of special remedial programs.

President's Aide Rates Ford Edge in Debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The canniest political professional in President Ford's campaign sees Thursday's scheduled Ford-Carter debate as a possible "watershed" in the 1976 presidential contest and, naturally, thinks his man will get the benefit of the current.

Stuart Spencer, political director of the President Ford Committee, said he was "very confident" Ford would do better than Jimmy Carter in the 90-minute joint appearance, scheduled for 9:30 p.m. EDT Thursday.

"One of the strengths of the President is experience and tremendous knowledge of the issues," Spencer said. He described Carter as having "shallow" understanding of domestic and foreign policy issues and said the debates between the two candidates would "be the vehicle for the American people to see" their differences.

Spencer, who has directed political strategy at the PFC for a year, said the three debates—Sept. 23, Oct. 6 and Oct. 22—"could be very important to the outcome. They could be the watershed in the campaign."

Carter himself said, "I believe the debates will help me. They may help President Ford, too. I think the American people are holding back. They are waiting for the debates to decide to make their commitment to me or to President Ford."

Describing how he will prepare for the debates Carter said, "I'll read the issue analysis papers I already have." He said he would not practice debating with a stand-in for Ford and would "probably not" have staff members throw questions at him.

He said he will not campaign on the two days before the debates but, but would use the time for "relaxation rather than studying."

Spencer conceded that, as in the Kennedy-Nixon debates of 1960, "style" could be an important factor in the impressions left by the candidates. And here too, Spencer said he was not worried about Ford's impact.

"The President will be 'up' for the debates," he said. The Ford campaign official's confidence does not conflict with what Carter's people say. When Ford accepted the debate idea in his acceptance speech, Barry Jagoda, the Democratic candidate's television adviser, said he expected Carter to be the underdog.

Jagoda based his assessment on Ford's 25 years of give-and-take in the House and his knowledge as President for two years.

But Carter, who supported the debates from the start, has much to gain from appearing with Ford. Despite his year-long nomination campaign and the publicity he has received this year, the former Georgia governor still is less well known than the President.

People Just Too Busy And a Life Ebbs Away

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — For 20 minutes Clinton Collins, 77, lay dying on a downtown sidewalk. Pedestrians stepped across his body ignoring the pleas of a handful of persons who stopped to help.

Motorists hurrying home during rush hour honked their horns impatiently at other drivers who started to stop. An ambulance with another patient happened by and took Collins to the hospital, but he was dead on arrival.

A hospital spokesman said he died of natural causes. A psychologist said Collins was the victim of society's "full-gallop pace" and a city's depersonalization.

"Our society is set up for a kind of full-gallop pace, and since they are in a hurry to get places they just see the man, think somebody else will help him, or maybe they think he is drunk, and go about their business," said Dr. Vernon Sisney.

Bold Reorganization Urged of the CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former deputy director of the CIA said Saturday his old spy agency should be stripped of covert operations and turned into a relatively open research institute.

Dr. Ray S. Cline said he still favored limited clandestine operations by the United States, but they should be hidden in other parts of the federal government.

CIA headquarters at Langley, Va., he said, should be purged of its "dirty tricks" reputation by becoming the benign Central Institute of Foreign Affairs Research.

"The Central Intelligence which has become a worldwide public relations liability, would cease to exist," he said.

Cline, educated at Harvard and Oxford, made the proposals in a memoir of his two decades of service with the CIA, "Secrets, Spies and Scholars."

Cline outlined a bold reorganization of the U.S. intelligence community which would allow CIFAR to assign intelligence tasks to intelligence units of the departments of state, defense, treasury, commerce and agriculture intelligence units.

This reorganized intelligence apparatus, he said, should be monitored by a special committee of the House, as well as of the Senate. So far, only the Senate has such a panel.

Clandestine operations, he said, should be controlled by a small professional staff within the White House.

"These covert operations should not be too frequent nor too large," he said. "The operations themselves should be carried out by specifically trained personnel assigned to Clandestine Services or members of the Clandestine Services Staff."

"The heart of these additional steps to put our intelligence on a sound footing is to change the popular image of intelligence by demonstrating that most of the work is neither illegal nor immoral.

"Thus, CIFAR should replace CIA at the Langley Headquarters Building, which could then be more open to scholars and journalists interested in consultation and substantive research findings."

STAFF'S CHANCE
Board Member Sadly Missed

Members of the Kingston Board of Education are expected to attend meetings regularly. Some don't.

One habitual absentee on the local board is Richard Skala, who has missed nine of the 21 meetings the board has held since he became a member in July 1975.

Membership on a board of education is an important responsibility and should be treated as such. According to New York State Education Law, any board member who misses three successive meetings without good reason could be subject to dismissal. Although Skala has not yet missed three meetings in a row, on four occasions he has missed two meetings in a row.

Asked why his record of attendance was so poor, Skala says he was working. Then he questioned the value of making his attendance record public.

Well, I'm not down on people working. As a matter of fact in these times of high unemployment it's refreshing to talk to someone who has a job. But what I don't understand is why someone would seek and accept a position which he can't devote the necessary time to.

Freeman Readers Write

Criminals Out to Get Port Ewen

Dear Editor:

In the past year I have read many times in the Daily Freeman that Justice Jordan had arraigned people accused of crimes in Kingston and places other than the Town of Esopus and Port Ewen. This means that people who had been arrested elsewhere were brought to Port Ewen for arraignment at all hours of the night. In some cases these people were making their first visits to little Port Ewen for their arraignments.

These alleged criminals were then taken to Ulster County Jail where they came in contact with other arrested people and discussed details of their arrests.

Through the efforts of Justice Jordan, a large percentage find they have come through the Ulster County "Criminal Arraignment Center of Port Ewen." Since Justice Jordan is usually not stingy in setting bail, Port Ewen is even easier for these people to remember.

Not too long ago our Post Office was burglarized and even more recently a liquor store was burglarized on our main street and one of our churches burned to the ground on the same night. To burn the church the perpetrators had to make an investment in expensive gasoline, which was detected in the blaze. Since there could have been little or no financial gain to the perpetrators, what motive could there be for this atrocity but some form of revenge, misguided though it may seem? Even if the alleged perpetrator were a local resident why would he single out a local church if this was his specialty? Are we in Port Ewen to expect other senseless atrocities at the hands of people previously arraigned in Port Ewen? Is this the police protection adequate for the tempo of criminal commerce that we are experiencing in Port Ewen?

Furthermore, according to an article in the Daily Freeman, Justice Jordan recently found himself viewing "evidence" in the "X rated" cinema in Highland. He then signed a complaint against the cinema before a Justice in the Town of Lloyd in Highland. While no one should tell another person how he should conduct himself as long as it is lawful, Justice Jordan should bear in mind that he involves the town of Port Ewen as an elected official thereof when he brings actions in other towns.

The suggestion is made that he might disguise himself to avoid recognition when he embarks on escapades of adventure so as not to offend those of his constituents who do not agree with his course of action, and, in addition, not to antagonize residents of other town against Port Ewen residents and business establishments.

In the interest of realism, it should be recognized that once a candidate is elected for any office he doesn't have to pay attention to the electorate until about two months before he presents himself for re-election. However, usually the day after election is long enough to wait before he goes back to having a ball and ignores the electorate again.

Baby Monitor Is within Grasp

Dear Editor:

As chairman of the "Infant Ventilator Fund" I would again like to thank all those whose generous contributions made the purchase of the ventilator possible. The ventilator is now in use at the Kingston Hospital, but is available for use at any hospital in the area.

When St. John's Episcopal Church Women initiated this drive, our initial concern was to raise enough money to purchase the ventilator. However we pledged all money received to the care of the newborn. We did not anticipate the overwhelming response from the community and are now faced with the delightful task of spending the balance of the fund.

We are contemplating the purchase of a Cardiac and Monitoring System for the Obstetrical and Maternity units at the Kingston Hospital. This combined unit would give a digital reading of the respiratory and heart rate of an infant. In addition a paper write-out of the heart rate and EKG could be obtained.

As you can imagine the cost of such a unit far exceeds any balance we have left in the fund. However Dr. Edmund H. Reppert has offered to recommend to the administration that monies be made available to cover half the cost of this unit, if we meet the other half.

I hesitate to ask a community which has already so generously given to give again, but if we are to meet our half we need to raise an additional $500. With just a little effort we could easily reach this goal.

For me, as chairman of the fund, any satisfaction I've gained in seeing the purchase of this equipment, is far outweighed by the gratitude that I live in a community where people care.

JUDITH I. BARBA

Page 1 Story Uncalled For

Dear Editor:

What has this world come to? Have we lost all our decency? What on God's earth made you, or whoever was responsible, think that the article concerning Mr. Beare of Catskill needed front page coverage. It's indecent! In fact disgusting that a tragedy that occurred almost seven years ago, that cruelly affected a family, need be brought up again. What business is it of the people of Kingston? What business is it of anyone but the immediate family?

I lived in Catskill for quite a few years. I knew the Beare family. No matter what Mr. Beare has done and no matter what the real reasons were that led to his death, I see no cause for the article to have been printed. Any death in a family is a shock, one that takes perhaps years to overcome, years for the hurt to heal letting those loved ones to begin to live again.

And when the death is unexpected and involves four children the tragedy and affects are worse. To broadcast the event is awful.

Mrs. Beare's reasons for her present actions are her and her family's own private affair. The results of dragging this so-called news into the paper may very well cause further ill effects for the children as well as the entire family.

Dear Sir, can you honestly come up with a good reason that would tell me why anyone would be interested in such an article? Mr. Beare was a good man. I hope his family does not find out that they're in the news again.

Kingston
Perhaps if people reacted with less shock and horror to unusual — but not, as the witnesses testified, uncommon — behavior such as Mr. Beare's, he would not have ended his life in a basement. If we are to believe the evidence of experts, there are many good people in the world who behave unconventionally in secret. It seems appropriate to us to air publicly the problem of society's attitudes in these circumstances. — Editor

Alabama Could Upset Carter

BIRMINGHAM — I don't believe it, but I feel bound to report that in Birmingham people in apparent possession of their faculties actually believe that Ford will beat Carter in Alabama. Moreover, this intelligence was gathered on the very day that Jimmy Carter, troling the city for votes, appeared under the personal auspices of Governor Wallace; and talked about the glories of small business, the problems of small business and the ineptitude of Republicans in taking into account the problems of businessmen. He talked the way Senator Robert Kennedy talked in the primary contest in Indiana in 1968, when he delivered lines that could as well have been spoken by Senator Goldwater.

It is quite astonishing that in an age of satellite communication, a political candidate can tell voters in one corner of the swimming pool something he would really just as soon tell the voters at the other end of the swimming pool didn't hear.

But even though in middle-class Alabama there is considerable resistance to Carter, there is also skepticism on this question whether there are any "true differences" between the parties. They have had, after all, a generation of Governor Wallace, one of whose most famous generalities was that there isn't a dime's worth of difference between the two major political parties.

It is difficult to know what Governor Wallace might have done to American politics if he had not been struck down. In 1972, as between McGovern and Nixon, the two parties were as widely separated as they can be within the framework of consensus this side of revolutionary resistance. Wallace's great opportunity came when McGovern was nominated. If he had then joined the Republican Party, he'd have brought a huge constituency over with him. Failing to do so, and nominally backing him, Wallace chose to remain a Democrat. Four years later, Carter skillfully co-opted much, though we have yet to know exactly how much, of Wallace's following. He left the general impression with many voters, particularly in the South, that the difference between the two parties is not significant.

That isn't so. Never mind that history reveals that platforms are written to be ignored. The fact is they are explicitly endorsed by the men running for president and are at least suggestive. The Democrats "pledge...support of legislation that will...reduce adult unemployment to three per cent within four years." That means the Humphrey-Hawkins Bill pie-in-the-sky — about as adequate to end unemployment as the ham-and-eggs plan of the 1930's. It is significant that not a single responsible economist (to quote Professor Feldstein of Harvard) has endorsed the bill — which, if enacted, would simply bring on increased inflation, and national impoverishment.

Increased inflation? But the Democratic platform pledges "price stability." Is that Democratic talk for wage-and-price controls? Well, no. "We cannot believe that... a comprehensive system of mandatory controls" is necessary. Does that mean the Democrats are against wage-and-price controls? Well, no. "At times, direct government involvement in wage and price decisions may be required to insure price stability."

In order to increase employment, will the minimum wage be eased say, for the young? On the contrary. "The minimum wage rate should at least keep pace with the increase in the cost of living." Since under the Democrats the cost of living is bound to soar, so will the minimum wage rate; and so will unemployment for those most quickly victimized by it: the teenage blacks crowded in urban centers.

Will taxes be reformed so as to permit business — the principal employer — to expand, and liberate itself from the high overhead that now demoralizes the investor? Almost certainly the opposite: "We pledge...the complete overhaul of the present tax system." A complete overhaul is overdue. But when those words are spoken by the Democratic Party, count your silver. Better still, hide it because somebody will propose a capital levy on it.

There are too many people in Alabama who have made economic progress in 20 years — I am informed. Too many to wish to risk sticking it all in Mr. Carter's bank and letting him handle it. The Democratic platform is the fine print in the contract between a President Carter and the voters, and however much he tries to persuade them in these parts that in effect they should pay it no heed, some of them do. Literacy is hitting the South, including economic literacy.

The City That Lives on Money

Las Vegas is the most exciting city in the world. Not the most beautiful, mind you. Nor the best. Nor the worst. The most exciting. It displays more lights than Broadway. The shows are more lavish than Ziegfeld offered 50 years ago.

It is something in the middle of nothing. It is a miner's pan shaken for gold. There are more lavish hotels than in any city in the world. The gambling casinos are honest because the house has a slight edge over a nervous craps shooter.

Huge jets ease over sandy mountains to find McCarran Airport. They bring happy suckers. Greyhound buses climb the hills and stagger into the valley laden with lady keno players, who will bet $1.40 that they may win $25,000.

The city produces no food, manufactures no tires, laces or refrigerators. It lives on money. Las Vegas is a monument to greed. The sucker bets that he can outwit a pair of dice, the turn of a card, the spin of a wheel, three innocent oranges in a slot machine.

In a desert, water is expensive. The Dunes golf course gets more care than the kept woman of a king. It is an emerald in a bedrock of sand. Campers en route from New York to Los Angeles sway along the highway like fugitives afraid to stop.

The Japanese chatter in the casinos. Chinese giggle. Italians bet big. Gorgeous hookers play the nickel machines and wait for a winner. Obsequious waiters in the Gigi Room cannot afford the steaks they serve to losers.

There is a Strip. There is a downtown. The temperature by day runs to 108 degrees Fahrenheit. Often, there is no outdoors. In the morning, the lavish hotels cast blue shadows west. At 1 p.m. there are no shadows. At 7 p.m. the blue fingers point east.

The roads are littered with wedding chapels and busted marriages. A comedian is paid $100,000 a week by a hotel trying to borrow $50 million for expansion. At the lavish shows, nude girls descend from the ceiling in cages as elephants and magicians perform on-stage.

The Italian restaurants are the worst; the steak houses, the best. What Las Vegas produces is money — nothing else. Texas oil millionaires go to Binion's Horseshoe. The erudite New Yorkers hole up in MGM Grand or the Frontier, Sahara, Riviera, Caesars Palace or the Sands.

Slot machines are everywhere, even in the supermarkets. The only place where they are absent is in the Western Union office where the manager assumes the customer is sending home for more money.

There are no calendars, no clocks. In the Union Plaza, slot machine players are offered a real live airplane sitting in the lobby. There are massage parlors. There are escort services for the lonely male.

Lovers rent a car in Hendersonville, and try to sell it in Las Vegas. The city has the highest crime rate in America. In the casinos, there are overhead one-way mirrors which hide the company spy watching the dealer below. The spy also has TV tape machines. If anyone wins a lot, or loses a lot, they can replay every move he made. His dealer's too.

The big hotels spend money on booklets which tell you how to beat the system. Wayne Newton is like an electric bulb on the Strip — he's a fixture. Circus Circus offers a bath by "Geisha girl types."

It is a city of contrasts, a place of contradictions. The sun stands still all day and stares. At night an orange moon peeks over the mountains and surrenders to the bright lights. Las Vegas is the most exciting city in the world.

Charley And The Foxbat

WASHINGTON— When Lieutenant Viktor Belenko of the Soviet Air Force delivered a spanking new MIG-25 "Foxbat" fighter plane to the Japanese last week, there was tremendous excitement amongst all Western military commands. The Foxbat is considered the world's fastest warplane and everyone, especially the U.S. Air Force intelligence people, were dying to have an opportunity to examine every toggle switch on it.

The Japanese knew the Soviet Union would put tremendous pressure on them to have the MIG-25 returned immediately so they asked the United States how they could stall for time. Pentagon officials huddled for a few days and then a general came up with the answer. "What we need is an expert in stalling— someone who can keep the MIG from being sent back and at the same time not offend the Soviets."

"Whom do you have in mind?" the secretary of defense asked.

"Charley Muleback."

"Who the hell is Charley Muleback?" another general asked.

"I can't tell you now," the general replied.

Muleback was flown out that evening. He arrived at Hakodate airport and was taken to the Foxbat which had been completely sealed off by the Japanese and under heavy guard. In another part of the airport an angry Russian Embassy official was screaming at the Japanese officials that the Soviet Union wanted its MIG back immediately, and if they didn't get it there would be serious consequences.

The Japanese introduced Muleback to the Russian.

"Tell him," Muleback said, "that the plane's been completely totaled and we're going to have to start from scratch to rebuild it."

A Japanese official translated this to the Russian.

The Russian protested that the plane was in perfect condition and there wasn't a scratch on it.

Muleback shook his head. "That's what all MIG-25 owners say, but they never look underneath the plane where the real damage is. Besides, we're going to have to replace the two afterburning jet engines. At the impact of landing, they were wrecked beyond repair and I believe they wouldn't last another 500 miles. Tell him I personally called the spare parts factory in Lansing, Mich., and they promised they would air freight the engines in two months."

The Russian made a telephone call to his superiors and then returned. "We'll take the plane as it is," he told the Japanese, "and make our own repairs."

Muleback, when told what the Russian said, replied, "Even if the afterburning engines worked, we're going to have to put in all new air intake valves. They're a mess. And we have to replace the grill on the radar nose cone and the wheels will have to be realigned. And we have to change the oil filters which means removing the radar equipment from the cockpit. We found some dirt in the gaskets that control the air-to-air missiles, and we'll have to send away to Shreveport which is the only place that still makes them."

The Russian was screaming at the Japanese, "Just give us the plane as it is!"

Muleback listened to the translation and shook his head.

"I'm sorry, mister. It's too late now because we've got the whole thing torn apart. We were under the impression you wanted your MIG plane fixed up so no one would ever know it had been totaled on a Japanese runway."

The Japanese officials were horrified to see the Russian Embassy official beat his head against the ticket counter.

That night the general in the Pentagon received a cable which said, "I did like you said. Regards, Muleback."

The elated general showed it to everyone at the meeting.

"All right," the secretary of defense said. "Who the hell is Muleback?"

The general replied, "He runs a body shop in Alexandria. My kid smashed up my Mustang and it took Muleback six months to repair it. I figured if it took him six months to repair a Mustang, it would take him three years to patch up a MIG-25, providing he can get all the parts."

Jack Anderson

U.S. Site For PLO Fund Drive

WASHINGTON — The Palestine Liberation Organization is raising funds in the United States for its guerrilla activities. On at least one occasion, money has been routed through the PLO's Permanent Observer post at the United Nations.

The funds collected from PLO sympathizers in this country have been deposited in a PLO account overseas. The account is used to finance PLO operations, presumably including terrorist raids and airplane hijackings.

Through several intermediaries, we have obtained proof of the clandestine PLO collections in the United States. It consists of a thank-you note, written in Arabic on the stationery of the PLO's United Nations office. The letter is signed by Jacob El-Oubedi, the PLO's top fundraiser in Beirut, and is addressed to the "Palestinian Committee in the State of Virginia."

It relates how the Virginians had collected $4,084, which El-Oubedi said would go into the "PLO national chest." El-Oubedi's code name, by the way, is "Abu Khaled."

"We hope you will continue to work for our holy cause and a revolutionary victory," wrote El-Oubedi. He noted that the Virginian's money had been turned over to him by the PLO director in New York, Zohar Tarazi.

Tarazi acknowledged that El-Oubedi had been in the United States and that a fund-raising effort is going on. But he insisted forcefully: "They are not using this channel" for collecting funds.

We pointed out that El-Oubedi's letter was written on the PLO's United Nations stationery. Tarazi then recalled that the Virginians had delivered the $4,084 check to him, and that he had forwarded it to El-Oubedi: "We were just a pigeon drop," he said.

Although Tarazi admitted the fund drive reached into many states, he said money for the PLO was scarce. "When I think about the billions going to other places!" he exclaimed. He alluded to the massive fund-raising efforts in behalf of Israel.

Footnote: The PLO is registered with the Justice Department as a foreign agent, but only for "information activities," not fund collecting. There is no registration for El-Oubedi.

KISSINGER'S CREDIBILITY: Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is held in such low esteem in Saudi Arabia that former American Ambassador James E. Akins wrote despairingly from Jidda: "I sometimes wonder how we can maintain any influence at all in this country, and I strongly suspect we're on a deep downward path here."

Akins confided his views in secret memos and letters, which we have obtained.

Kissinger's "credibility in Saudi Arabia," wrote the former ambassador, "is approximately the same as it is in the U.S. Senate."

In a secret "memorandum for the file," dated Aug. 28, 1975, he told of a private conversation with Saudi oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani. The powerful oil minister complained of the "games the U.S. is playing in the Middle East."

Kissinger's tactics "had long been discussed in Saudi Arabia," and the Saudis had concluded that the United States was "putting all (its) cards on Iran," Yamani told the ambassador.

"It was obvious," Yamani explained, "that the State Department had adopted a pro-Iran, anti-Arab line, and he wondered if President Ford would fall for it. He hoped not."

The Saudis had as high an opinion of Akins as they had a low opinion of Kissinger. Thus Akins' recent dismissal, he wrote, was viewed by the Saudis "as a move more against them than against me."

In a recent letter to Treasury Secretary William Simon, Akins reported: "The Saudis intended to take up my dismissal when Kissinger was here and make a major issue of it. I asked them, as a personal favor, not to do so."

But Kissinger misinterpreted their failure to react, according to Akins. "Kissinger has concluded that their non-reaction shows they got his 'message' and are frightened."

On the contrary, Akins related how the Saudis had been deriding Kissinger. Because the ambassador had tried to defend his boss, two top ministers, Zaki Yamani and Isaham Nazer, "have been taunting me for the last week," he reported, "with my past staunch vigorous defense of Kissinger. Both of them claim they saw through him immediately and take great joy in quoting verbatim my defense of him and his policies."

Kissinger also had the mistaken idea, according to Akins' secret letter, that he had made a favorable impression upon the late King Faisal. The Saudis "find it hilariously funny," wrote Akins, "that Kissinger has claimed that it was he himself the King came to like and trust."

The Saudis liked to kid Akins about these matters. Related the former ambassador: "I give them as stony a 'no comment' as I can manage."

Footnote: We reached Akins in London. He confirmed that he had written secret letters and memos but refused to comment on them.

CON MAN: Last year, we reported that a cunning con man named Thomas R. Faernstrom had collected $30,000 by using other men's names to pick up enlistment bonuses from the armed services. Then he would move on to "re-enlist" all over again.

The FBI finally caught up with him, and he is in prison. But Pentagon gumshoes now believe their $30,000 estimate was far too low. Faernstrom may have bilked the military of $600,000 in 10 years.

New York's Feudal Lords Became Landlords

Second in a series of columns on New York's rent wars during the last century.

New York State abolished land ownership by feudal tenure in 1782. Alexander Hamilton, sidestepping the statute, named his new Van Rensselaer lease a contract of "incomplete sale." The lease read, "Stephen Van Rensselaer, by these presents, doth grant, bargain, sell, remise, release and confirm unto the said party of the second part," etc. By the use of those verbs, Hamilton gave the impression that ownership in fee simple was being conveyed.

Catch 22 was the purchase price. It was 10 to 14 bushels of wheat each year plus "four fat fowls" and one day's service with team and wagon. It was like a lease-buy arrangement, except there was no closing date. The purchase price went on forever.

In addition, the tenant paid all taxes (patroons paid none). The tenant could only clear and till the land, the patroon reserving to himself all timber, mineral, and water rights. If a tenant erected a mill, it (and its use) was taken from him.

The tenant, if he wanted to move away, could sell only his contract of incomplete sale, not the property. Finally, there was a "quarter-sale" clause: in the event of sale, the tenant had to pay the landlord one-fourth of the price, or if the landlord desired the property, he had the option of reclaiming it at three-fourths of the sale price and the buyer was out of luck.

The patroon also had the right, in the event of nonpayment of rent, to issue his own warrants for the seizure and sale of crops and livestock, his own testimony being sufficient proof. He could use the sheriff to collect for him, the cost to be borne by the county, and the tenant had no right of appeal. It was assumed, I suppose, that the patroon was a gentleman, and gentlemen, it is assumed, do not stoop to misuse their power, except when convenient.

Into this trap walked many veterans of the Revolutionary War. A piece of land meant hard work, but also security and a future, and the Act of 1782 opened up the land for settlement. The best land had been snapped up by speculators while the men were still in uniform, so the patroon's offer looked good both to them and to many new immigrants who had fled Europe.

It looked good because (around 1790) many of the settlers were illiterate and considered the patroon a gentleman. But his agent neglected to spell out the details of the lease. The offer went like this: the gentleman would give the settlers land at no cost for seven years until it was productive, after which they could obtain a "durable lease with a moderate wheat rent."

The best bottom land had been taken by the tenants of a century before, for whom meeting the rent was not difficult. So the new settlers spread out and up into the Helderberg Hills to the west and the Petersburg mountains to the east. There the soil was thin and unproductive. The saying among the hill people was that their most reliable crop was stones.

They carved out their farms with ax and plow, fueling themselves many times on nothing but cornbread. Villages grew up, with schools and churches. It is not difficult to imagine how these men felt when, after seven years of labor, they listened to the details of their leases.

By 1839, most of the illiteracy had disappeared. Educated people settled in the towns. Sons became doctors, lawyers, and craftsmen as well as farmers.

Stephen Van Rensselaer III worried about his title to the land, especially after an experience he had with an Albany lawyer whom he had been retaining for $1,000 a year. Stephen decided his services were no longer needed.

"Very well," said the lawyer, "then I shall be at liberty to accept a retainer from your tenants, and I will then show them that they are no longer your tenants, but the owners of the soil." It is said the lawyer received his fee for the rest of his life.

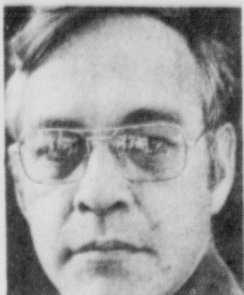

It is not difficult to imagine how these men felt when, after seven years of labor, they listened to the details of their leases.

Stephen III became known as the Good Patroon. He was lenient with hardship cases, and during the depression of 1837, when hardship squeezed even him, he refused to press for unpaid rent. He also founded Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute and kept his legislators wine and dined.

When he died in 1839, back rents amounted to $400,000. (In 1839 a good day's pay was $2.) Stephen left his sons, Stephen IV and William, with the burden of paying his debts, but the boys didn't possess their father's understanding and leniency. They sent out the sheriffs to collect from the backsliders.

The sheriffs came back with nothing more than dismay, and gathered posses. The posses came back without their writs of seizure, etc., which had been burned publicly over a barrel of flaming tar. No one was hurt, but...well, it was upsetting.

Where there is oppression, leadership springs up in the strangest places. Three such ruffians — Lawrence Van Deusen, Hugh Scott, and Charles Bouton — went to the patroon with a proposal. If he would give up his water, mineral and timber rights, the farmers would agree to buy their farms gradually for $2.50 an acre. This amount, when invested by the patroon at six per cent, would yield him an amount equal to the yearly rent. Stephen IV replied that if he accepted those terms, he would be doing society at large a great injustice.

Van Rensselaer told Sheriff Artcher to get together a posse of prominence. It included Stephen himself (he was excused from duty as they were leaving), former Governor William Marcy, and John Van Buren, son of the President. They rode off grimly to collect the rent. There were 500 in all.

At Clarksville "under the mountain" Artcher received word that a group of farmers had gathered at Reidsville on the crest. Artcher rode forward with 100 men. After a short climb, they found 100 mounted farmers apparently blocking their way, but the farmers parted and allowed the posse through, then fell in behind.

In another mile Artcher encountered another band of farmers. This time tin horns, used to call hands in for meals, were blowing in succession up the mountain ahead of them. This group, too, parted and let Artcher through. In short, Artcher and his band reached Reidsville to find themselves in something of a spot. There were 600 farmers behind them and nearly 2,000 in front, all mounted and armed with pitchforks and clubs.

Artcher and his men charged the line twice, but the farmers repulsed them without causing injury. Artcher then ordered retreat, and the farmers opened ranks, let them gallop through, and chased them down the mountain yelling insults. He ordered the entire army, dignitaries included, back to Albany. Oh, ignominy!

I wish I had space to quote some of the newspaper reports. They're hilarious. In Tin Horns and Calico, Christman writes, "His straggling army suffered casualties that day, but only from protracted assault on the bar and commissary at Clark's Tavern."

The issue was no longer the payment of rent. It was vassalage, "voluntary slavery," as the farmers now called it. They had found a new use for their tin horns; now they would find a new use for their wives' calico and the example of the Indians who had roamed those hills before them.

COUNTY WORKERS' VIEW

Cut Welfare, Not Wages

Undoubtedly, when the 1977 monetary bottom line is seen by certain legislators, there will develop a hue and cry to lay off more workers and freeze county employee's salaries. We wish to demonstrate to the general public, before such talk even begins, that actions of this kind are both misguided and in reality, jamming.

They are misguided in that the legislators are aiming their energies and priorities in the wrong direction. We use the 1976 budget as an example of this, as we are certain it is reflective of what is to come. In 1976 the county had a total budget of $55,476,822. Of this $9,660,526 went to employee salaries; $24,464,602 to welfare assistance. To put it another way, the county used 17.4 per cent of its total budget to pay people to work and 44.09 per cent for those unemployed.

We applaud Chairman Savago's efforts at fighting the state's mandated welfare programs but feel much more must be done towards lessening that 44 per cent figure. Next year looks to show welfare assuming an even larger percentage of the total budget. If the county were to lay off one-half of its workers tomorrow, at their current wages it would only amount to an 8.7 per cent saving. This is a mere drop in the bucket compared to the whopping 44 per cent of welfare expense.

It should also be noted that such layoffs would result in even higher welfare costs due to the fact that unemployment in Ulster County is high. Those laid off would probably become welfare recipients.

This is why we feel talk of layoffs and salary freezes is misguided.

Relevant to the damage such action would cause, we should like to point out that for the last two years the county has maintained a freeze on hiring. Over the last year, a policy of attrition has been instituted. In other words, a thinning of the work force by not replacing employees fired, retired or who have quit. With the exception of a few essential replacements the county has been firm in its resolve towards attrition. A year ago, the county seriously considered laying off 150 workers and actually had a list of names to be axed but for numerous reasons realized such a move would not be in the best interest of the public.

Now, after a year of attrition, we feel the effects of even minimal lay-offs would have an extremely adverse effect of the public. As is, the policy of attrition has left some departments critically short of clerical help.

The infirmity, where lives are at stake, has nurses working double shifts due to lack of manpower. These are two examples. Where is the fat to be trimmed? To have more layoffs, even through attrition, is to speed up an eroding process which will leave the public eventually with only minimal services much like New York City. This assessment becomes even bleaker when considering the morale and productivity of those employees, literally swamped with work, who would be left. Indeed, in a county which is projected and committed to rational growth, great damage would result from lay-offs or a wage freeze.

The CSEA stands ready to work with the county, in a fair and reasonable way, towards economic stability but we call upon the public to help us in channeling our elected officials' energies in the most productive direction.

Says Bible Doesn't Condemn Gays

Priest Defends Homosexuality

ATLANTA (UPI) — A Jesuit priest who ministers to the gay community says he believes the Bible does not condemn overt homosexual activity, as long as it is done in the spirit of love.

The Rev. John J. McNeill of New York, an authority in the field of moral theology, offers his argument for a change in the church's traditional view of homosexuality in his book, "The Church and the Homosexual."

"What we're talking about are human beings and their rights—their right to express themselves in loving action," said Father McNeill. "If two homosexuals love each other and wish to express that love in a sexual gesture, what right has the state to deny them that love?"

The church's view of homosexuals was expressed last Jan. 15 by Pope Paul VI in his Vatican Declaration on Sexual Ethics. "Homosexual acts are intrinsically disordered and can in no way be approved of," said the Pope.

But Father McNeill said the church and society should try to love and accept homosexuals as they are, without attempting to change them into heterosexuals.

Father McNeill believes that the main ethical issue for Christian homosexuals is commitment to each other following the model of Christ's commitment to His Church.

He offered the example of a homosexual who has promiscuous sex on a regular basis, then goes to confession and receives absolution. But two homosexuals who decide to live together and care for one another in a permanent relationship are denied absolution because the church does not recognize their commitment to one another.

"So a lot of Catholic homosexuals think they'll go to heaven as long as they don't fall in love," he said.

Father McNeill, 50, admits that he has homosexual inclinations. But he said he would no more engage in homosexual acts than a heterosexual priest would have sex with a woman because of their mutual vows of celibacy and espousal to the church.

He said the portions of the Bible that have been construed as a blanket condemnation of all overt homosexual activity actually refer to certain types of homosexual activity under certain circumstances.

Leviticus 20:13 says: "You shall not lie with a male as with a woman; it is an abomination." Father McNeill interprets this as a protest against the use of homosexuality in pagan rites.

Also, in St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, the apostle's bitter condemnation of homosexual activity is seen by McNeill and other liberal moral theologians as applying to homosexual acts on the part of those whose basic nature is heterosexual.

Father McNeill is the spiritual adviser to a 5-year-old group called Dignity, which has 5,000 members in 45 chapters in the United States. The publication of his book was delayed by Jesuit Father General Pedro Arrupe for two years while its contents were examined by a committee of theologians and officials in Rome.

Pint-Sized Collie A 'Real' Lassie Long-Lost Dog Is Home At Last

NORTH RIVER, N.Y. (UPI) — A miniature collie named Sparky, lost during a vacation stay at Lake George in July, was reunited with her owner yesterday after roaming the Adirondack wilderness for two months. — "I never thought I'd see Sparky again," said the dog's owner, school principal Mary Ellen Appleman, when she was reunited with her dog yesterday after travelling from Cleveland, Ohio, to claim her.

Glens Falls veterinarian George Wiswall, who traced the tags of the 1½-year-old dog in order to locate Miss Appleman, called it "A real live Lassie story."

The dog was captured last Tuesday 40 miles away from Lake George, near this Warren County community, where she had been stranded on the east side of the Hudson River.

Residents across the river began hearing her frantic barking in mid-July and notified authorities about the pooch, but authorities said the animal continued to elude efforts to capture her.

Throughout the summer, a group of children made forays across the river to feed the animal, but when the river rose from heavy rains and school began, dog-lovers on the river's west side worried that the spunky canine would die of starvation before the river froze and she could cross the ice.

So last week Mrs. Milda Burns of North River, whose children had been among those feeding the dog, began a onewoman campaign to save the animal.

Following publicity by an Albany television station, members of the Warren County and Albany County humane society, joined by an Environmental Conservation ranger, crossed the river to capture the dog.

After "Sparky" stole the first day's bait of chicken and canned dog food without setting off the trap, a second day's offering of hamburger did the job.

Wiswall declared the pooch in good condition Saturday after treating her for a couple of porcine quill wounds and pulling out a score of burrs.

On hand to accompany "Sparky" on her ride home to Cleveland were two of her best canine friends, whom Miss Appleman had brought to the reunion.

Many Stranded By TWA Strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Striking machinists shut down Trans World Airlines Saturday, disrupting travel plans for thousands of passengers around the globe and threatening TWA's hopes of having its first profitable year since 1973.

Pickets quickly started marching at airports across the United States. Flights from Europe and the Middle East continued to New York, but a spokesman said TWA jets around the world would be grounded after the last arrival from London Saturday evening.

Boysland Hearing On Brutality

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — Excessive corporeal punishment and prolonged isolation were among the 13 alleged violations cited by the State Board of Social Welfare as reasons for considering the revocation of an operating certificate for Boysland, a non-profit group home in the Greene County community of South Cairo.

Bernard Shapiro, executive director of the board, said Saturday that a hearing would be held Sept. 28 at the board's central office in the Empire State Plaza Building in Albany.

In the hearing notice, Shapiro said one or more boys had been struck, kicked, shoved, knocked to the floor, dragged by the hair and neck, had clumps of hair pulled out and forced to eat soap.

He also said an "arbitrary and cruel" administration of a point system had resulted in boys being deprived of recreation, personal pursuits, snacks and second helpings. The boys also were "ridiculed through insulting references to personal matters and required or permitted to solicit funds," Shapiro said.

The board suspended the home's operating certificate for 30 days on Aug. 13 to protect the "health, welfare and safety" of the residents, Shapiro said.

Boysland obtained an operating certificate Oct. 2, 1975.

Carter Defends Backers

PLAINS, Ga. (UPI) — Still maintaining that integration is the best thing to happen to the South in his lifetime, Jimmy Carter said Saturday it was unfair "to dredge up" the antieivil rights records of old Southern senators who support him.

Carter said men like Sens. James O. Eastland and John C. Stennis of Mississippi are "great Southern statesmen" because they have come to accept integration and have helped to bring racial peace to the South.

Wearing levis and work boots, Carter chatted with reporters while weighing in tons of freshly harvested peanuts in his warehouse. He was at work shortly after dawn following a five-day, 7,200-mile campaign trip across the nation.

Sunday, Carter will skip attendance at church and Sunday school to campaign in St. Louis and Kansas City before flying to New York for Monday's train trip to Pittsburgh.

Many travelers were stranded at airports, where ticket agents tried to book them with other airlines. A spokesman said TWA was refusing reservations for flights earlier than Thursday and would push that deadline back day by day if the strike continued.

The 12,000 strikers, who service and refuel TWA's jets, are represented by the International Association of Machinists and have worked without a contract for the past year. Their picket lines were honored by 8,000 other union members.

The walkout against the nation's third-largest airline started at midnight Friday, when a 30-day federally mediated cooling-off period ended without an agreement and negotiators in Washington headed home. Issues included both wages and fringe benefits.

No new talks were scheduled. An airline spokesman said both sides were standing by, however, for a call from federal mediators.

TWA officials said they could not provide the daily losses caused by the strike and refused to speculate on its longrange economic impact.

But one TWA spokesman in Kansas City called the strike a serious setback for the financially troubled airline. Other sources said a long walkout would threaten airline hopes of showing a slim profit for 1976 after two years in the red, including a $120 million deficit in 1975.

TWA carries 40,000 passengers a day on more than 400 domestic and 40 overseas flights.

The machinists' old contract expired Oct. 1, 1975. Federal mediators entered the talks in February at the request of both sides, but the negotiations broke down last month and both sides rejected an offer of binding arbitration. Union and company officials did not disclose the issues at stake. But it was known the company wanted the union to accept a no-raise agreement retroactive to October, to drop a supplemental retirement plan and to join other unions in shifting to employees the cost of a company dental plan.

New Lighting Company Breaks Ground in Lloyd

TOWN OF LLOYD — Bucking the tide of businesses which are leaving Ulster County, the Staff Lighting Company has broken ground for a new manufacturing, assembly and warehousing facility in the Town of Lloyd.

The firm's 15,000-square-foot building will be located at the intersection of Route 9W and Top Road. Staff Lighting, a German-based firm, will move its Poughkeepsie operations to the new plant, according to U. S. manager Jergen Schulten.

Schulten, a Highland resident, was instrumental in having the firm move to the Town of Lloyd. He said employees will be hired from Ulster county, but that no applications will be accepted before December or January.

UBPA Opens Meeting

TOWN OF ULSTER — The Ulster Business and Professional Association has opened its September meeting to the public.

UBPA will meet at the Town of Ulster office building at 8 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 21. A fire prevention program, with East Kingston Fire Chief Thomas Cole as principal speaker, will be featured. A short business meeting and refreshments will follow.

Robert Regan, UBPA president, said his group will sponsor, in conjunction with Town of Ulster volunteer firemen, a series of three weekly sessions on fire prevention, geared primarily for teen-age baby sitters. These informative programs are scheduled for Thursday, Sept. 23; Thursday, Sept. 30 and Thursday, Oct. 7 and also at the town office building.

All teenagers are invited to participate and will be given certificates upon completing the program.

HERITAGE MEATS has now relocated its store to 738 Ulster Avenue Mall. According to George Lucente, president of the firm, shown proudly displaying some of the 36 feet of fresh-cut meat, the move from the store's previous location in Saugerties was prompted by a lack of parking facilities, and a "desire to give our customers the very best."

Face Job for Cape Road

ELLENVILLE — The Wawarsing Town Board, responding to a petition from residents of the Irish Cape Road, will spend up to $1,500 to repair it.

Several of the more than 100 residents of the road who signed the petition attended the recent town board meeting to hear Highway Superintendent August Hall outline plans for repairing the two-mile stretch of road. The work includes new drainage, fill and oil for the road, which will be resurfaced next spring. Bids for culvert pipe will be opened at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, Sept. 23.

Supervisor Franklin Sahler noted that voter registration has now become much simpler and said the town should eliminate all but three of the registration polling places in the town. The board has voted to open all polling places for this year's registration on Oct. 1 and 5.

Sahler said closing all polling places except for Ellenville, Napanoch and Kerhonkson would reduce the cost of salaries and other related registration expenses.

The zoning board of appeals and the planning board have asked that Donald Mekulik, the building inspector, attend their meetings as a consultant. They suggested he be paid $300 annually for attending zoning board meetings and $350 for planning board meetings.

Councilmen agreed to the payments, since attendance at the meetings is not a part of Mekulik's normal duties. They also discussed salaries of planning board and zoning board members, noting that boards in other towns are composed of unpaid volunteers.

Hall reported on vandalism at the town garage, saying that a 200-gallon kerosene tank and a 500-gallon diesel fuel tank had been filled with water over the long Labor Day weekend. The two tanks had just been filled with fuel, Hall said. Minor vandalism includes removing equipment handles and other small damage to vehicles.

The board awarded a $5,579 bid to Meywisha Communications for nine two-way mobile radios, a base station and antennae for the town garage, to be used in dispatching highway department vehicles.

The board will hold a special meeting Sept. 23 in conjunction with the culvert pipe bid opening.

One Ulster District Is Economou's Goal

POUGHKEEPSIE — Jack Economou, Democratic candidate in the 99th Assembly district, says one of his long range goals is to get the Ulster County Towns of Esopus, Lloyd and Marlboro into a district which is represented by an Ulster County Assemblyman.

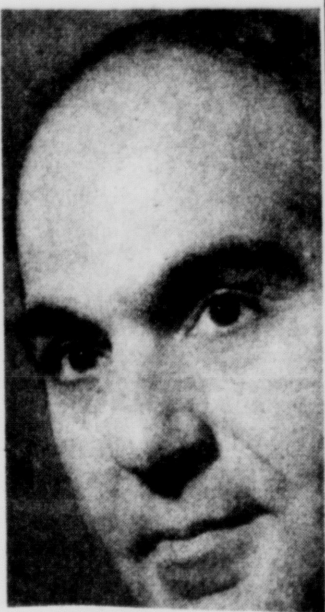

At present, the three towns comprise about 20 per cent of a district which is primarily in Dutchess County.

"I've spoken with the people in these towns," said Economou, "and they agree that they would receive better representation in an Ulster County district."

As a means of attaining this separation, Economou says he will explore census figures to see if Ulster County is entitled to one Assembly district.

"If the census shows that Ulster County is entitled to more than one district," said the candidate, reapportionment plans should insure that Ulster towns would make up a substantial part of each district."

In the meantime, Economou says he will represent his Ulster County constituents on an equal basis with those who live in Dutchess County.

Hinchey-Rosenstock Debate Monday

ELLENVILLE—The Town of Rochester Democratic Club is urging all town residents to register to vote in the upcoming election either by mail or in person Oct. 2 from 1 to 9 p.m. in the Accord Town Hall or Oct. 5th from 1 to 5 p.m. in the municipal building.

The group also reminds interested persons that a debate between incumbent Democratic Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, D-101st, and his Republican challenger Maurice Rosenstock is scheduled for Monday Sept. 20, at 8 p.m. in Christ Lutheran Church, Ellen-Environmental Council to Resume

KINGSTON—The first public meeting of the Ulster County Environmental Management Council's fall season will deal with land preservation, tax exemption and the Mohonk Trust.

The meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, Sept. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the legislative chambers of the county office building in Kingston.

Daniel Smiley and Bradley Snyder will present "The Story of Mohonk — Land Use and Private Conservation."

Emeel Betros Home and on Mend

POUGHKEEPSIE — Incumbent Assemblyman Emeel S. Betros, R-99th Dist., is back in his Dutchess county home recuperating from an operation two weeks ago during which doctors successfully removed a tumor from his right lung.

Betros had been in Columbia Presbyterian Hospital in New York City since the first week of September.

"I got home Thursday and it feels wonderful to be here," Betros said from Poughkeepsie. "I'm pleased the way things are coming along and I'm getting stronger each day.

Betros especially wanted to thank the "literally thousands of people who sent cards, or called or passed along their good wishes — they were a great inspiration to me."

The assemblyman indicated that he plans to personally return to the campaign against his Democratic opponent, Jack Economou, sometime in October.

Highland May Not Have to Borrow

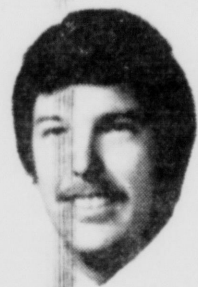

HIGHLAND -- The Highland Central School District does not feel it will have to borrow money because of delays in completing the Town of Lloyd tax rolls.

Robert Hansut, board of education president, said he had received word from town officials that the new roll can be completed by Sept. 21. The tax rolls are normally sent out Sept. 1.

Robert Demarest, the district's business manager, told the board enough money was on hand to meet the Sept. 14 payroll. Should the new tax roll be delayed beyond Sept. 21, the district may have to borrow money to carry it over. The district is almost entirely in the Town of Lloyd, with a small portion in the Town of New Paltz.

The New Paltz Central School District has already authorized Business Manager Frank Hamilton to borrow up to $250,000 to cover payroll and other expenses. The New Paltz board of education voted to hold up its tax notices until a corrected roll is received from the Town of Lloyd assessor.

"SEE YOU IN SAUGERTIES!"

New Solution and New Dollar Figure Likely

Greco Hopeful on A Sewer Solution

SAUGERTIES -- To solve the sinking sewer problem in Saugerties, an entirely new technique for laying sewer mains in the Barclay Heights Sewer Improvement District will have to be found.

But that hasn't deterred Supervisor Frank Greco from seeking a solution that will put the contractor back on the job. Greco isn't throwing in any manhole covers yet. He thinks the contractor, Halmar Construction Company, "will come up with some sort of solution this town can agree with."

But, along with any new technique submitted, Halmar is expected to come in with a new dollar figure for additional costs resulting from the underground condition that led to a standstill on the sewer project. After work began on the Simmons Drive main, it sank almost a foot over one brief weekend.

"We had an unforeseeable problem that was not discovered until we got down as deep as we did," said Greco. The problem, still unresolved, resulted from quicksand some 25 feet below the surface.

The extensive vein of soapy clay silt had not shown up in the original test borings. Halmar, faced with the problem of maintaining soil stability, asked for more money for the new specifications necessary. Work stopped and the town put the matter into the hands of its attorney.

Eventually, both the town and the contractor sought expert soil engineering advice. Meetings held on the matter have resembled "battlefield" scenes, said Greco, as experts have mounted their guns to discuss the soil problems that led to work stoppage and more money demands.

The clay vein beneath the depth of the trench is the crux of the argument. Greco said the town can't fault the contractor for a whim of nature, and that town officials "will have to make some sort of recognition of how engineers and Halmar will proceed to remedy the problem." If that means more money, as well as a new technique, the town seemed prepared to recognize that fact, too.

Once a decision has been reached that will put Halmar back to work, Greco said, Saugerties officials will meet with Barclay Heights homeowners.

The contract in dispute is Contract 1A on Route 9W, where leakage resulted, and Simmons Drive, where sinking again occurred. A second contract, 1B, awarded for the laying of sewer lateral lines in the Heights development, moved rapidly ahead this week. Councilman Jerome Daley said the Delta and TCB Construction firms of Connecticut had already installed several hundred feet of pipe and several manholes. "The crews of the companies have encountered no problems whatsoever in their work on Appletree Drive," he said.

Ulster 4-H Delegation Winner at State Fair

KINGSTON — A delegation of 80 Ulster County 4-H'ers, the largest ever, compiled a tremendous record at the recent New York State Fair in Syracuse. Ulster County was not only represented in almost all 4-H activities, but showed continued strength in all program areas.

For the fourth time in five years, Ulster County had the state tractor driving champion in the person of Keith Alexander of New Paltz. Keith dominated the contest from the beginning when he placed first on the written test.

Keith will represent New York State in the Eastern Regional Tractor Contest in Richmond, Va., later this month. Jess Meyer of Accord placed seventh in the state contest and will also go to Richmond as a spectator.

In another state contest where Ulster County is beginning to make itself known, Jonathan DeWitt of Rifton led the Ulster 4-H automotive team to a fifth place finish. Jonathan placed third individually and won a handsome trophy. His partner, Kathleen Jenkins, also of Rifton, placed fifth individually after having received her driver's license only one month before the contest.

The 29 Ulster 4-H dog members, the largest delegation at the fair, again compiled an excellent record, highlighted by the 12-member drill team that permanently retired the drill team challenge trophy by winning it for the third consecutive time.

Other outstanding accomplishments were: a grand championship in grooming and handling for Cheryl Highwart of Kingston; a reserve grand championship in the graduate novice class for Mary Pacini of Kingston; and a blue ribbon for excellence for the drill team, Katherine Goodrich of New Paltz, Geraldine Hoffman of Stone Ridge, Debbie Morgan of Stone Ridge, and Mary Pacini. This year's delegation won 37 blue ribbon awards for excellence, 10 red awards and two white awards.

In the highest finish ever, the horse judging team of Joanne Laymen and Donna Myer of Saugerties, Kathy Richter of Esopus and Curt Bradley of New Salem placed third among 30 teams. Joanne placed sixth individually, Donna 19th and Kathy 21st among 118 participants. All three will attend a clinic at Cornell University where a state horse judging team will be selected.

Highlights of this year's performance classes were: a first place in the bareback equitation junior division for Tammy Bradley of New Salem; a first place in stock seat equitation, senior division, for Patty Piscotta of Gardiner; a second in western reining and bareback equitation, senior division, for Jill Snow of Kingston; a first in fitting and showmanship by Estelle Lens of Plattekill; a first in English trail by Mary Krause of Gardiner; a master showmanship award in working hunter for Janet Walker of Clintondale; and a first in fitting and showmanship, senior division, for Kelly Wager of Plattekill.

In the herdsman's program, an indication of how well the delegation maintained its animals and facilities, Ulster placed among the top counties. The regional championship Horse Bowl team was defeated by Niagara County in one of the final matches at the fair.

Every member of the sheep delegation made an excellent showing, with Tane Elander's animal winning a breed grand championship while his sister's animal won a breed reserve grand championship. In addition to the Elanders, who are from Highwoods, Peter and Linda Barley and Nick Lapp of Accord competed.

In one of the most competitive fields at the state fair, Ulster County won five blue, four red and four white awards. Included were excellent awards for showmanship to Margaret Davis of Kerhonkson and George Barley of Accord.

The dairy judging team, Frank Coddington, Stone Ridge, Sal Sgroi, Lake Katrine, Cheri Kelder, Stone Ridge, and Dorothy Runowich of Wallkill, placed 38th.

The 4-H vegetable judging team placed 13th, paced by Donna Till of Mt. Marion, who finished 16th individually. Donna will again have an opportunity to attend an advanced training program at Cornell University in November, at which time a state vegetable judging team will be selected.

Diana Netzley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Netzley of Accord, was the winner in the 4-H landscaping program. She will be the guest of the New York State Nurserymen's Association for an all-expense trip to the 4-H Club Congress in Chicago with other New York state program winners.

Linda Crisman of Stone Ridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Crisman, placed in the top five in the state 4-H clothing revue, a tremendous accomplishment because there are from 25,000 to 30,000 4-H clothing members throughout the state.

Food exhibitors won nine blues, 14 reds and five whites. They included Kim Intemann, Joanne Fisher, Lisa Romeo, Patricia Parmelee, Karen Elander, Amy Russell, Patricia DePetrillo, Gregory Decker, Bonnie Hunter, Kathleen Driscoll, Lena Scaringi, Cheryl Gunderson, Mary Petramale, Thresa Gilbert, Susan Buckbee, Kathy Cross, Sandy Lapp, Laura Schleiter, Ann and Margaret Formica, Russell Martin, Mary Aprea, Patricia Polinsky, Suzanne Evans, Kyle Schoonmaker, Jackie Walbroehl, Jennifer Stokes and Karen Elander.

Clothing exhibitors, who won seven blues, two reds and two whites, included Margaret Formica, Lisa Cea, Ann Marrott, Amy Russell, Sharon Worden, Martha Steuding, Cindy Russell, Barbara and Carol Myer, Norah Gaughan and Linda Crisman.

Housing and design exhibitors, who ended up with six blues and two reds, were Diana Netzley, Judi Powers, Missy Egbertson, Lisa Oldham, Eleanor Scott and Kristen Schleiter. Handyman exhibitors included Ralph Buckbee and Ted Nelson, who won one blue and two reds.

The county vegetable exhibit took 19 blues, 16 reds and 12 whites. Included were Richard Clarke, Linda Crisman, Nora and Robert Drumberg, Kathy Gertra, Anne Hogan, Kathleen Jenkins, Heidi Kuebler, Rose Ann Lapp, Belinda McClurg, Fred and Robert Newell, Patricia Parmelee, Grace Poenicke, Susan and Clifford Sauer, Donna and Karen Till, Harley Williams and Eric Yuran.

In ornamental horticulture, four exhibitors took two blues, one red and one white. Exhibitors were Diana Netzley, Michele Walten and Kristen and Pam Kobayashi. In natural resources Steven Rider of Accord received a blue for his maple syrup exhibit.

F. Thomas Atkins, extension agent for the 4-H division, extended his thanks to the many hard working 4-H leaders, junior leaders, members and parents for their dedication and perseverance in making this another banner year for Ulster County 4-H.

JOHN D. MILLER

To Hall of Fame

PEARL RIVER — A pioneer leader in the Dairymen's League, now Dairyrea Cooperative, has been named as one of 12 charter members of the National Cooperative Hall of Fame in Washington, D.C.

Judge John D. Miller, who died in 1946 at the age of 90, was active in dairy cooperative affairs for nearly 50 years and had served since 1917 as general counsel to the Dairymen's League Cooperative.

Miller was a practicing farmer from the age of 20, operating a farm in Thompson, Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania. One of his first legal duties after passing his bar examination at age 34 was drawing up the corporation papers for an area dairy cooperative. This led him to early interest in the new Dairymen's League, which was then struggling along as a purely bargaining cooperative.

The Dairymen's League Miller helped build, now Dairyrea Cooperative, is the largest milk marketing cooperative owned by farmers in the northeast United States.

New logo for the "Open Gate" prison newspaper is set for the next issue. It is published irregularly, but staffers want to professionalize their efforts. The paper was named for a quote from the I Ching: "Therefore they called the closing of the gate the receptive and the opening of the gates the creative. The alteration between the opening and the closing they call change."

Communications Workshop Helps Prisoners Reach for Life

By TIM SCHUSTER
Freeman staff

STORMVILLE, N.Y.—The word comes up time after time on a taped conversation at Green Haven prison with Gary McGivern: Struggle.

Visiting the state institution recently as part of the inmates' Communications Workshop, this reporter found a group of long term prisoners intensely occupied with trying to break down barriers of communication with each other, with visitors, with the inmate population, and "the outside" by working together on projects—a newspaper, videotape, newsletters, photography, poetry, layout, and just plain talking and listening.

McGivern and Charles Culhane were convicted of the murder of a Westchester County sheriff's deputy in February, 1975 in their third trial in Ulster County Court, stemming from a 1968 incident on the Thruway near Plattekill. They have both been in prison since 1966, first sentenced on a $33 gas station robbery.

Selection of attorneys to represent them in their appeal is underway, and they expect to file in the Third Appellate Division before the end of this year.

In February, 1975 the two were sent back to Green Haven from Kingston where Gary has remained. Chuck was sent first to Clinton prison upstate, then to Sing Sing, and a few months ago returned to Green Haven.

The way McGivern explains the value of the Communications Workshop is instructive of his own personal growth following a conscious decision "four or five years ago" to reach for life instead of death, as he phrased it.

"A dude will come to the workshop and look in the door. I'll say, 'Hey, come on in.' He is looking for some human experience. I can understand where that dude is at. There are tremendous restrictions here. We are drawn to anything creative and warm. People need responsibility. There is none here."

He speaks emphatically, the words tumbling out so quickly that I know he has spent many hours getting his ideas together, in fact many years.

"Part of the value of the workshop is that it gives people the tools to experiment with themselves. A guy can spend a four year term playing checkers. He goes back to the same neighborhood and will probably show up back here again. When you're a lifer it's different. At this point, whether I'm inside or outside the jailhouse, I'm going to live."

The word "change" is another one often repeated. McGivern does not slow down his conversation with adjectives and adverbs. The nouns and verbs drive it along...with words like motivation, challenge, possibilities, and struggle.

He is orally sophisticated, but admits he "can't spell worth a damn." The room is filled with a constant flow of men who wander in to help with the newspaper layout, type out some copy, or just see what's going on. The population includes some people whose names are famous from press coverage, but most are known only by their families and friends on the outside.

We shake hands with H. Rap Brown, who covers prison sports. Sal Agron, editor, has spent 17 years in prison following a killing in teenage gangland style when he was only 16. His picture was on the front page of the Daily News, I remember, as Salvatore the Cape Man who carried an umbrella. It is a maximum security prison, but the inmates and visitors are left alone for hours in a room that could be anywhere until you look out the windows and see the walls, bars, and guard towers.

I can't help but contrast the fact that visitors must pass through a metal detection unit upon entrance to the prison, but the convicted murderers and other maximum security prisoners are happily slicing up paper with razor blades for the next edition of the "Open Gate". The talk among people is non-stop and forces concentration.

"I tape myself and then play it back," says McGivern, "to see if I'm talking any jive or really communicating." These men know jive when they hear it.

McGivern recounts with pleasure an example of helping to get someone involved. When the Culhane-McGivern Defense League published a newsletter early this year (its address is Box 268, Bearsville, N.Y. 12409) some artwork by Butch Tyler was chosen for the cover. Tyler, serving a 20 year to life sentence, has spent 14 of his 31 years in various state institutions.

"His work was great, but he had no connections on the outside," said McGivern. "When he saw the newsletter complete, his eyes just lit up and smiled."

Chuck Culhane and I happened to have a friend in common, somebody who had gone to St. Joseph's School in the Bronx with him many years before. The environment was not conducive to a creative sense of values. "Just to stay out of jail is really a challenge," commented McGivern.

Of the $33 holdup some 10 years ago it was stated, "It wasn't the money. It was an expression of outrage. I'd never go back to the city when I get out." And McGivern added, "I can see my own struggles happening in other people."

Part of the success of the workshop, as measured by inmates, is the mix of different ethnic groups that are involved, unusual in a prison and unusual on the outside, as various sects of Muslims, Spanish-speaking prisoners, the white "red neck crowd" as described by McGivern, and the rest work together with a minimum of difficulty. It seems like a sort of intoxication, the group dialogue that opens doors, emphasizing the commonality of their problems rather than the miniscule differences.

Those spoken with thought that the major change in the state prison system since the Attica uprising was the change in areas of communication. It has become more open, with visitors and the press allowed easier access.

"Prisons are basically the same," reflected McGivern. "When you look at a cage, it says something."

Some of what it says to those locked inside for years at a stretch was heard on radio station WBAI from New York City Aug. 26. It is powerful poetry. Said McGivern, "Poetry is not meant to entertain. It's meant to raise consciousness."

It was recorded out of the Creative Workshop at the prison last December by "a strange combination of hustlers, pimps, Panthers, Puerto Rican Nationalists, political activists, and members of the human family that clashed in dynamic harmony," it was stated in "Open Gate."

Vibes to My Grandmother

Grandma's hands warm and tender
I miss them
While never knowing her,

Her tears silent and deep and dreams of her day flourish like flowers in the garden but not paradise only botanical

Grandma's feet like pecan shells
brown in color with bunions and corns yet soft and sturdy and determined;

Her hair flowing like ripples on ponds and innocent looking as a wrinkle on a prune her breast soft and I sleep and I am not alone,

Grandma's eyes somberly cold blue and far away
yet at home and belonging to us,

Ivory white teeth capped in black gold she smiles and sucks me in her nostrils then upon a sliding board I soar then fall into her lap,

Grandma's lips rest upon my cheek then I gaze and I'm walking and she's stilled,

But she still lives in me soft and hard evil and bitter but proud and I love her for she is my Grandmother...

DEAR ABBY

Her Father Is a Charmer and a Chaser, But Daughter's Concerned about Conquest's Gifts

DEAR ABBY: My father has always been a charmer and a chaser. His latest conquest is a wealthy widow who's on in years. She's been giving my father large sums of money.

My mother knows what's going on, but she doesn't care. In fact she encourages it to the point of dialing this woman's number and handing the phone to Dad.

Mother says the woman is stupid and has more money than she knows what to do with. Furthermore, Dad is performing an act of mercy in brightening the poor old woman's life. She's not senile, just lonely.

Her sole heir is a married son. If he finds out how much money my father has taken from his mother, can he make trouble for him? (Legally, that is?)—WORRIED DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Only if the son can prove that his mother is incompetent and/or has been defrauded by your father. As I understand it, the woman GAVE him money. He merely accepted it. A gift is still a gift.

DEAR ABBY: A few years back, you published a letter in which a reader told you off, saying that God alone was the only truly qualified "Family Planner."

I clipped it out to save and now I can't find it. If you recall that letter will you please run it again? I thought your answer was one of your best.—RUTH C. IN LA JOLLA

DEAR RUTH: I found it. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Since God alone can create life, and since God alone knows what tomorrow brings, He alone is truly qualified as a Family Planner.

How did a smart girl like you ever get taken in by Planned Parenthood?—A LONG-TIME ADMIRER

DEAR ADMIRER: I read the figures on population explosion and saw the pictures of thousands of starving children born of parents who did not want them and could not feed them. I then concluded that a just God could not possibly have given life to innocent children only to doom them to death by starvation in their infancy.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I are senior citizens, and our problem is Joey, our 16-year-old grandson. He was picked up for possession of marijuana, and even worse, he is also a pusher. He is on probation now.

Joey's mother (our daughter) is divorced from his father. Joey was living with his father because his mother couldn't handle him. Since this happened, Joey's father refuses to keep him. He told his mother just to turn the kid out in the street and let him live like the bum he is. (At 16!)

Our daughter can't handle him, and his father wants nothing to do with him.

I remember when Joey was just a little shaver, I'd play with him, and he always wanted to be the "good guy" because the good guys always won. What happened to him?

—HEARTBROKEN GRANDPA

DEAR HEARTBROKEN:

I don't know what happened to him, but I suspect he was brought up in a home without love and guidance. And unless someone succeeds in establishing a truly caring and consistent relationship with this 16-year-old, he's a cinch to be a big problem to himself, his family and society.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Local Jewish Families Prepare For Rosh Hashanah Holy Day

Cheese Blintzes for the High Holy Days

KINGSTON—The High Holy Days, the first 10 days of the Jewish calendar New Year, begin this year on Sept. 25. Opening with Rosh Hashanah and ending 10 days later with Yom Kippur, Oct. 4, this solemn season is a time of penitence and prayer.

For all their seriousness the High Holy Days are not a time of sadness. In fact after the evening service at the synagogue, Jewish tables are festive and special foods are the order of the day. Emphasis is on sweet to symbolize the hopes for a joyful, successful year.

Anne Breuer (Mrs. Harold Breuer of 183 Pearl St.) says carrots are served on Rosh Hashanah because of their symbolism: "round and golden like coins for man's prosperity, and honeyed, for a sweet year. The Rosh Hashanah carrot tzimmes should be glazed and made without the usual flour sauce.

Carrot Tzimmes

large carrots
salted water to cover
½ cup honey
4 tablespoons sugar
4 tablespoons cooking oil lemon rind
dash ginger (if desired)

Cut the carrots into slices and just cover with salted water. Boil 10 minutes. Add the honey, sugar, and oil. Cook gently until the liquid is absorbed and the carrots slightly glazed (about 30 minutes.) Sprinkle with lemon rind and ginger, if desired. (serves six to eight.)

Pre-cooked sweet potatoes and prunes can be added to the carrots. "This dish may be prepared ahead of time, frozen, and then reheated in the oven before serving," explains Mrs. Breuer, so one may have more time to polish traditional pieces for the Yomtov table, (Kiddush Cups, Candlesticks)

Jewish cuisine includes an astonishing assortment of blintzes and cheese blintzes, a leading favorite for meals during the High Holy Days. The recipe for Cheese Blintzes pictured here is made with Planters Peanut Oil which is an all-purpose cooking and salad oil.

Cheese Blintzes

Makes 15 blintzes
1 pound dry or uncreamed cottage cheese
1 package (3-ounce) cream cheese, softened
¼ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon ground cinnamon
4 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon peanut oil
1 cup milk
1 cup unsifted flour
½ cup peanut oil
sour cream

Combine cottage cheese, cream cheese, sugar, cinnamon and 1 egg until thoroughly blended. Set aside.

Combine remaining 3 eggs, salt, 1 teaspoon peanut oil and milk. Beat in flour until smooth. Pour 2 tablespoons batter into a hot, lightly oiled 6-inch skillet. Tilt pan to spread batter evenly. Cook over medium-high heat until bottom is lightly browned. Remove from pan, browned side up. Place 2 tablespoons filling in center. Fold opposite sides in, to form a rectangle. Repeat with remaining batter and filling.

Heat ½ cup peanut oil in large skillet until hot. Fry blintzes on each side until golden brown. Remove from pan; drain on paper toweling. Serve hot with sour cream.

'Celebrate: Birth of Woman' Conference Set at New Paltz

NEW PALTZ—The culmination of a series of women's study programs at the State University College at New Paltz will be a wide-ranging conference, "Celebrate: Birth of Woman," to be held at the college Oct. 9 and 10.

The conference will be a weekend of seminars, workshops, creative art productions (including theatre, music, graphics, literature and film) by women and directed toward the transformation of woman," according to Prof. Carley Bogard, who is an assistant professor of English. The conference is co-sponsored by the Danforth Foundation which last winter awarded a $2,000 grant to Prof. Bogard and her colleagues, Profs. Jane Lee Yare, Eleanor Kuykendall and Ingrid Lorch Turner, to support their programs.

Professor Yare, coordinator of Women's Studies at New Paltz, said there will be 30 presentations or events during the weekend, with attendance limited to 100 persons.

A registration fee is a maximum of $5 per person, depending on ability to pay. Registrations should be sent to Prof. Jane Lee Yare, 101 Anthropology House, State University College, New Paltz, N.Y. 12561.

Winners Named in UCAA's Largest Show to Date

KINGSTON—Kristy Bishop of Saugerties has taken first place for the second consecutive year at the Ulster County Art Association Show presented by the Ulster Savings Bank, 280 Wall St. Her prize winning pastel this year was "The Blue Persian," No. 16.

Selections for awards were made by the viewing public and this year approximately 1,000 votes were cast. The show with 36 exhibits was the largest to date.

In second place was Myra Hamlin, former president of the association with her painting, "Floral," No. 32.

Third place winner was Mildred Lanier of Kingston, the association's art director, with a painting of white and yellow daisies, No. 35.

All three winning paintings will be on exhibit at the bank through Monday.

The Ulster County Art Association was organized in 1943 and currently meets in the YWCA, 209 Clinton Ave., the first Tuesday of each month. Its programming includes lectures, demonstrations of various art techniques and exhibitions. Jan Bleavins is president.

Coach House Opens 27th Season

KINGSTON—Coach House Players, the community theatre group, opened its 27th season recently with the annual kick-off dinner at the Coach House Building. Committees and business for the year were discussed and various projects related to the upcoming theatrical productions were established.

Although renovations are still proceeding on the Coach House building to restore the portions destroyed or damaged by fire last December, the building is usable. Rehearsals will continue as scheduled for all shows.

The new fall musical, "George M.," has been completely cast and rehearsals began last week under the direction of Paul Cooper. The musical, based on the life of George M. Cohan, is the Coach House Players' Bicentennial treat for its Kingston audiences. It will be performed Nov. 11, 12 and 13 at the J. Watson Bailey School in Kingston.

Ticket information may be obtained from Mrs. Edward Finn, ticket chairperson; by calling Coach House Players in the evening, or by writing to Coach House players, 12 Augusta St., Kingston. Series tickets for all three productions are available at $7.

Inmates to Hold Benefit Art Show

NAPANOCH—Inmates belonging to the Eastern New York Correctional Facility's Breakthru in the Arts organization will sponsor an Art Show open to the public, Saturday, Sept. 25, for the benefit of the Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation.

The art show will be held in the facility's outside visitation area located in front of the main entrance. This fund raising drive is scheduled to begin at noon and end at 3 p.m. In the event of inclement weather, the Art Show will be held inside the facility.

Sickle Cell Anemia is a blood disorder of the Black Race. Approximately two-thirds of the 700 inmates at the facility are black and the members of the Breakthru in the Arts organization stated that their main concern is to be able to help those afflicted with the crippling disease. Each member will donate $1 toward the cause.

All proceeds from the Art Show will be sent to Dick Campbell, executive director of the Sickle Cell Anemia Foundation of Greater New York.

Refreshments will be served.

NUTRITION AND SURVIVAL

By JACK SOLTANOFF, D.C.

SLEEP SECRETS

Sleep has often been called "The Little Brother of Death."

"Sleep is a unique habit of life, universally experienced by all but still universally a mystery," states M. Kleitman, MD, perhaps the greatest authority on the subject of sleep.

There have been many attempts to define sleep but up to this time no one has succeeded.

Although sleep seems to be, in a way, the opposite of life, it is an absolute essential component of life. So much so that where there is life there must be sleep.

Most of us simply accept going to sleep as a commonplace fact but it is actually an extraordinary phenomenon. Although sleep has been studied and observed intensively by many researchers, we still do not know exactly what sleep is nor what brings it about. Nor do we know what it is that awakens us in the morning in a natural way, or when we are shaken manually or aroused by a sudden noise.

We do know that the purpose of sleep is to replace and regenerate energy and tissues, which are broken down and expended during our daily activities. We also know that sleep which is so essential to all living creatures, is needed in wide variations. These variations are seen not only in different human beings and in different species but even in the same individual under different conditions and in different stages of life.

There are different sleep requirements.

Some healthy people may require more sleep than others — some require less. When faced with danger or in times of stress we may not sleep for many hours or even for several days.

We are likely also to be wide awake until two, three or even four o'clock in the morning when reading an unusually interesting or absorbing book. On the other hand a boring or monotonous book or activity will tend to start us yawning and dozing.

Age is a factor in sleep. Older people even though in good health need less sleep; sometimes requiring not more than four to five hours. A rule of thumb for sleep requirements of different age groups: a baby needs at least 18 hours of sleep out of every 24 hours, reduced approximately one hour for every year of life up to age five. Then the amount of sleep required goes down roughly by one hour every five years until full growth is reached.

Most normal five year olds need 12 to 14 hours of sleep; at 10 the same child is likely to need only 10 to 11 hours and from then on usually goes slowly down for the majority of us until age 20 or 21 the normal adult eight hours will have been reached.

Health is an important factor in sleep.

Even though the need for sleep varies with each individual an onset of illness can alter the pattern radically from the norm in either direction.

Insomnia is an important symptom in many ailments. Especially important factors, leading to insomnia, are worry and poor sleeping habits.

Sleep is as basic and fundamental to the function of living as is sex and hunger.

The health of most individuals will deteriorate unless they have a minimum of five to six hours sleep nightly.

Scientific experiments on human volunteers have proven convincingly that lack of sleep gradually distorts the body and mind out of all recognition.

When several of these subjects had their nightly sleep quota reduced from six to four hours their entire personalities underwent considerable change.

Previously, they had been polite, understanding, respectful and cultured in every way. In a few days they became abrupt, uncouth, sarcastic and irritable to the point of rudeness.

In order to prove that this change was due solely to lack of sleep: these volunteers were then allowed to sleep again for two successive nights. After the second night's sleep they had all returned to their former calm selves. When the experiment was again repeated they again became bitter, aggressive and hostile to everyone. But they again returned to less aggressive and more polite ways after several days of additional sleep.

There is no doubt that permanent insomnia or lack of sleep can bring about radical and drastic changes in the mildest of temperaments and can lead to serious mental and or physical illness.

Life itself can be terminated if sleep is withheld long enough.

There is no machine in existence and certainly not the delicate intricate human one that can go on working efficiently without some rest. During the process of sleep the human machine does keep on working. But the vital functions which are necessary for life go on at a slower rate.

This is the first of a two-part article. Part II will be published this coming Wednesday, and will discuss do's and don't's for a good night's sleep.

Doctor Soltanoff, a West Hurley chiropractor and nutritional adviser, does not prescribe or diagnose. He reports on various fields of health every Sunday and Wednesday and welcomes questions from readers.

Mother Earth News

Our Planet Viewed as a Single Organism

Science traditionally has held to the attitude that natural organisms are a product of the environment: those fit to survive, survive... and those unfit, perish. "Ecology" is usually referred to as the relationship which exists between natural organisms and their environment, with the influence of the environment predominating.

Recently, however, a British scientist, James Lovelock, made a rather radical proposal which he calls the "Gaia hypothesis" (after the Greek goddess of the earth). His suggestion is that the theory of evolution, as we understand it, is a complete reversal of what actually occurs, in that we attribute the weight of influence to environment rather than to the living organism.

The germ of Lovelock's theory comes from observations made of outer space photographs of Earth, in which the earth's mantle of atmosphere — drawn about her like a cloak — suggested to him a protective modification of the environment (such as a snail might find in its shell).

"If all the life organisms on earth are subtly interrelated," he reasoned, "is it not possible that it is, in fact, one organism... one Life? And is it not possible that Life has in large measure shaped the environment of the earth to its requirements, rather than being primarily a product of environmental circumstance?"

Life on earth, Lovelock feels, clearly exhibits the characteristic of being a single organism with man in the midst. And man, because of his nature, should be capable of functioning something like a central nervous system to the whole, thereby enhancing its development.

Man, however, has failed in this responsibility and, instead, proceeds willy-nilly to alter the environment without regard for the greater organism he centers. He alters the environment on impulse — an impulse which disregards the life of the whole.

Lovelock suggests that Life began to shape its expression on earth many millions of years ago. It did this by creating the atmosphere we now know from random gases and for the purpose of developing a suitably protective mantle that would allow the more delicate expressions of the organism is deteriorating rapidly. He cites for example, that an immense danger is emerof industrial technology put together.

Man's efforts to feed his proliferating population have resulted in "modern" farming techniques and the wholesale use of inorganic methods. Techniques and methods that disrupt the balance of the whole organism have begun to destroy delicately balanced ecological systems within the organism.

Gaea needs these systems, such as the previously mentioned atmosphere which, when properly maintained, supplies the oxygen we need, filters out the sun's dangerous cosmic rays and keeps them from harming us.

Constantly, urged on by his nature to ignorant, self-centered manipulation of the natural environment, man is rather like a radically disruptive central nervous system to the whole; inaccurate in his perceptions and destructive in his compulsive modifications.

Not only has man renege on his true responsibilities as an integral part of the living organism, but he has also injected into the whole patterns of behavior which in turn disrupts and destroys the natural unconscious functions of the organism.

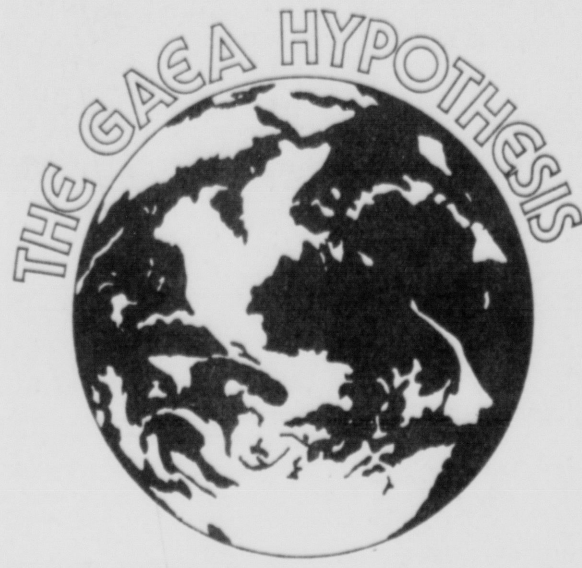

Man prides himself on his intelligence, perception, vision, and the gift of reason. He sets himself proudly aside as the one creature with the capacity for self-consciousness that Life has brought forth on this earth.

Yet, to what purpose has this "self-consciousness" of the whole organism (which comes to focus in man) been put... other than to the self-centered, blind satisfaction of human greed. Man exploits the organism for his own use in much the same way as an individual might abuse his body to satisfy some incomprehensible and irrational craving.

A simple truth of Life on earth is that the whole survives or nothing does; just as the survival of the body is essential to the survival of the mind. Rather than justifying human function as it has been known on earth, man is well overdue for a dose of humility and a move toward picking up his responsibilities as an integral part of the natural organism of this earth.

larger organism to emerge. Life, then — human beings notwithstanding — is significantly intelligent and has direction.

ing from the practices of modern agriculture. A greater danger to Life, in fact, is developing in this area of man's activities than in all the other pollution-producing activities

Interestingly enough, the scientific community is finding that many supposed anomalies are explained by Lovelock's hypothesis. According to the laws of chemistry, for instance, most of the oxygen and nitrogen in the atmosphere should have ended up in the seas as nitrate ions long ago. Biological factors, however, do not permit this. Rather, they modify the chemical process to the advantage of the living organism.

They use the process to continuously refresh the atmosphere.

Lovelock — whose work on industrial pollution is supported by numerous large corporations — indicates that the health of the one earth or-

Life with the House Plants Is No Rose Garden

Okay, gang, I've had it with the house plants.

I mean it. For the last six months, I've misted, sprayed, fertilized, watered, prayed and hummed over that jungle of parrots and I'm ready to throw in the towel.

Oh sure, the experts made it sound so easy. You just buy a little pot, set it on the window sill, and watch it grow. Then you get another one for the coffee table, and another for the bath and when all the wall space is gone, you hang them from ceilings and then you bring in the big stuff on dollies, and the next thing you know you're the sole support of a forest.

No one promised me a rose garden, but maintaining a house full of greenery is as much fun as being social director at a mausoleum.

Plants talk all right. And don't let anyone tell you they don't. They brush up against you and nag, "WATER ME! WATER ME!" They wait until you have company, then turn brown and cough. Forget to feed them one lousy year and they become jaundiced and get sick. And once when I ignored a split leaf philodendron for a few weeks, there was a message in the dust on a leaf that read, "WATER IF YOU LOVE JESUS." You think I don't know how that got there?

And what rewards do I have for my vigilance? My Creeping Charlie doesn't. My Wandering Jew hasn't been anywhere in months and my Dracena is a drag. (Figuratively speaking.)

They have dominated my entire life. Whenever I leave the house for any length of time, I have to have a plant sitter. A plant calendar has some chore pencilled in for every day. And I have never planned a party that one of my plants didn't croak on me.

I read in a woman's magazine once that there were 15 plants you couldn't kill.

The problem is my entire estate is tied up in those leeches. The other day as I pointed to the pots of limp, sagging, leafless, straggling leaves and vines, I said to my daughter, "Someday, all of this will be yours."

She's been gone for three days.

New Circuit a Real Break

There is a new electrical circuit on the market that is probably one of the best safety devices to be invented for the homeowner in many a year. The following letter from one of our readers describes it.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I think my electrician is trying to take advantage of me. I hired him to install an outlet in my bathroom for an electric razor. Now he is trying to sell me a very expensive job. He insists I should install something known as a "ground fault interrupter." He said that everybody should have one of these for their bathroom circuits. If he is telling the truth, I'll spend the money. I'll leave the answer up to you. — WHAT FAULT?

Several years ago I witnessed an exhibit of the ground fault interrupter. A woman stood in a bathtub filled with water and was handed a live electric wire. The ground fault interrupter tripped the circuit breaker, even before she felt an electric shock.

Your electrician is not taking advantage of you. He is, in fact, very conscientious. The time is rapidly approaching when ground fault interrupters will be specified for all bathroom and swimming pool circuits. In the most simple terms, this device is a very sensitive circuit breaker that adds an extra element of safety for areas where the danger of electric shocks are the greatest.

If you feel that the additional peace of mind is worthwhile for the expense, then you should go ahead with the installation.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I have been reading many articles recently about solar heating. We are in the process of building a new house. Would you recommend that I consider solar heating? — SUN POWER.

In my opinion, solar heating is still in the experimental stage. It will be some time before it has proven itself for use by the general public.

In addition, there are not enough solar heating units sold in this country to make the price economical as yet. I predict that within several years the concept will become more popular and the cost for a solar heating installation will become competitive with conventional heating systems.

Right now the proponents of solar heat show that the fuel savings over the years will more than offset the initial installation expense.

This concept is contrary to the thinking of the American homebuyer. Americans like to spend less money "up front" and spread the balance over as many years as possible.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: My son is trying to install a photographic darkroom in our basement. He plans to use an old washtub that is located in the corner.

I am concerned that the photographic chemicals will damage our plumbing system. Can you tell me if I am right? — PHOTOGENIC.

Don't worry. The chemicals used for amateur photography are very mild. You may find that some of the odors coming from the basement are not so mild, however. Also, there should be a slight increase in your water consumption, as most prints must be washed in running water.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Please explain the long delay encountered on GI loans. We vets were not slow to respond to induction and military service at low pay for two or more years. — UNHAPPY KOREAN VET.

A combination of things — red tape, constantly changing forms, constantly changing laws, variations in requirements, etc.

Semicircular Driveways Not for Everyone

By GEORGE E. CREED

The principal advantages of semicircular driveways are these: 1. They provide easy access to the house. 2. They make plenty of space for parking. The disadvantages are also twofold: 1. Because of their length they are expensive. 2. They cover a considerable area with pavement which reflects much heat in summer and requires added snow removal in winter.

If you have adequate space and the money, you still might want a driveway of this kind. Space is important. The more space you have available for this purpose the more comfortable it will be driving over your driveway. The dimensions shown on the plan are adequate for both of these.

As in any kind of driveway, careful driving is a factor. A careless driver even on a wide driveway can run over the edges and make ruts in a lawn. On a semicircular drive, careful driving is important because it is not always easy to judge the location of the edges of the pavement. This is especially so in the winter when snow covers the driveway. For this reason curbing is recommended.

For a driveway of this kind a 10-foot width should be the minimum, although even the largest automobiles are not this wide. A narrower driveway would make it very difficult for a driver to remain on the drive surface.

Using the data shown on the plan, it is obvious that a driveway that will accommodate delivery trucks, larger vehicles and be comfortable to drive a car on cannot be built on a narrow lot.

Q. Is it beneficial to spray evergreens with water?

A. Yes, especially during drought conditions. This removes soot and dust from the needles.

Q. Can you give me the names of several good trees that will do well in damp conditions?

A. You might try one of these — Pin Oak, Sourgum, Larch or Bald Cypress.

Booklets available at cost: To receive any one of the following, write me in care of this newspaper enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and requested amount of money. The prices are: ORNAMENTAL SHRUBS, 20 cents in coin; DECIDUOUS TREES FOR THE SMALL HOME, 20 cents in coin;

MAKING A LAWN, 20 cents in coin; CONIFEROUS EVERGREENS, 10 cents in coin; PRUNING TREES, SHRUBS AND EVERGREENS, 10 cents in coin.

Proper Care of Spotted Dumb Cane

By KATHERINE WALKER

Spotted dumb cane (Dieffenbachia picta) is one of the best-known of all the dieffenbachias. Its large leaves, glossy and rather heavy textured, are randomly variegated with splashes and blotches of white, usually concentrated toward the leaf centers, leaving an irregular border of fresh green.

Juvenile plants form straight, green canes, or stems; on older plants the canes thicken and the weight of the top growth causes them to bow slightly or lean to one side. A heavily foliaged plant can lean far enough to topple right out of its pot, or take the pot over with it. To prevent accidents of this sort, stake your plant to support its weight properly.

Because dieffenbachias tend to be single-stemmed plants, and because it's normal for them to drop many of their older leaves as they form new ones, it often happens that plants become too leggy to be attractive, even though they may still have good foliage near the top. If this happens to your plant, use a sharp knife or clippers to cut off the top portion a few inches below the leaves. Set this to root in water or damp soil; pot with the parent plant when roots begin forming.

Meanwhile, continue to care for the cut-back plant (don't overwater; it won't need much without its leafy top), and within a short time new growth should start from one or more nodes below the cut. If you're lucky, and two new shoots appear, these together with the newly rooted top in the pot will give a pleasingly full look. (If only one shoot emerges, wait until it is several inches long, then cut the stem of the old plant again, this time below the former cut.)

For best growth keep your dumb cane warm, provide partial shade, and water heavily whenever the soil feels dry. If you have a large area with an exposure suitable for dieffenbachias, try grouping several varieties together. By keeping each cut back to a different height, you can make a truly stunning display of overlapping leaves, rather like a tapestry.

When cutting dieffenbachias, don't forget that the juice is highly irritating to sensitive skin, and can cause severe reactions if it comes in contact with the eyes or mouth. Always scrub your hands thoroughly after working closely with a dieffenbachia, and keep your hands away from your face while doing the work. Wear rubber gloves if the sap causes a rash on your hands; don't forget to wash the gloves before you take them off.

For more information on toxic plants, both indoors and out, I suggest you read our little booklet titled "POISON — Handle With Care." I'm sure that having potentially poisonous plants around won't seem nearly as dangerous after you've read it! To obtain a copy, please write to me, Katherine B. Walker, in care of this paper, enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope plus 25 cents, and ask for the booklet by name.

Questions and Answers

Q. Help! My lovely large-leaved croton has just made a leaf that looks like next-to-nothing at all. It's small, and looks like it won't even be well-colored later on. What happened?

Q. I have quite a big collection of house plants that I truly enjoy, but somehow I can't seem to arrange them right. Low, trailing ones between big, upright growers make the shelves look better. They'd probably be even more attractive if I could set the trailers in front of the others, but my shelves are too narrow. Guess this problem isn't important enough to worry about, but it just seemed to me that maybe you'd have some suggestion.

A. And I do. Use slightly larger pots for your upright plants than they're in right now, then pot a low-grower in the same pot with the erect one. I make "collars" of low-growing plants for many of my big plants (dieffenbachias, kumquats, oleanders, etc.), setting them in a complete circle as close to the edge of the big pot as I can.

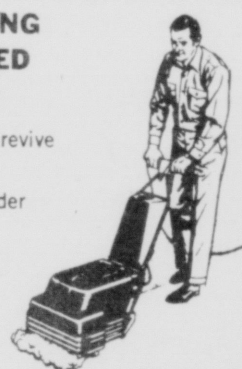

Home

A. I think by the time you read this, your croton will have flowered; the leaf you were so worried about is a bract that surrounds the stem of the flower-cluster.

Variety of Topics in Catholic Program

KINGSTON—The Ulster County Adult Religious Education program will begin its eight-week fall semester Tuesday, Sept. 28, at John A. Coleman High School, Hurley Avenue.

Sister Maureen Davey, director of the program, announced that courses will be offered in five areas.

The Rev. James Garcia, professor of liturgy at Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary, will offer a course entitled Christians at Worship: Origin and Development. Jesus lived and worshipped as a pious Jew. The early Jerusalem Christians were faithful to His example. The course will explore their forms of worship and how they continue today.

Sister Mary Lucy Flaherty of the Coleman High School faculty, will present a course entitled Human Development as Growing in Christ. This course will consider the relationship between a person's human development and his maturing in the Christian experience. The meaning of "commitment" will be explored by looking at some personages in the Old and New Testaments.

The Rev. Robert Miller of Mt. St. Alphonsus Seminary will offer a course entitled Our Church Today. The course will center on "how we got where we are today," the meaning of renewal in and for the church and how Catholic Christians of 1976 can respond and accept this new dynamism the church offers.

A new feature this year will be Evenings for Parents. This is a program designed for parents to look at where they are and to see their potential. It reinforces an awareness of the goodness of parents and the possibilities of having impact on their children. The course will be conducted by Frank and Joanne Sabatini and Fred and Mary Ann Loheide of Marriage Encounter.

This is the fifth semester that a course will be offered for high school students. Sister Elizabeth Anne DiPippo of Coleman, assisted by the Rev. Karl Esker of Mt. St. Alphonsus and Mrs. Patricia Murphy, will offer a course on Revelation: Human and Divine. Students and teachers will analyze the meaning of self-revelation in terms of human relationships.

Pre-registration is suggested. Registration forms may be obtained at St. Joseph's CCD Office. Information may be obtained also from the registrar, Mrs. Anna McGowan, 182 North Manor Ave., Kingston 12401.

Attendance pins and promotion certificates will be awarded. The 1976-77 church school staff under the direction of Stephen Rider, superintendent, will be installed. The Rev. Alvin F. Messersmith, pastor, will preside.

Holy Cross Classes

KINGSTON—After a lapse of several years, the Church of the Holy Cross, Pine Grove Avenue, will again have a Sunday school.

The starting date is Sept. 26 at 9 a.m. and classes will be held each Sunday after the 8 a.m. Eucharist.

There will be classes for all ages with a Bible class for older teens and a coffee and discussion group for adults.

Your Social Security

Documents Needed for Aid

By GEORGE J. HABERNIG
District Manager

KINGSTON—Knowing what to bring with you when you apply for social security or supplemental security payments can be a big help in getting faster action on your claim. The person who walks into a social security office with all the necessary proofs to apply for payments not only saves time but is spared the inconvenience of making one or more return trips with additional papers.

What kinds of proofs are needed? The answer, of course, depends on the type of benefit you are applying for. For almost all types, you need your social security card or a record of your number. If you are applying for retirement benefits you will also need proof of your age, your W-2 form from last year, or if you are self-employed, a copy of your latest Federal tax return.

You'll need your children's birth certificates if you are applying for benefits for them. If your wife is applying for benefits, she will need proof of her age. If she has a social security number, she should bring her card or a record of her number.

Proof of age continues to be the eligibility factor that causes problems for many people. Some people who think they are 65 discover that it may not be all that easy to prove. Too often a person's age on his or her current record—license or insurance policy—may not agree with the social security record when the original social security card was issued.

Social security's policy is to go with the birth certificate or baptismal certificate made at birth or within five years of birth as evidence. If necessary, however, old school records, census records, insurance policies, and other records can be used together to arrive at a person's correct age.

People planning to retire within the next year or so should begin gathering these proofs right now. On the other hand, don't delay an application just because you don't have all the proofs. The social security office can help to establish a particularly difficult eligibility factor.

A call to the office to find out what you should bring with you is the first step you should take in applying for social security or supplemental security income benefits.

If you are applying for disability or survivors insurance, the specific proofs you will need will depend on whether you are applying as a worker or a dependent. A worker applying for disability should have, in addition to most of the same proofs needed for retirement benefits, the names and addresses of the doctors and facilities which provided medical treatment. Dependents may need to prove relationship to the worker through marriage certificate or birth certificates. For survivors benefits, proof of death of the worker is required.

If you are 65 or over and are applying for supplemental security income payments, you'll need evidence showing things you own and recent earnings or income. These may include a checkbook, savings account books, stocks and bonds, life insurance policies, auto registration cards, latest real estate tax statement, and last year's income tax return and W-2 forms. If you're applying for SSI payments because of disability or blindness, you will also need the names and addresses of doctors, hospitals, or clinics that treated you for your disability.

Blood Pressure Clinic Set

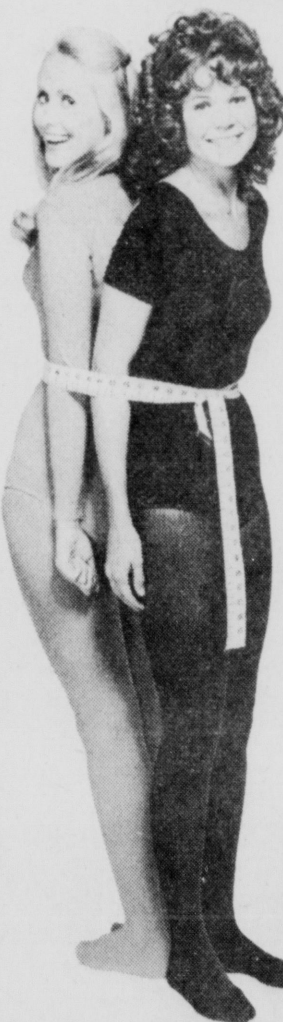

ULSTER—The Kingston Jaycees, the Saugerties Jaycees and Drug City will sponsor a blood pressure screening clinic Sunday, Sept. 19 at Drug City in the Ulster Shopping Plaza between 1 and 3 p.m.

The screening is free and all questionnaires used in the program are provided by the Mid-Hudson Heart Association.

A follow up on all persons found to be hypertensive will also be conducted to assure that proper medical help has been sought.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

SUNDAY, SEPT. 19

Your Birthday Today: During the coming year's healthy growth, pressures of increasing responsibility shape your development and motivate you to learn new and sharper skills. Relationships intensify; you're led to choose a central, all-important tie. Today's natives are original thinkers inclined toward writing and the study of literature. Candor and a delightful sense of humor are characteristic.

Aries (March 21-April 19): That bargain really isn't! Spend your own money; leave family and group funds intact. Visiting offers a chance to hear an old tale in a different context.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): While you make the traditional motions and gestures, your mind is full of plans. Be a good listener; somebody needs reassurance.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): Scattering influences continue in the form of temptations to overspend, outdo a neighbor or travel in style. Go in for mental pursuits.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): Observing others, with all their idiosyncracies, proves instructive. A little teasing resolves home situations. Guests offer help on financial matters.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): If you avoid hasty action, you have almost everything going for you. Those whose help you need in future must be taken into account.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You have a better chance to clear up an old issue if you stay near home base instead of traveling with people who stir controversy. Care for your health.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): There's much to do. Extra service is expected where you planned none. Rearrange your schedule, but not your finances or commitments.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take yourself in hand, review your habits, capabilities and intentions. Decide on a firm course toward a better way of life, and get started.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Abrupt shifts in conditions require some revision of plans to get maximum enjoyment from today's pleasant ambience. Correspondence yields information.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Stay out of the path of people selling doubtful propositions and get-rich-quick schemes. You state your case in clumsy terms and upset feelings of those you deal with.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Seek social contact and group activity within your normal range of acquaintanceship. Comparing notes with another hobbyist is great fun, up to a point.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Stick to what you know. It's a good day for self-improvement, serious studies, inventory and selection of possessions. Sell off a white elephant.

MONDAY, SEPT. 20

Your Birthday Today: This is your year to study metaphysical and psychic phenomena. A major series of personal developments impel you to face real limitations, learn to live with them, and move up to a higher level of consciousness. Your individuality is stronger and more readily accepted by others as your self-esteem rises. Certain relationships last for a long time. Today's natives are industrious, can spin a story to prove a point. Those born this year are perennial scholars, capable of reaching extremes in abstract thought.

Aries (March 21-April 19): Use familiar people as sounding boards before you spring your ideas on the outside world. You have three days to achieve some definite act of service.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): Helpful people make opportunity available. By concentrating on the positive side of work, you automatically leave behind some erroneous method.

Gemini (May 21-June 20): While you pursue obvious responsibilities, make sure nobody in your circle of friends goes too long without recognition. Listen for useful information.

Cancer (June 21-July 22): You can close a reasonable deal. Review your financial situation, make new decisions and resolutions more in line with current goals.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22): You're at peak of a personal cycle. Offer plans in terms others can understand. Travel produces chance encounters of potential importance.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Go ahead on your own initiative with a new job, or try recapturing the spirit of a fresh start. Facts acquired now furnish a priceless education.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Clear up financial questions so you can move on. Bring together a good team on the spur of the moment to perform a needed but temporary task.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Forget the past insofar as likes and dislikes are concerned. Coax new personalities or reluctant individuals to take on a larger share of the workload.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Official sources open and provide beneficial information. Use it to take advantage of coming trends. Search your files for neglected contacts.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Associates are more active than you find comfortable. Split the job up so they can roll on ahead. Check your resources, insurance and earnings.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Decisions are seemingly easy, but you'd better check with those directly involved. Feelings spill forth; relations intensify.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20): Estimate what you can do and promise nothing beyond that. Looking after your own best interests is your best bet.

Cousin Bruce Talks About the Radio

By ALAN FORRAY

For a long time much of New York State has been dominated by New York City radio. Of the many personalities working in New York radio, few have sustained the dominance and prominence of Cousin Bruce Morrow. Recently, I spoke with Cousin Bruce about his experiences and about his thoughts and feelings concerning the state of the art.

Bruce Morrow, who was born and raised in New York, was graduated from New York University. His first New York radio job was with the Mutual Broadcasting System. Currently, he can be heard on 66 WNBC from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. weekdays.

Bruce Morrow has been around forever. I can remember listening to him at the old WINS when he first created the now famous Cousin Bruce. After 10 years at WINS, Morrow switched to WABC where he remained for 13 years. Two years ago he made the switch to NBC in order to keep his hand in radio and at the same time make his move into the glamour world of national television. While he is very excited about his blossoming television career, Bruce Morrow has some very, very definite opinions about the New York radio scene.

"New York radio has been in the doldrums for the past five years. Radio is a people's medium," says Morrow, complaining that for a while the executives and directors who control New York radio lost track of this precept. "They forgot that it's a people medium, and they made it very mechanical," he said.

But Morrow believes that now things are straightening out. "The program directors are people, not statisticians. The statisticians are going." He believes FM programmers discovered "the underground stuff simply didn't work," and they are at last "coming up to meet the ground." At the same time "AM radio is now settling down," he said and he predicts that "in the next year or so, we're going to have some very interesting radio—AM and FM."

Concerning today's music, Cousin Bruce is glad to say he thinks "we're getting out of the junk disco era." For a while, he said it seemed like "everybody and his brother was trying disco, even Barbra Streisand, but disco is changing and it's attracting some fine performers that are taking disco into another mode. It's becoming soulful. It's going back to where it should be, and getting an R&B flavor. 'The Manhattans' are a perfect example."

When asked about radio personalities, Cousin Bruce said Dan Ingram was his favorite. "Dan is the guy I would listen to. Ron Lundy is a very fine talent but not like Dan... And as far as pop music artists, 'John Denver is probably numero uno... I like Paul Anka... I am crazy about Electric Light Orchestra,'" Bruce enthused.

There is no question that Bruce Morrow has had an outstanding radio career and from all indications it's far from over. This is an interesting point when viewed in terms of what Bruce Morrow considers his greatest accomplishment, "surviving in this business so many years."

Summer May Be Over But...

By LEI

If we hadn't expected it when the schoolbuses began plying the roads, and if the frosty mornings hadn't prepared us, the calendar now makes it official. On Sept. 22, at exactly 4:48 p.m., the summer of 1976 comes to an end and we are officially into autumn.

Actually autumn is many people's favorite season. The excitement of summer is still in the air and there is the promise of the holiday season ahead—but far enough ahead that we don't have to worry about shopping for it yet! There have been new additions to the wardrobe, school is still enough of a novelty to be interesting and the invigorating weather gives many people an energy boost. Librans, born during the early part of the fall, are often exceptionally mellow, tender, vibrant people.

Of course, if summer is your favorite season, autumn is bad news. If you spent all summer nursing this mapletone tan, it's a bit of a bummer to watch it start turning gray or saffron. If you thoughtlessly baked your hair at every opportunity on the beach, September may see you with a headful of frizzed straw. And if you discover that the math teacher who flunked you last year is going to be your math teacher again, that can take a lot of the joy out of the season.

Your car didn't pass inspection, your bike got a flat tire and your nature shoes gave you a natural blister? Is that what made your fall go flop? Well cheer up at least it isn't snowing yet.

If the chill weather gives you an energy boost, put it to work for you. Try to keep up with the schoolwork—you will have plenty of opportunity to fall behind during the holidays. If schoolwork seems like a drag, at least try to make a good first impression.

If your complexion and hair are suffering from too much summer, make a note not to make the same mistake next summer, and then plan your own makeover. Cutting is usually a good way of getting rid of fuzzy, split, broken hair. Try a whole new hairdo and see if it fits you—it will always grow out if you don't like it.

If your school has a sewing course, sign up and see how soon you'll be able to make your own one-of-a-kind fashions—and that goes for you fellows too! It isn't too early to start making your Christmas gifts or holiday cards, or to start shopping the sales for budget-petting gifts.

Sometimes the chill will give you more than energy—you'll get an increased appetite. Don't automatically assume that your new outfits are shrinking, just because they suddenly seem to be too short, or tight or the buttons keep falling off. While it is possible that they don't make zippers the way they used to, there is also the possibility that you may have indulged in some hot chocolate, apple pie, banana splits or after-school hamburgers. Instead this is the time to cut back a little on the munchies, so that you can go on a holiday splurge without guilt.

Fall is the ideal time for doing a lot of summer-type things that it's usually too hot to do in the summer. Aside from the fact that school uses up a lot of free time, there is no reason why you can't practice your tennis, take a bike tour, or get poison ivy now instead of in June.

You'll be spending a lot more time indoors when the weather gets cold, so if your room has been collecting cobwebs, six layers of mildewed T-shirts and two-thirds of a chess set, this is a good time to clean out. If you're afraid that the sight of you, actually cleaning your room, will give your parents heart failure, call it "re-decoration" instead. Not only will the neater room give you a fresh start, but it might get you out of cleaning the garage or washing the second-story windows on the outside.

Or raking leaves or bringing in the lawn furniture or putting the lawn mower up for the winter. Remember last year when your bike froze to the tree because you forgot to put it in the garage? Say, has anyone seen the snow shovel lately.

And if there's anything you forgot to do this summer, make a note of it. There's another summer due on the morning of June 21, 1977....

RECORD CUES

SINGLES

Superstar—Paul Davis: A tribute to contemporary pop music artists, this song specifically refers to Elton John, Stevie Wonder, Linda Ronstadt and Joni Mitchell. It's a nice expression of appreciation to the music makers of today, of whom Davis sings, "Superstar, I want to thank you for what you are."

Who'd She Coo—Ohio Players: Approaching the top 10 this is one of the biggest R&B hits of the year. Currently neck and neck with Earth, Wind and Fire (GETAWAY), it should be a good fight to the top.

Do You Feel—Peter Frampton: Yet another single emerges from FRAMPTON COMES ALIVE, probably the most successful "live" album of all time. This third break-out single is likely to spur even further album sales, but with already more than a million people in possession of the LP, movement of this single should be moderate.

Disco Duck—Rick Dees and his Cast of Idiots: Currently employed as the Program Director of WMPS, Memphis, Tennessee, Rick Dees has successfully launched the biggest novelty item of the year. DISCO DUCK is presently flying up the charts and is definitely headed for gold status.

LPs

Dedication—Bay City Rollers: With the current single, I ONLY WANT TO BE WITH YOU, proving to be even hotter than expected, this album is bound to follow suit. It's encouraging to this reporter to note that I'm not the only one in America who digs the Rollers.

Bread and Roses—Judy Collins: What a beauty. This is Judy's best in years. Receiving considerable FM airplay, this album is moving well through the top 100 LPs and is picking up strength daily with the MOR record buying public.

Abandoned Luncheonette—Hall and Oates: Only the sales of this album can justify the attention it has been given in this column. This is a forgotten album, fallen by the wayside for more than three years. Now, as a direct result of the outstanding success of the single, SHE'S GONE, this LP is finally catching fire. There's not a bad song on this album.

Silk Degrees—Boyz n the Moor: Next week at this time, this album will be the number one selling album in the world. It is currently high atop the soul & pop charts and the single, LOWDOWN, is inches away from the top of that survey. It's about time this veteran blues man and guitar virtuoso enjoyed his just reward.

JUST BREAKING

Long Distance Love Affair—Cher: With the new TV season just getting underway and the notorious Greg Alan getting even further away, this catchy title will be received on many different levels. This can only be good for Warner Brothers Records.

Somewhere I've Never Travelled—Ambrosia: Kind of like Nektar with a touch of Yes around the edges, this album embodies the best of the synthetic orchestral rock music. The most prominent new album on FM stations throughout the Northeast, it should do well among devotees of this musical genre.

Kingston Blanks John Jay, 20-0, in DCSL Opener

SPORTS TODAY

By STEVE KANE

Freeman Staff

KINGSTON — It was the means as much as the end that made Kingston High a very happy bunch of Tigers after Saturday's DCSL football opener against John Jay at Dietz Stadium.

The end was simple enough to understand. It was a 20-0 victory for KHS that neatly reversed the outcome of last year's debacle in Wicopee and at the same time gave the Tiger crew their first successful league opener in five tries.

As for the means, well, it was an imposing beginning. The Kingston offense dominated the first half, and the Kingston defense stole the show in the second half. Except for a few fumbles, and rain and mud contributed to that statistic, the Tigers didn't play like it was the first game of the season.

Even Kingston coach Tony Badalato was impressed. "We made very few mistakes," he said like he couldn't believe it. "That offensive line was incredible, and there's no way you could single out any one kid."

Rain began to fall heavily on an already sloppy field just as the contest got underway. It served to limit the variations in Kingston's attack somewhat, but the Tigers otherwise ignored the raindrops just like they ignored the Patriot defense. The winners received the kickoff and proceeded to ram the football 65 yards in 13 plays with a scoring drive that consumed better than seven minutes and a big chunk of John Jay's optimism.

Twice in the march Ricky Knox ran outside. The second time he crossed the goal line from six yards out for a 6-0 lead.

"We wanted to go inside, outside, inside, outside, pass, but we really couldn't open up as much as we wanted to," said Badalato referring to the playing conditions. It would have been a frill anyway. The Tigers, with Joel Etter doing the bulk of the carrying, just powered their way upfield.

That was the only sustained offensive push by either club. John Jay never got moving at all, and the single Patriot scoring threat of the day was smothered by a Tiger goal line stand in the fourth quarter. Kingston's other two touchdowns came right after John Jay lost possession on its own one yard line, but both those breaks were set up by some sparking KHS plays.

The Kingston defense did almost everything right. The Tigers had trouble with the outside speed of John Jay's Corkee Macek, and the pass coverage missed a receiver here and there, but the shutout bid succeeded.

In the fourth period, though, it looked like the Pats were about to get a score. Ron Stakow, the John Jay quarterback and a better average thrower, fired on first down to veteran receiver Wayne Gant. Gant beat defensive back Bill Stote and just kept his balance during a stumbling catch, but Stote recovered in time to trip Gant up on the Kingston one yard line. The play covered 51 yards, and although John Jay was already behind by 20 points, the losers wanted to salvage something out of the contest.

They couldn't. Phil Razy, John Falatyn, Matt Suppies, Al Schmidt and Lou Zeiss stopped the Pats cold. Stackow went nowhere on a sneak, Falatyn busted through to stop first Glen March then Stackow on the next two downs, then linebacker Glen Marrus stormed over the middle to sack Stackow again. Kingston resumed control on its own ten yard line.

That stand and the first period drive were Kingston's best moments, but there were outstanding individual plays all day long. An interception by Etter in the second quarter gave KHS field position. Eventually John Jay had to punt. Gene Ennesser was almost in his end zone awaiting the snap, and when the pass from center bounced in front of him, his knee touched the ground killing the play.

KHS took over on the John Jay one, and Kivlan boosted the count to 12-0 with a dive on the next play.

On the ensuing kickoff Kingston got the ball right back as linebacker Mike Myer leveled Macek on the return. A fumble by Kivlan prevented the Tigers from taking a three touchdown lead at halftime, but that was about the only lapse the signal caller had in an otherwise polished performance.

Kingston's final TD came after another KHS linebacker, Tom Loughlin, got in his licks. With John Jay in a deep hole after a Jay Faust punt, Loughlin flattened Stackow who couldn't hang on to the ball. Falatyn made the pounce, and Kingston once again was sitting pretty on the Patriot one. Etter did the honors for the final Tiger touchdown, and that plunge gave him a 100-yard game to start the season.

Against a smaller team and on a drier field John Jay will be a troublesome club, but the consensus on the KHS staff was that a drier field will show the Tigers to be explosive. Razy and Schmidt along with Dan Curlin, Ricky Smith, John O'Mara and Jeff Kaplan, were surprisingly quick off the ball.

Showdown Fizzles... Wallkill Rips Bushmen

WALKILL — The big UCAL football showdown here Saturday fizzled. The Wallkill High Panthers showed their muscle, and the Bushmen of Pine Bush went down to a humbling 34-7 defeat.

The two squads were rated as near equals in the fore of the league's contenders, but the Bushmen didn't have anything to match George Thomas.

Thomas, the 6-2, 203-pound Panther tailback, bulldozed his way to 180 yards and four touchdowns as Wallkill maintained control of almost the entire contest.

"Our offense really worked well," said winning coach Jerry Trezza. "I think we're a lot smarter in our offensive line this year, and our defense came alive. We wanted to give them the inside and take the rest away, and for once, something worked right."

The Bushmen, stunned by a 79 yard romp by Thomas on the third play of the game, stayed alive briefly with an answering touchdown in the first period. A long kickoff return to the Panther 35 set up a short drive. Wayne Shurter went six yards for the sole Pine Bush TD of the day.

Then the Panthers took over for keeps. Thomas did his damage in just three periods of play, and the winners had all their points by then. The big back scored on two one yard blasts in the second period and lit up the scoreboard again in the third quarter with a five yard run.

Speedy Dan Inzell got in the act by going eight yards for the Panthers' final TD. As for the rest of the offense, it worked just as well as quarterback Harry Collier passed for 63 yards in mostly key third down situations and Wallkill altogether covered better than 300 yards against what was billed as one of the UCAL's top defensive units. Greg Palen, the Wallkill PAT machine, hit all four of his extra point attempts to pick up where he left off a year ago. Palen had a string of 25 straight conversions as a junior.

Trezza wasn't concerned about the absence of a bomb threat from the Panther arsenal. "Collier didn't throw any of those 70 yard jobs because we have no one to catch them this year, but he probably had his best passing day ever. He was six of 11, and three of those were dropped. And we threw in the key situations where we really needed it," said Trezza.

The loss was a big blow to Pine Bush which had finished last season tied with Wallkill and Rondout for the UCAL title. Stats on page 30.

Rocker Leads Ulster To Tournament Sweep

STONE RIDGE — As the name suggests, the Ulster County Community College Soccer Tournament was exactly that.

The host Senators, attempting to rebound from last weekend's mediocre performance at the Fulton-Montgomery tourney, ripped through successive opponent here Saturday to win their own invitational. UCCC blasted Catonsville (Md.) CC in the championship contest 6-0 after topping the Oneonta St. junior varsity, 3-1 in the opening round. In Saturday's consolation game, Oneonta whipped Union (N.J.) CC, 6-0. Catonsville got past Union in the other first round battle by a 2-0 count.

Paul Rocker, named the tournament's Most Valuable Player, had three goals and an assist during the afternoon to power Ulster's attack.

"He had an excellent game," said UCCC coach George Vizvary. He played forward and defense for us."

Rocker anchored a mid-game surge by Ulster that put the winners in command of the title game. After Aurelio Emea broke the ice at 13:53 of the first half, Rocker also soloed home a shot for a 2-0 Senator lead. He then set Emea up for a three goal UCCC halftime edge and came right back at 3:47 of the second half to put the game on ice.

Rocker stole the ball on that play, dribbled through a pair of Maryland defenders and rifled home his shot. After than UCCC cruised on an additional cushion provided by a pair of scores by Tom Gomez.

"They played with desire for the first time," said Vizvary. "They were first to the ball, and they passed with just one or two touches. I think maybe they have been yelled at enough."

Staying aggressive against Catonsville wasn't easy, however, because Oneonta, coached by former UCCC great Frank Goglia, gave the Senators a run in the first game. It was a fast-paced struggle with Ulster taking 36 shots and Oneonta firing 17.

After a scoreless first half Oneonta grabbed a lead when UCCC blew a defensive assignment on a free kick. Gomez fed Rocker for the equalizer at 14:28, then UCCC keeper Conrad Earnest pulled off the play of the game.

"He saved the game for us," said Vizvary. Earnest took a dive to stop a six-yard shot then recovered in time to smother the rebound kick from point blank range.

John Paccione booted the winner off a short corner kick from George Vassilaris at 36:41 of the second half. UCCC put it away via soph Jack Sparacio's first career goal, a long range bomber at 42:01.

Aside from Rocker, Gomez, Emea, Vassilaris and George Harris of Ulster were named to the All-Tournament team. Bruce Agnew, Joe Pifko and Don Benensen of Oneonta, Gino Labbate of Union, and Carl Joslin, Marty Calambro and Rich Woods of Catonsville were the other selections.

The victories raised the Senator record to 3-1.

Pioneers Rally to Tie Sawyers

By TIM SCHUSTER

Freeman Staff

POUGHKEEPSIE—With one minute left on the game clock, the Saugerties High School football team seemed ready to carry off a 6-0 victory against home-standing Poughkeepsie Saturday afternoon.

One blocked punt later, the dream had vanished into a 6-6 tie in both teams' DCSL opener. It was sadly reminiscent of the match between the two teams at the same field two years ago, when a win had been similarly snatched from the visitors. "Disgusted," said Sawyer coach Fred Seither when asked for his reaction to the outcome. "We had control of the ball most of the game."

Acknowledging that his heralded front four defensive team had performed outstanding work, he also pointed out that they hadn't really seen much in the way of a ground offense against the Pioneers.

The primary reason for that fact was the amazing number of pass attempts fired off by Poughkeepsie quarterback Dave Fredericks, who connected on but five of 29. During the second half, playing catch up ball, he threw 18 times.

But it was the one set up after a mass of Pioneer defensemen swarmed Sawyer punter Steve Gakenheimer with a minute left that proved the frustrating undoing of the strong Saugerties defensive effort.

From the five yard line, Fredericks zipped a clothesline pass to halfback Carl Lyons in the left corner of the end zone, bringing the homestands to real life for the first time since Saugerties had taken the lead midway through the first quarter. The Pioneer chance to win was thwarted as Mike Murphy's kick avoided the goalposts by many yards.

Picking off an errant Poughkeepsie pass in the first series of downs in the game, quarterback Chris Swech started from midfield, kept to the 45, and the team recorded its first down when fullback Frank Tiano moved to the 38. Five more free penalty yards, and Saugerties was off and running on a Swech keeper around right end following good blocking to the 24.

On a six yard pass to Gakenheimer, the Sawyers were aided by a 15-yard penalty to the nine, and Tiano carried to the three before end Pat Harder scored the touchdown on a rollout to the left. Rick Olsen's attempted PAT was blocked.

With no scoring through the middle of the game, both teams jockeyed for advantage with punting playing an important role. Neither team moved consistently on the ground, and for a Seither-coached team Swech's 13 pass attempts (four were good) were a valiant attempt to make up for sustained rushing.

The 65 yards penalized against the Pioneers in the first half helped also, and the Dutchess County club finished up with 95 yards given away on mistakes to 35 for Saugerties.

While Tiano and halfback Ralph Grimaldi were aided by starting halfback Gene Posca in the Sawyer ground game, much of the burden fell on quarterback Swech's shoulders as he scrambled often for his life.

The defensive front four singled out by Seither for outstanding work included Pat Harder, Rich Ryan, Dale Martin, and Frank Tiano, backed up by veteran Lars Hauck centering the linebackers flanked by Mike Dickman and Kevin Chiarot.

With a firmer idea of what to expect from his team, Seither next takes his team into contest against Ketcham. Stats on page 30.

Rondout linemen Jay Kokas (32), Gil Kelder (72) and Frank Serico (25) swarm in on Liberty's Jon Kalino, left. Later, Kokas nails Kalino, right.

Rondout Valley Rolls Over Liberty, 49-0

By BRUCE GOLDBERG

Freeman Staff

KYSERIKE—Rondout Valley High School's brand new football scoreboard does not explode fireworks when a touchdown is scored by the home team. It doesn't show instant replays, it doesn't announce future home games, it doesn't sing three arias from Aida.

What it does do well is record all the Ganders' points, and the scoreboard worked overtime Saturday as Rondout slaughtered a hapless and undermanned Liberty High School, 49-0, in an Ulster County Athletic League opener.

The Ganders, well-known for their stingy defense of the past few seasons, held Liberty to minus 56 yards rushing and 20 yards passing, a net of minus 36 for the Indians. But the Rondout offense scored in one afternoon just about as normal season allotment as the Ganders ran up 274 rushing yards and 75 through the air, a 349 total.

"Everything we tried seemed TD work," said Rondout head coach John (Mickey) Million, who ran his second team in by the middle of the second quarter. "And everything they did went wrong. Maybe Liberty will get better as the season goes on."

That's not very likely for Ron Francisco's Indians, just 25-men strong with two more starters out injured. "There wasn't much I liked," admitted Francisco. "It's going to be tough getting the kids up after an opening like this."

Rondout, which scored on seven of nine series, did the damage on the strength of Paris Perry's quarterbacking, some great running from Carl Grassi and Tab Lewis, and outstanding work by both lines.

Standout guard John Nadratowski recovered a Liberty fumble on the Indians' second play from scrimmage to set up the Ganders on Liberty's 25 yard line early in the first quarter. Grassi made the first of several tremendous, twisting runs, gaining 17, and two plays later, Lewis scored from the three. Perry kept for the conversion with just 4:17 gone.

On Liberty's second down of the next series, Rondout's Dave Staats nailed Liberty quarterback Jon Kalino, who coughed up the ball to Gander Gil Kelder. A snazzy double reverse gained 28 yards as Grassi took off again down to the 12, and then he caught Perry's pass in the clear to make it 14-0. The attempted run failed.

Liberty's next punt backed Rondout to its own 18, but Lewis again broke things open with his most spectacular run of the day, a back-and-forth, tackle-evading 66-yarder that brought the Ganders to within four yards of the goal line. A holding penalty set them back 15, but three plays later, Dave McBride scored from the one and Lewis ran the conversion to make it 22-0 early in the second quarter.

Nadratowski, who made his home away from home in the Liberty backfield all game long, sacked Kalino of third down on Liberty's 20. It set up a fine punt return by Terry Lawrence, who scampered 53 yards for the score. Perry ran the conversion and it was 30-0 at halftime.

It took more than 19 minutes for Rondout to score again, and it came on a two yard run by Lewis with 43 seconds left in the third quarter to cap a seven play, 57-yard march. The Ganders also scored on their next two series, as Grassi gained 29 yards on another reverse to set up Perry's TD pass to Rick Bogert (Jim Abbott kicked) and the Ganders gained possession of their kickoff to set up another score. It came on sub QB Billy Sullivan's fourth and 22, 33-yard TD pass to Peter Fiore. The kick failed, but at 49-0, who was counting?

Grassi gained an impressive total of 147 yards in just five carries and proved himself a valuable big play man. Lewis picked up 55 yards in 11 plays.

Liberty plays host to New Paltz on Friday at 3 p.m., and the Ganders visit Oneonta and former Gander John Meehan (Oneonta head coach) Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Nettles Cracks No. 28 As Yankees Cruise, 5-3

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — Graig Nettles increased his American League home run lead to 28 when he slammed a two-run homer in the fourth inning, enabling Dock Ellis to record his 16th win Saturday as the New York Yankees downed the Milwaukee Brewers 5-3.

The win was New York's fourth straight and 10th in their last 13 games.

Nettles hit his homer after Chris Chambliss beat out an infield hit to open the fourth.

Ellis went the first eight innings allowing just six hits and three walks to make his record 16-7. Sparky Lyle pitched the ninth inning in relief.

Bill Travers, also seeking his 16th victory, took his 14th loss instead and fifth in his last six decisions. He went the distance, scattering 10 hits.

New York scored three runs in the first on Thurman Munson's sacrifice fly, a run-scoring triple by Lou Piniella and a run-scoring single by Chambliss.

Milwaukee got all their runs in the third when Jim Gantner drove in a run with a single and Mike Hegan hit a two-run double.

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Rudy May, who needed eighth-inning relief from Tipi Martinez, chalked up his 13th victory and Al Bumby stroked three hits Saturday to spark the Baltimore Orioles to a 3-2 victory and a doubleheader split with the Cleveland Indians.

Boog Powell belted his eighth homer and reliever Jim Kern picked up his 14th save as the Indians snapped Baltimore's winning streak at seven games with a 5-1 triumph in the opener.

Mark Belanger singled home Ken Singleton to give the Orioles a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning of the nightcap and the Orioles chased Cleveland starter and loser Jim Bibby, 12-7, with a pair of runs in the seventh.

May, who gave up a triple to Buddy Bell and a sacrifice fly to Rico Carty in the seventh, departed in the eighth with runners on first and second and the Orioles leading 3-2 after pinch-hitter Frank Robinson's run-scoring single. Martinez came in and induced Rick Manning to hit into a double play.

In the opener, Cleveland sent Baltimore starter Jim Palmer down to his 13th defeat against 21 victories. Powell smacked a 400-foot homer in the second and sacrifice flies by Rico Carty and George Hendrick capped a three-run Indians' rally in the third.

OAKLAND (UPI) — Bert Campaneris' seventh inning sacrifice fly drove in what proved to be the winning run after an error by Danny Thompson as the Oakland A's stayed alive in the American League West race with a 3-2 victory Saturday over the Texas Rangers.

After Tommy Boggs walked Ron Fairly and Phil Garner, Thompson booted a grounder to third by Billy North with two out to load the bases. Campaneris then hit a fly to deep center to give Oakland a 3-0 lead.

Vida Blue, despite control problems, seemed headed for his 18th complete game when the Rangers knocked him out in the eighth with three hits.

Jim Fregosi, who took over at first base in the fourth inning after Mike Hargrove suffered a wrist injury, homered after one out to start the eighth inning rally. A single by Jeff Burroughs, a passed ball and another single by Tom Grieve drove in the second Texas run and finished Blue. Juan Beniquez greeted reliever Jim Todd with another single but Paul Lindblad came on and retired pinch-hitter Doug Ault to end the inning.

Ithaca Zips Albany State

ITHACA (UPI) — Scoring three touchdowns on a pair of long punt returns and a pass interception, Ithaca College rolled to a 24-0 football victory over Albany State before a homecoming crowd of 6,000 Saturday.

Halfback Steve Tennenbaum, a junior from Ellenville and a former Daily Freeman Player-of-the-Year, gave Ithaca a quick lead with a 72-yard punt return touchdown just three minutes into the first period.

Triumph. The Woodward, the first of a series of three major New York stakes, is a big step towards the Horse of the Year title. The Marlboro Cup and the Jockey club Gold Cup, both run in October, are the other two hurdles for the top thoroughbreds.

Before a crowd of 32,440 and under pleasant, Autumn skies, Forego outdistanced an impressive field of 10 and returned $4.20, 3.00 and $2.20.

The 6-year-old Forli gelding, trained by Frank Whiteley and carrying topweight of 135 pounds, was clocked in an exceptionally brisk time of 1:45 2-5, just 2-5 of a second off the record. Honest Pleasure carried the next highest weight at 121 pounds.

Forego's 28th victory in 47 career starts was rewarded with a winner's prize of $103,920 and lifted his total earnings to $1,484,997. Shoemaker, who has been in the winner's circle more than 7,000 times, was not originally pegged to ride the two-time champion.

The 45-year-old jockey, who primarily rides on West Coast tracks, got the call when Forego's usual rider, Heliodoro Gustines was under contract to ride Greentree Stable's Hatchet Man. Jacinto Vasquez, who had ridden the gelding twice this year, was next in line but was recovering from an injury sustained at Saratoga.

Christiana Stable's Dance Spell, a 3-year-old colt guided by Ruben Hernandez, was in first position at the top of the stretch but could not contain Forego and placed at $5.40 and $3.00.

Bertram Firestone's Honest Pleasure, the 2-1 choice who was expected to give Forego his strongest competition, set the pace most of the way but could not show enough speed towards the finish. The 3-year-old colt, trained by LeRoy Jolley and piloted by Craig Perret, paid $2.20.

Stumping, owned by Hobeau Farms and guided by Jose Amy, ran well in the final quarter-mile to share third place with Honest Pleasure and return $2.80.

Roosevelt's TD came on Jim Breemer's 85-yard run.

Blue, who gave up nine hits in 7 2-3 innings, gained credit for his 16th victory compared to 12 losses while Lindblad was rewarded with his fifth save.

Joe Rudi's first inning sacrifice fly and sixth inning back-to-back doubles by Rudi and Sal Bando accounted for the other Oakland runs.

DETROIT (UPI) — Carl Yastrzemski knocked in four runs with a home run and a single Saturday as the Boston Red Sox downed the Detroit Tigers 5-4.

Although hampered by a groin injury which forced him to retire after three innings, Yastrzemski blasted his 21st homer in the first with Rick Miller and Fred Lynn aboard. Steve Dillard, who was safe on a fielder's choice in the third, took second on a Lynn single before scoring on Yastrzemski's single.

Boston's final run came in the eighth on a walk to Lynn, a single by Jim Rice and a fielder's choice.

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Jim Wohlford's one out single in the ninth inning scored Fred Patek from second base with the winning run and lifted the Kansas City Royals to a 6-5 victory over the Chicago White Sox Saturday night.

Patek opened the ninth with a single and moved to second on a sacrifice by Buck Martinez. Wohlford then followed with a single to the right field corner, scoring Patek.

Larry Gura, the last of five Kansas City pitchers, recorded his second win in as many decisions. Ken Brett, 10-10, was the loser.

Amos Otis drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single in the fifth inning to give Kansas City a 5-4 lead. Al Cowens and George Brett opened the inning with singles. Chicago pitcher Brett then hit Hal McRae with a pitch to load the bases and set the stage for Otis.

Chicago tied the score in the eighth inning with a single by pinch-hitter Sam Ewing and Lamar Johnson's double.

Chicago jumped to a 3-0 lead in the second inning, chasing Kansas City starter Al Fitzmorris. Kansas City tied the score in the fourth inning, but Chicago went ahead in the fifth inning on a triple by Kevin Bell and a single by Bucky Dent.

Ohio State Trims Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UPI) — Ball control is the hallmark of Ohio State teams coached by Woody Hayes and this key to the Buckeyes' success was very much in evidence Saturday afternoon.

The Ohio State backfield of Jeff Logan, Pete Johnson and Rod Gerald ran for 272 yards and kept the ball away just enough from the blossoming passing game of seventh-ranked Penn State (1-1) to lead the top-ranked Buckeyes to a 12-7 victory before a regional television audience.

The running attack was particularly effective in the second half, keeping the ball in Ohio State's hands for all but 2:17 of the third quarter and for all but four plays in the last six minutes after the Lions had closed to within five points.

"We moved the ball well in the second half, but we made very little adjustment at half-time," Hayes said. "We had two tight ends in there because we thought it would give us a better running game, but we're not going to do it all the time."

Logan, replacement for twotime Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin, carried the ball 25 times for 160 yards. Johnson, a 241-pound fullback, added 60 yards and Gerald, a sophomore who ran the attack like a veteran, chipped in with 52, including an eight-yard touchdown run.

But it was an eight-yard run by senior reserve wingback Bob Hyatt, who was replacing freshman Matt Jackson, early in the fourth quarter that clinched the Buckeyes' second win in two games.

"I was afraid a freshman would make a mistake," Hayes said. "Bob's a senior and he's a dependable football player. He's not fast, but he sure looked fast out there, didn't he?"

"They played great offense, we played great defense, but they didn't do anything to hurt themselves," said Penn State Coach Joe Paterno. "The loss is a disappointment for the squad because they worked so hard."

Besides Hyatt's touchdown run, the Buckeyes drove into Penn State territory twice in the second half, but came up empty-handed on a pair of missed field goals by Tom Skladany.

Penn State came back with an 87-yard, 15-play drive, with freshman fullback Matt Suhey scoring on a one-yard plunge. But the Buckeyes, who got the ball back with just under six minutes to play, kept the ball for most of the remaining game, with fullback Pete Johnson keeping the drive alive on a fourth-and-one gamble on the Ohio State 39.

The Lions got the ball back for a last-ditch drive with less than two minutes remaining, but an Andress pass was intercepted by Kelton Dansler to cut off the threat.

The Nittany Lions turned the ball over twice from inside the Ohio State 10 in the first half, and the Buckeyes capitalized on one of those mistakes to score the only touchdown before the intermission.

Driving from their own 18 following an interception by safety Ray Griffin, the Buckeyes took advantage of a 48-yard run by tailback Jeff Logan to the Penn State 22. Following four runs by Johnson, Gerald scored on a keeper around left end.

The Lions got the ball back and drove to the Ohio State 5 as Andress completed four of five passes for 60 yards. But on a second-and-goal play from the four, Andress made a bad pitch to tailback Steve Geise and defensive end Bob Brudzinski recovered for Ohio State at the Buckeye 19.

The first quarter was scoreless, but the Nittany Lions came out throwing. Andress threw 10 passes in the initial period and totaled 17 for the half, completing 11 for 122 yards.

Sophomore QB Rick Leach guided an explosive offense and the suspect Michigan defense held Stanford without a first down for 26 minutes of the first half in a 51-0 slaughter by the second-ranked Wolverines over the Cardinals.

Walk-on Jim Culbreath rushed for 145 yards and a TD and Kenny King added 130 yards in a fullback-dominated offense as No. 5 Oklahoma defeated California, 28-17.

Tailback James Coleman ran for two touchdowns and Kurt Steger hit slotback Eric Rouse with a pair of touchdown passes in leading Illinois to a 31-6 upset of mistake-prone and sixth-ranked Missouri.

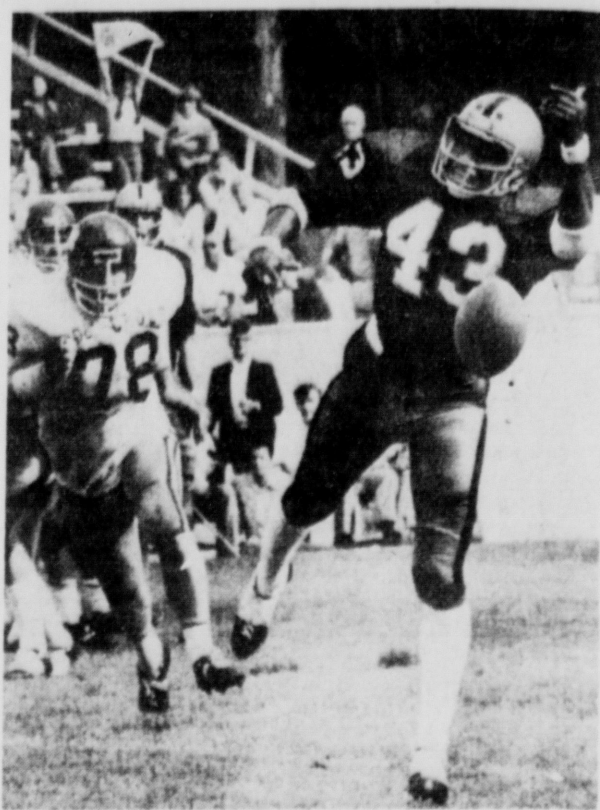

Eighth-ranked Nebraska, shaking off last week's stalemate at Louisiana State, routed Indiana, 45-13, with hard running Monte Anthony and Rich Berns each scoring twice.

Matt Robinson tossed three TD passes and Ray Goff, who alternated with him at quarterback, had a 73-yard TD run as ninth-ranked Georgia embarrassed Clemson 41-0 in a regionally televised game.

In night games, third-ranked UCLA met Arizona and fourth-rated Pittsburgh played Georgia Tech.

Pittsburgh won, 42-14, as Tony Dorsett scored three touchdowns and rushed for 113 yards.

In the bottom half of the top 20, No. 10 Texas A&M downed Kansas State 34-14. No. 11 Maryland dumped West Virginia 24-3. No. 12 Arkansas played No. 20 Oklahoma State at night. No. 13 Alabama crushed SMU 56-3. No. 14 LSU played Oregon State at night. No. 15 Boston College was not scheduled, co-No. 16 North Carolina shut out Northwestern 12-0, co-No. 16 Kansas rolled over Kentucky 37-16, co-No. 16 Texas Tech was idle and No. 19 Southern California played Oregon at night.

Army Recovers For 26-24 Win

WEST POINT (UPI) — Junior quarterback Leamon Hall fired a pair of fourth-quarter touchdown passes, the last covering 26 yards to George Dunaway with 47 seconds remaining Saturday, and Greg King ran for a third as Army's furious comeback overtook Holy Cross, 26-24.

Hall rallied the Cadets, now 2-0, from a 24-6 deficit after Holy Cross dominated the first three periods with its wishbone attack and an opportunistic defense that recovered one fumble, intercepted three passes and blocked one punt.

The turnaround began four minutes into the final period when Bruce Elliott recovered a Crusader fumble on the Cadets' 48-yard line. Seven plays later, Hall flipped a 13-yard pass to Glennie Brunridge, who wrestled it away from defender Dan Lucey in the end zone. A two-point conversion pass to Mark Logue trimmed the Holy Cross lead to 24-14.

Army came right back with another 52-yard drive, needing only five plays following a punt to narrow the gap to four points with King's eight-yard scamper. Another two-point conversion pass fell incomplete. The Cadets then forced Holy Cross to punt again with 1:45 remaining and took possession on their own 20. Hall chewed up 54 yards with three completions before hitting a diving Dunaway at the goal line for the clincher.

Holy Cross, now 0-2, had held the Cadets scoreless until the closing 46 seconds of the first half and held a 17-6 intermission lead. The Crusaders scored first on a 22-yard field goal by Mike Smith at 2:22 of the first quarter and added a pair of second-quarter TDs on scoring drives of 67 and 80 yards, culminating in a one-yard plunge by Steve Hunt and a three-yard run by QB Pete Colombo.

North Leads Ohio Kings

KINGS MILLS, Ohio (UPI) — Andy North, a three-time All-America golfer at the University of Florida but never a PGA Tour winner, fired a four-under par 66 Saturday to take a one stroke lead going into Sunday's final round of the $150,000 Ohio Kings Island Open.

North's three day total of 68-69-66-203 put him seven under par for the tourney and one stroke ahead of Mac McLendon's 68-69-67-204.

Two strokes off the pace were Ben Crenshaw with a 67 Saturday and Tom Weiskopf, who shot his second straight 68. Sharing fifth place at 207 were Mike Hill and Danny Edwards. Hill had led after Friday's second round but fell back with a three-over par 73 Saturday. Edwards was the first round co-leader, but he too slipped back after failing to break par Friday and Saturday.

North, 26, of Gainesville, Fla., hasn't been able to get a victory since joining the PGA tour in 1973.

"This is the first time I've led going into the final day of a tournament," said North. "The lead is nice now, but for all practical purposes, it doesn't mean anything. Hopefully, tomorrow will be the day."

"I played as well today as I have all year long," North said of his 66, the best score of the day at the par-70, 6,837-yard Jack Nicklaus Golf Center course.

McLendon also was happy with his three-under 67 Saturday. "I played better today than before, I drove better and longer," said the tour veteran.

Although Weiskopf was just two strokes off the pace, he was obviously not pleased with a couple of bogeys on the last four holes that kept him out of the lead.

Weiskopf issued a terse, 35-second statement about his round to reporters, and stalked out of the interview room before he could be asked any questions.

Weiskopf has yet to win a tournament this year and just a couple of months ago was fined and placed on suspension by the PGA for withdrawing from a tournament.

By contrast, Crenshaw was in good spirits. "The third day of a golf tournament is jockey day — you try to get in position for the final day," he said. "I'm feel I'm in good position."

Crenshaw hasn't had a win since January and February when he won the Crosby and the Hawaiian Open back to back.

Jack Nicklaus, who designed the course here and was the pre-tournament favorite, was six strokes back. The tourney has had four different leaders in three days.

Two unknowns, Edwards, and Don Pooley, led after Thursday, Hill took the lead with a 64 Friday, and now North is in the lead in the chase for the $30,000 first prize.

Dagge Retains Title

BERLIN (UPI) — Eckhard Dagge of West Berlin successfully defended his World Boxing Council light middleweight title Saturday with a 15-round decision over 38-year-old former champion Emile Griffith in a fight nationally televised in the U.S.

Griffith, a veteran of 106 pro bouts, weighed in at 153 pounds, two less than the 28-year old Dagge.

Dagge, now 20-3, won the title three months ago on a 10th round TKO over Elisha Obed of the Bahamas.

Dagge wore down the nearly bald Griffith with combinations to the head and body. Griffith relied heavily on his left and appeared at times to have Dagge in trouble.

Woodward to Forego

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two-time Horse of the Year Forego, with all-time leading jockey Willie Shoemaker aboard, came from deep in the pack Saturday to score a 1 1/4-length victory in the 23rd running of the $173,200 Woodward Handicap at Belmont Park.

Dance Spell was second and Honest Pleasure and Stumping were a dead heat for third in the prestigious 1 1/8-mile event for 3-year-olds and up.

Lazy F Ranch's Forego, champion in 1974 and 1975, took a major step towards capturing the honor for the third straight year with a masterful race engineered by Shoemaker.

Shoemaker, the world's most successful rider, held the 6-5 favorite as far back as seventh place at the three-quarter mark then stormed down the stretch on the outside for his third consecutive Woodward

NFA Edges FDR

HYDE PARK—Newburgh Free Academy squeezed out a 7-6 victory over Roosevelt High School here Saturday night in a non-league varsity football game.

NFA recovered a Roosevelt fumble at the latter's 20-ayrd line and Steve Berger scored from five yards out for the first tally. The extra point kick made it 7-0.

Roosevelt's TD came on Jim Breemer's 85-yard run.

When Saugerties High School athletic director and varsity football coach Fred Seither called Friday morning to report that Saturday's junior varsity home game with Poughkeepsie had been canceled it didn't turn many heads around the sports desk. After all, it had rained all night and the Saugerties field has been known to have drainage problems. But when Seither revealed the reason for the cancellation it took on a whole new light.

Saugerties High School, the same Saugerties High School with the fine football heritage located in what has commonly been tabbed "Sports-crazed Saugerties", didn't have enough junior varsity players to legally field a team.

It hardly seemed possible, at least to the casual visitors to Saugerties, those of us who show up on game days and rarely besides. But Seither could see it coming.

"We knew we were short so we were playing borderline cases to keep the numbers up," he explained. "Then we got some injuries and a few others packed it up and handed it in and we were below 20, which is the minimum number of players you can have in New York State. We went around trying to encourage kids to come out once classes started and we did get four or five, but of course they can't play yet. And I'm so thin on the varsity with only 23 players now that I couldn't drop a couple to the JV for this week, so we had to cancel."

Saturday's cancellation doesn't mean Saugerties won't field a junior varsity football team at all this season...on the contrary, Seither expects fully expects one. But the rather startling idea of a Saugerties team canceling a football game at any level makes this particular instance a shocker.

"They talk about Saugerties being the sports capital and all that jazz but I know we've never had more than 25 percent participation by the boys in the school since I've been here," Seither said. "And I've been here 20 years."

To emphasize the point he produced figures. "There are about 500 boys in the school," Seither began. "Usually soccer, that's JV and varsity, will get about 40, cross country will get 15 and I'll get about 70 for football. This year I got 53 for football and some of those were the ones who just signed their names, showed up twice and left." Add it up and the 25 percent Seither mentioned is an exaggeration.

Seither isn't entirely certain why this year is worse than others. He surmises last year's losing season might have something to do with it and figures the influence of soccer and the number of athletes that sport is breeding and in effect taking away from football is another. He likes to think it's a cyclical occurrence and that this is the worst it's going to get.

"At least I hope that it's the worst," Seither said, managing a chuckle.

The situation does raise a couple of points. The first Seither quickly stifled. It concerns the immediate future of the Saugerties varsity and asks the obvious question: What happens if Seither's team, currently at that precarious 23, suffers a few untimely injuries and dips below that 20 minimum?

The answer, says Seither, would be to fill the holes with junior varsity players, even if that means killing that team for the rest of the season. Logical.

But what happens if this isn't a cyclical problem? Say the impact on soccer in Saugerties becomes so great that it's varsity coach Tony Elia who has the 70 candidates and Seither has the 40? Or less? It could happen, especially if, for one reason or another, Saugerties continues to find winning varsity football games a difficult proposition and youngsters in town decide football isn't for them. It's sort of what has happened to Saugerties basketball, only to put a basketball team on the floor you can get by with five bodies and a couple of reserves.

Seither can't answer that one. No one can. But it's something he must be considering and so should others in the tiny Ulster County village with the giant-sized sports reputation.

One is tempted to compare Saugerties with, say, Marlboro High, which has plenty of good athletes, but not enough bodies to fill up all its uniforms. The answer down there is to go without soccer in the fall. But Marlboro has roughly half the number of students than does Saugerties. There really shouldn't be any problem filling up a Sawyer roster. And anyway, if and when it comes to eliminating a sport, won't it be football, especially if soccer continues to grow? It's all rather depressing, especially if you're interested in the growth of scholastic sports. But here's one more thing to consider: if word gets out that participation in sports at Saugerties is down, who's to blame the taxpayers in that school district if they decide not to foot the bill? It's happening all over the state, and with schools apparently far healthier than Saugerties is right now.

One can only echo Seither's "I hope this is the worst of it", but one wonders if this isn't only the beginning.

AHS, RCK Score

POUGHKEEPSIE—Arlington High School took the first step towards a repeat of its undefeated, championship season of 1975 Saturday afternoon with a 20-0 defeat of Our Lady of Lourdes in a Dutchess County Scholastic League football encounter.

Roy C. Ketcham also got things off on the right foot with a 20-6 defeat of Beacon.

Steve Haymes scored three touchdowns, including two in the third quarter when Arlington got good field position after Lourdes mis-snapped twice on punts, to key the Admirals' victory. The missnaps occurred on consecutive series. Haymes scored his final TD in the fourth quarter.

Ketcham scored in the first quarter when Randy Read's two-yard TD run capped an 11-play, 70-yard drive led by quarterback Joel Thomas after Paul Darberes had intercepted a Beacon pass. Thomas hit Jim Kyle for a 15-yard pass for the drive's key play. Later in the half, Thomas directed a 10-play, 60-yard drive that culminated with a 25-yard TD strike to Jeff Van Shack.

Ketcham's final score came in the third quarter when the Indians blocked a Beacon punt and took over from the Beacon 26-yard line. Read gained 18 yards in two rushes, then Dennis Kenney scored on an eight-yard run and the conversion to make it 20-0.

Beacon's score also came in the fourth quarter on a touchdown pass by quarterback Pete Robillard.

Junior Varsity Grid Wins For Marlboro, RVC, PB

KINGSTON—In junior varsity football games Friday involving Ulster County Athletic League teams, Marlboro blanked Red Hook, 14-0; Pine Bush got the same score against Walkkill, and Rondout Valley blanked Liberty, 22-0.

Marlboro scored all its points in the second quarter on Charles DiCarlo's five-yard run and a Steve Fantani conversion run, and Fantani's 50-yard pass to Ralph Post.

Tony DeStefano (12-yard run), Alex Leskov (two-yard run) and Paul Perry (60-yard pass from Randy Perry) did the scoring for the Ganders. Doug Davenport ran for two points on the first TD and the Perrys combined on another pass after the second score.

Highlanders Frustrate Onteora Eleven, 20-6

By J.P. O'SHAUGHNESSY
Freeman Staff

HIGHLAND—Before, during and after Saturday's UCAI football opener against Onteora, coach Lem Atkins was surveying and bemoaning the grassy ooze that was his Highland High field.

"Will you look at this field," he said, sloshing across the mid-field stripe towards the home team bench. "This type of field hurts both teams."

However, the sloppy conditions didn't hurt Highland enough to prevent it from scoring a convincing, if somewhat frustrating, 20-6 victory over the Indians and spoiling OCS coach John Meehan's opening weekend.

"We made a lot of mistakes, especially on offense," said Meehan, "but they were a good team, much more of a power team than we were today."

One of the key factors in the contest was obvious even before the starting whistle—the difference in team size, with Onteora seemingly on the short end in almost every position. And indeed, after the Indians' first three plays went for no gain, no gain and a five-yard loss, while Highland jumped out to two quick first downs once it got the ball, Big Blue fans were envisioning a rout.

But such was not the case, and the first quarter went by scoreless, with Highland threatening and Onteora's swarming defense, led by Rick Frankel, Pete Olkowski, Mike Benson, Lance Klerker and

In the second period, the pattern for the game became obvious. Alternating backs John Eichler, Stephen Baines and Kevin Colabella, the Big Blue slogged right at the lighter Indian defense in a relentless 48-yard, nine-play drive at the beginning of the quarter that ended with halfback Joe Passante running a nine-yard reverse for the game's first score. The conversion pass from Jeff Gersch to Frank Ronkese gave Highland an 8-0 lead.

Onteora fought back, but was unable to make ground consistently against the Highland defense of Kevin Hansut, Sean Murphy, Dan Savarese and Dave Will, among others. With the field making footing treacherous for quarterback Ben Hill to set up, and also taking away the outside running game, the Indians were forced to play Highland's type of game.

In the third quarter, Highland put together an 64-yard drive in 11 plays for the second score, with Colabella going over from the twomaking the score 14-0. The last Big Blue tally came in the last moments of the game, as linebacker and reserve fullback Louis Morales took the ball around the right side for five yards and a 20-0 bulge.

With less than a minute and a half remaining, Onteora came to life and staged a furious 65-yard passing drive as Ben Hill threw frantically, and amazingly accurately, to Steve Ross and Pete Kraft. The lone Indian score finally came with just 16 seconds remaining as Hill flipped two yards to Kraft in the right corner of the end zone.

After the game, Atkins was pleased but a little frustrated that his offense did not have the opportunity to really show what it had. "We've got the speed to hurt people outside, but we couldn't do that today. I thought John's (Meehan) team played well, but the field took a lot away from both sides, especially in the passing."

For the Onteora, the story was told in the opposition's power and in the mistakes of the Indian offense. "They were stronger than us up the middle, but our offense really hurt us with penalties and fumbles. Everytime we got a good drive started we had a penalty or we lost the ball."

Someone suggested that Onteora's small but quick and swarming defense was going to do a lot better on a drier field. "Yeah," shrugged Meehan, "but you have to win on the wet ones, too."

New Paltz Dumps EHS

NEW PALTZ—New Paltz High School's varsity football team picked up where it left off from last season here Saturday, but did it four points better as the Huguenots ripped rebuilding Ellenville, 29-0 in an Ulster County Scholastic League game.

In the process of defeating the Blue Devils by four more points than they did in 1975, the Hugies ran up 474 yards in total offense (275 rushing, 199 passing), utilized nine rushers and two quarterbacks, and made the home crowd very happy.

"For a first game, we were pleased with our effort," said New Paltz coach John Ford. "The offense executed well and the defense was excellent. Ellenville's execution and personnel are better than last year," added Ford. "I think they can be a good football team. They were much bigger than we were. Ellenville is competitive."

Such praise may make the Blue Devils feel better about the prospects of improving their 0-8-1 mark of 1975, but they'll have to do better on offense than they did against the Hugies. Ellenville's closest penetration was to the Hugie 30-yard line.

New Paltz scored in the first quarter when end Jeff McKelvey took a 15-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Todd Krieg and turned it into a 25-yard touchdown play. Russell Titsch kicked the extra point to make it 7-0.

Fullback Dino Toscani capped a 12-play, 60-yard drive in the third quarter with a three-yard touchdown scamper up the middle. Krieg hit McKelvey on the conversion to make it 15-0. Later in the quarter, senior James McVea scored on a 14-yard run to end an eight-play, 50-yard drive. Titsch's kick made it 22-0.

The final score came in the fourth quarter when reserve QB Kyle Peterson hit Toscani with a pass from the Ellenvills four for the tally. Peterson's 20-yard strike to McKelvey helped set up the TD. Titsch's kick made it 29-0.

Greg Plantier led the Hugie rushers with 55 yards in 10 carries, followed by Randy Freer (9-52), Toscani (6-24), Titsch (8-36) and Phil Donohue (3-23).

Ford praised the work of defenders Steven Wells and John Schulte and the entire offensive line: center Mark Burke, guards Richard Andradez and Michael Davis, tackles Keith Schiller and Will Scott, McKelvey at end and Jeff Taylor at the other end.

Sawyer Booters Win, 2-1; KHS Ties Arlington, 1-1

KINGSTON—Surprises were the order of the day in opening games for both county high school varsity soccer teams. Saugerties pulled a big upset, beating perennial power Spackenkill, 2-1 Saturday morning in Saugerties, and Kingston tied Arlington, last year's Dutchess County Scholastic League champion, 1-1 in a rain-shortened game Friday afternoon at Loughran Park.

For the Sawyers, it was their first victory in five seasons over the Spartans, who are picked along with Arlington to lead the DCSL. "They have twice the numbers and twice the size," said Saugerties head coach Tony Elia about Spackenkill. "I'm very pleased with our team. It did well under pressure. We controlled the momentum of the game a little better than they did even though they were stronger physically."

Bobby Benzenhoefer's two goals were sandwiched around a successful penalty kick by the Spartans in the eighteenth minute. Benzenhoefer scored at the fifteen minute mark with an assist from Tom Carr, and then was awarded a goal at 22:00 when a Spackenkill defender deflected a teammate's pass into his own net. The Spartans missed a penalty kick in the third minute, and it loomed much larger as the game wore on.

Saugerties goalkeeper Jim Hackett, a senior playing in his first-ever soccer game, fullbacks Andy Limari and Russ Gorio and halfbacks and brothers Paul and Dave Martin were standouts for the Sawyers.

Kingston's game was called at the end of the first half due to the rainstorm that hit at about 4:30 p.m. Friday. Arlington's Art Tryxell scored at 20:05 unassisted and Tiger Eric Ten Broeke scored at 30:15 with an assist from Emile Jordan.

Young, Crocker In Tie

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI)—Veterans Donna Caponi Young and Mary Lou Crocker, playing almost identical rounds with two-under-par 71s, surged into a tie for the lead Saturday after 36 holes in the $45,000 LPGA Portland Ladies Classic.

Crocker and Young each had two birdies and 16 pars for a 36-hole score of 143, three under par on the 6,399-yard layout.

Their surge shot them past faltering Beth Stone, the first round leader, with a 69, who soared to a five-over-par 78 in the second round and fell back into the pack.

The leading twosome had a one-stroke lead over two other veterans, Mary Mills and Clifford Ann Creed, both under two under par at 144. Mills, a former Womens Open and LPGA champion, had one of the day's best rounds with a three-under-par 70 and called the greens "the best in the world, bar none."

Two strokes back of the leaders and the only player at one under par was Kathy Postlewait, who had a three-under 70 to go with a first round 75 for a 36-hole total of 145.

Young, back-to-back winner of the U.S. Womens Open in 1969 and 1970, agreed with Mills, Crocker and Creed that "putting will win this tournament Sunday." All called the tree-lined Portland Golf Club layout a placement and position golf course, which requires skill to set up accurate approach shots and a true eye on the quick, wide-breaking bent grass green. "Nearly every putt I made today broke at least four feet," Young said.

Stone, the only player to turn in a score in the 60s in two rounds of play, got into trouble immediately with a double bogey on one and another double bogey on 12, followed by two bogeys at 13 and 14 to come in with a second round score nine shots higher than her first days play. Creed could have tied for the lead, but she three-putted 14 when she was three under and tied for the lead only to fall a stroke behind Crocker and Young.

Four players were at even par, including current U.S. Womens Open champ JoAnne Carner, the tourney favorite, with a score of 146. Others even were Sandra Spucich, who had a three under round Saturday, Sue Roberts and Judy Kimball.

Stone was tied with five others at one over par.

Young said the field is so tightly bunched near the top that "I wouldn't be surprised if we have a playoff on Sunday."

Ben Hill (12) releases OCS touchdown pass

Marlboro Stuns RH

RED HOOK — Marlboro High won its first opening day football game since 1972 here Saturday, ripping highly regarded UCAI foe Red Hook, 28-8 with a surprising show of offensive power.

A three man rushing attack that rolled up 317 yards on the Raiders carried the Dukes to their triumph. Terry Monroe picked up 123 yards as the workhorse of the backfield, Anthony Monroe and Sean O'Boyle combined for another 100, and all three runners scored a touchdown.

Terry Monroe's score in the fourth period on a seven yard blast tightened the vise on the Raiders. "Then I felt confident we were going to win it," said Duke coach Dennis Burkett. "We had played pretty spotty despite having a 16 point half-time lead, and Red Hook came out and scored almost immediately in the third quarter. The game was really on equal terms right then."

The Dukes gained the upper hand with a string of power plays that ate up 70 yards and better than six minutes. Red Hook, its back to the wall with time running out, couldn't get it back, and the winners regained possession and marched to a clinching touchdown with O'Boyle bucking in from the three.

Both squads were a little unsteady at the start. Anthony Monroe put Marlboro ahead with a nine yard dash then took a conversion toss from quarterback Dave Onusko for an 8-0 lead. The Dukes weren't dominating yet, but they doubled their advantage in the second period as Anthony Monroe hit John Gallagher off the option.

They weren't fluke TD's, but they didn't convince Burkett. "We had a lot of breaks," he said. "I think if we played again the score would be a lot closer, but I do think we were the better team."

Red Hook flashed its striking ability in the third period to climb back into the contest. Rookie quarterback Ken Staats, who was intercepted four times by the Duke secondary, got one bomb through the screen to Al Moore, and better than six minutes. Red Moore turned it into a 38 yard touchdown. The Dukes,

Burkett was enjoying the victory. "We've been down a long time here, and we've paid our dues," he said. "In the past we've just had that one good lineman or that one good back, but today I couldn't single anybody out. Our offensive line did a tremendous job. I think we've turned the corner."

UCAL Cross Country: Three Top Contenders for Coleman's Crown

By BRUCE GOLDBERG
Freeman Staff

KINGSTON—Coleman High School's domination of the Ulster County Athletic League cross country scene may be ending. And Red Hook, Pine Bush and Onteora are the potential candidates to end that string during the season which begins Tuesday.

The Statesmen may even have trouble winning their own division, facing challenges from improved teams at Highland, Fallsburgh and Marlboro. Coleman has won the last three UCAL championship meets and has not lost a dual meet over the same three seasons.

The departure of coach Joe Keller combined with the graduation loss of some top seniors are the main reasons some other squad may finally overtake the Statesmen. Ed Synan is the new Coleman coach, and other new men include Jack Carter at Ellenville, Leo Cecil at Fallsburgh, Ed Douglas at Highland and Steve Coleman at Liberty.

In case you've forgotten, Coleman won the UCAL meet with 43 points last October, followed by Pine Bush (71), Red Hook (81), Onteora (122), New Paltz (133), Marlboro (163), Ellenville (194), Rondout Valley (212), Liberty (215), Walkill (252), Highland (278), Fallsburgh (302). Twelve of the top 25 finishers in that meet return this season.

A Division

Coleman has a big turnout (25), with over half experienced. Half a dozen girls brighten up the workouts. Senior Damian Prendergast (17th in the UCAL meet) and senior Jimmy Farrell (ninth) are the top returnees, along with seniors John Wallace and John Masterson and juniors Armand Benincasa, Todd Schroeder and Tommy Price. Synan is no stranger to these runners; he's coached track the last two years.

Marlboro was 5-1 and fifth in the UCAL meet in 1975, and coach Mike Smith says, "the team is much stronger than last year." He has only one senior, Kevin Hammill, who ran as a sophomore but not last year. Juniors Bill Lyons, Mike Snyder, twins Jerry and Joe Patterson and soph Jim Rhodes lead the team, but don't count out sophs Joe Mannese, Bill DeSantis, Bill Kovacs and junior Bob Borchat.

Highland and Fallsburgh, along with the Dukes, all have a shot with Coleman for first place in the A division. Senior Eric Anderson leads Highland's nine returnees, and the top seven will include seniors John Dean, Cheryl Dunn, Robert Janso, Chris Mack, junior Michael LaRoche and freshman Michael Russell. Douglas expects improvement.

Cecil's last-place UCAL team returns six of the top seven runners from '75. "I expect to do much better," said Cecil. Soph Jose Rodriguez and his freshman brother Lionel, juniors Donald Buckner, Herbie Finn, Randall Collura, Zenon Tidhorodecky and the lone senior, Isaac Monroe, lead the way. This is a young, improving team, one to watch.

Ellenville lost only three to graduation but has only seniors Roger Buchwalter, Ken Wallace and Brian Konst and juniors Martin Nesbitt and Scott Ryan with experience. The 4-2 Blue Devils have a new all-weather track. Liberty has junior Jason Wach (tenth in UCAL), senior Ken Mariner and a big turnout.

B Division

Red Hook, Onteora and Pine Bush are the haves; New Paltz, Rondout and Walkill the have-nots. Pine Bush was 6-0 last year and was the UCAL meet runnerup to Coleman. The Bushmen pushed four runners into the top 25, including senior Sam Horton, who was second to Red Hook's outstanding senior returnee Mark Gravino, three-time UCAL meet champ.

Red Hook coach Jim Cauldwell lost only two seniors to graduation and has 35 runners, including Gravino, junior Ricky Hoss (twelfth), seniors Matt Kurdziel and David Wright and juniors Ralph Pulver, Carl Schneider and John Dalzell. "We should be a strong candidate for No. 1," said Cauldwell.

Pine Bush has Horton, senior Al Schmidt, junior Kevin Krener (twenty-second) and a flock of youngsters—sophs Bill Hatch, Henry Eisloeffe, Mark DeMouth and freshman Mike Quinn. Five of the first eight runners graduated.

Onteora's Bernie Stahl has his biggest turnout (30) ever, senior Bryn Gabriel (sixth), junior John Black (20th) and loads of talent. It includes freshman Craig Smith, sophs Pete Antkowiak and Graig Drake and seniors Al Conrardt, Mark Thompson, Roger Smith and Jeff Schlosser. His top girl is Dorian Lambel, a junior transfer from Saugerties.

New Paltz has one experienced runner, senior Steve James, son of coach Dick James. Steve James was eighth in the UCAL and will lead a team that lost seven seniors but has its biggest turnout (22) ever. Prospects include sophs Jim Olivero and Larry Hiller, senior Rudy Sonnensen and freshman Hans Hillested.

Rondout returns just three from a 2-8 squad, including junior William Walsh (18th), soph Jack Snyder and senior Bruce Davenport. Walkill returns senior John Christianson and has prospects in Scott Thom, Don Berrynn and Harold Auchmoody.

BOWLING

KINGSTON — Ted Layman came up with one of the early season's better triples this week as he rolled a 635 three-bagger in the Saugerties Rollers League to top area bowling action. Bob Shelighner had a 247 and Bob "Tall" Smith, who last year set a City record with a 210 average fell below the 600 mark but still has a 203 mark for two weeks' play.

Jerry Jones unloaded a 247 enroute to a Monday Nited Mixed 623. Al Fassbender and Mike Dobbs each fired 606s in Mannie's Barber Shop action. Ralph Mayone, Sr., had a 604 in the Thursday Night Men's B League. John Clark hit 600 on the nose in the Champlain loop.

Today He's No. 1 Against Vikings

Rams' Haden Welcomes Chance to Start

By UPI

Pat Haden may not like the way he got to be No. 1 but he isn't complaining. He just welcomes the chance.

Haden became the Los Angeles Rams' No. 1 quarterback last week when Ron Jaworski followed James Harris' preseason hand injury with a shoulder separation in the opening game win over the Atlanta Falcons.

And Haden, who has been called too short and not quick enough to quarterback in the National Football League, will get a stiff test since the Rams are in Minnesota today to face the Vikings in a battle of division champions.

"I really never thought I was going to be a pro quarterback," said the 5-foot-11 Haden. "But things went well and I did some good things with the Southern California Sun in the WFL. That got the idea into my head that I could play in the NFL."

Haden was leading the WFL in passing when he left for England to study under the Rhodes Scholarship.

"I'm really sorry to see James and Ronnie go down," he added, "but this is a chance for me that a lot of people don't get. It's up to me to produce now that I have the opportunity. I didn't think it would come so fast but now that it's here, it's up to me to make the best of it."

"I know I haven't reached my full potential as a quarterback yet and I hope this will be a step in that direction. I just want to show what I can do Sunday and if I play well against a team like Minnesota, one of the best in the NFL, well, who knows?"

"Two weeks ago I was third string. Now I'm number one. Things change very quickly in this league."

Haden's only pass last week turned out to be a 47-yard touchdown to Ron Jessie and Rams Coach Chuck Knox is confident Haden can spark a victory over the Vikings, who toyed with New Orleans 40-7 in their opener.

"We're faced with a situation where we have one quarterback and he's a rookie going up against one of the top teams in the NFL," said Knox. "But he has great maturity for a young man and along with that, he has great confidence in his ability. He's not the kind of quarterback who is going to get you beat by making a lot of foolish mistakes. He's got a strong arm and I have confidence in him."

"I've never mentioned anything about his size. He's big enough to throw the football. The football is not heavy. You don't have to be big to throw it or to run with it."

Minnesota, with a powerful veteran team led by quarterback Fran Tarkenton, is a 3½-point favorite. Viking defensive end Jim Marshall, starting his 224th game in a row, will equal George Blanda's record for consecutive games played. Marshall hasn't missed a game in 17 years since joining Cleveland in 1960.

In other games today, Cleveland is at Pittsburgh, Cincinnati at Baltimore, Chicago at San Francisco, Atlanta at Detroit, Seattle at Washington, Green Bay at St. Louis, Dallas at New Orleans, Houston at Buffalo, San Diego at Tampa Bay, the New York Jets at Denver, the New York Giants at Philadelphia and Miami at New England. Oakland is at Kansas City Monday night.

Defending NFL champion Pittsburgh, stunned by Oakland's 17 points in the last five minutes for a 31-28 loss, goes against Cleveland without star wide receiver Lynn Swann, who suffered a concussion against the Raiders.

Sports Briefs

Ken Isn't Bothered By His Role

GROSSINGER (UPI) — Ken Norton is the underdog for his upcoming heavyweight title fight with champion Muhammad Ali on Sept. 28 at Yankee Stadium, but that fact doesn't bother the 31-year-old contender.

"The champ always has a slight advantage when he defends the title," Norton explained Saturday at his training camp. "Any opponent in a championship fight has to do something special to take the crown," Norton said.

"They'll be 62,000 people at Yankee Stadium for this one, and I expect about 80 per cent of them to be rooting for Ali. That just makes me even meaner, though, and when I whup Ali it will give me that much more gratification. I'll be beating them all."

"The judges give Ali the edge even before the fight begins, so I'll have to win this one decisively. I don't want another one point decision like the last fight with Ali. If I don't knock him out, I guarantee I'll make him quit," he said.

Norton completed his ninth week of training for the fight as he continued his grueling two hour workouts in the gym and daily five mile runs.

"In order to do what I want to do in the fight I'm going to have to be in perfect physical condition," he said. "My head is filled with confidence, and mentally I know what must be achieved. Physically, I should peak in the middle of next week."

"Then it's a matter of putting all the pieces together."

Bethel Ends Grid Drought

BRANDT, Ohio (UPI) — Bethel High School football coach Larry Giangulio has been dreaming of victory since he was 12 years old, but since taking over the Bees helm in 1974, he hadn't even come close.

Friday night, however, Bethel routed Ansonia, scoring an impressive 40-0 victory.

"You have given me one of the greatest things in life: the first victory," Giangulio told his players in an emotional speech after the game.

The Bees gained national attention when they were outscored 723-0 over a 14-game stretch of a victory drought that dated back to 1973.

"The nonsense is over," Giangulio said, referring to the attention the team received during its leaner years. "I am calling NBC and CBS, and they are going to know we won. I am going to let everyone know, for the sake of the kids."

Bethel hadn't won a game since Oct. 19, 1973, including all of the 1974 season and four games last year, when the team was unable to score a point.

"This one (victory) is also for last year's seniors and for the ones who suffered through the great agony two years ago and didn't have the opportunity to experience this," said Giangulio. Bethel's 40 points, besides giving the Bees a 1-1 record this season, also was a school record.

NBA Braves Deny Trade Reports

BUFFALO (UPI) — The co-owner and the general manager of the National Basketball Association Buffalo Braves have denied published reports that the club was planning to trade guard Ernie DiGregorio and rookie forward Adrian Dantley.

Braves co-owner John Y. Brown Jr. said he was still looking for talent but added "there is nothing going on at this time." General Manager Bob MacKinnon called the trade reports "absolutely false."

A published report Friday indicated that the Braves were willing to trade DiGregorio and Dantley, the club's number one draft pick from Notre Dame, to Denver for 6-6 forward Gus Gerard and cash.

"I'm not going to say that there won't be any more changes but there is nothing going on at this time," said Brown, former owner of the Kentucky Colonels of the American Basketball Association who bought 50 per cent of the Braves during the summer.

Bobby Camper Has Way With Trotters

MONTICELLO — Veteran trainer-driver Bobby Camper had just finished jogging a pacer, the last one of the morning, and he sat on a bench near the Monticello Raceway paddock to enjoy the sun and talk about horses.

For me training and driving is pretty much just a job now," said Bobby. There are a lot of headaches running a stable. Camper, 47, has been driving standardbred horses for 24 years, the last 17 of them at Monticello. The soft-spoken Delaware native paused for a few moments to ponder his subject and continued.

I still get a big thrill out of seeing a young horse develop, he said. With the older ones you know pretty much what you have. It's pretty much a cut and dried situation. But with the younger ones there's that sense of mystery.

Camper runs 12 horses, and is noted for having a stable of high quality. In 1976, for instance, he has had only 49 starts here. But out of that number he has won 22 times, giving him the incredible winning percentage of .449.

Around the barn area they say that Bobby Camper has a way with trotters, and the two horses that have given him the biggest kick this year are both female trotters. And, naturally, they are both young and still developing.

The pair are Dribdal and Farm Vicky. The three-year-old Dribdal went a mile in 1:59 at Syracuse, making her the fastest trotting filly in the New York Sire Stakes.

When I first got her I had trouble controlling her, he said. She's headstrong and likes to go right out. I'd get her to the races and she'd be rank and trot herself out too soon.

So Camper, using the patient horseman's technique of trial and error, finally decided to try a mini-bit on Dribdal. The mini-bit fits right in behind a regular driving bit.

It worked the first time I tried it, said Camper. This gave me better control and she didn't resent it. She still goes right out - that's her style - but now I can control her and keep her from breaking.

The other trotter, four-year-old Farm Vicky, got so good that she literally ran out of competition at Monticello. Earlier in the year, she ran off a string of seven consecutive wins before being shipped out of town.

She just kept getting better and better, said Camper with obvious satisfaction.

What has been the biggest change in harness racing in the years he has been in it?

The claiming race, said Camper without hesitation. What it did was allow a lot of people to become instant trainers or drivers. People who didn't want to put the years in to learn what they were doing. There are no shortcuts in this business.

Whatever the case, while much of the thrill is gone for Camper, there is still the uncertainty of tomorrow. He has, for instance, a mare in foal that was sired by the champion trotter Dayan and another by the good pacer Yankee Bambino. And to hear him talk, he can hardly wait for these foals to be born so that he can work his magic on them.

For Bobby Camper, the future is what harness racing is all about.

Knicks Open Camp Thursday

NEW YORK— The veteran phase of the New York Knickerbockers' 1976-77 training camp at Monmouth College in West Long Branch, N.J. opens Thursday with holdovers from last year's squad joining rookies and team newcomers who have been in camp since last Friday.

Three of the veterans — Walt Frazier, Earl Monroe and Bill Bradley — will be beginning their tenth season. Two others, Spencer Haywood and Butch Beard, will be making training camp with the Knicks for the first time, having joined the club after last season began. Also, newly-acquired Jim McMillan will be making his camp debut under the coaching of Red Holtzman.

Frazier, dogged by more physical problems last season than he had ever endured as an athlete, missed 23 of the club's 82 games in the 1975-76 campaign. In eight previous seasons, he had failed to suit up for only 24 games. Monroe, the team's offensive leader last season, set the scoring tempo with 1,574 points although he, too, missed eight games with minor hurts.

Bradley has announced that this will be his final swing around the NBA and McMillan, purchased two weeks ago from the Buffalo Braves, is expected to be groomed for the small forward slot.

Haywood, the Knicks' top rebounder last season and 17th among the league's boardmen, was dealt to New York by Seattle just prior to the opening of last season and had to learn the Holtzman system as he went along. Beard, too, did not join the club until the Thanksgiving weekend when he was obtained, via waivers, from the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Others among the holdovers who will join the rookies Thursday are John Gianelli, Phil Jackson, Jim Barnett, Mel Davis, Neal Walk and Harthorne Wingo. For Jackson this will be the ninth active campaign (he sat out the 1969-70 season because of a back injury) while Barnett, who has been with five other clubs, has already played ten seasons.

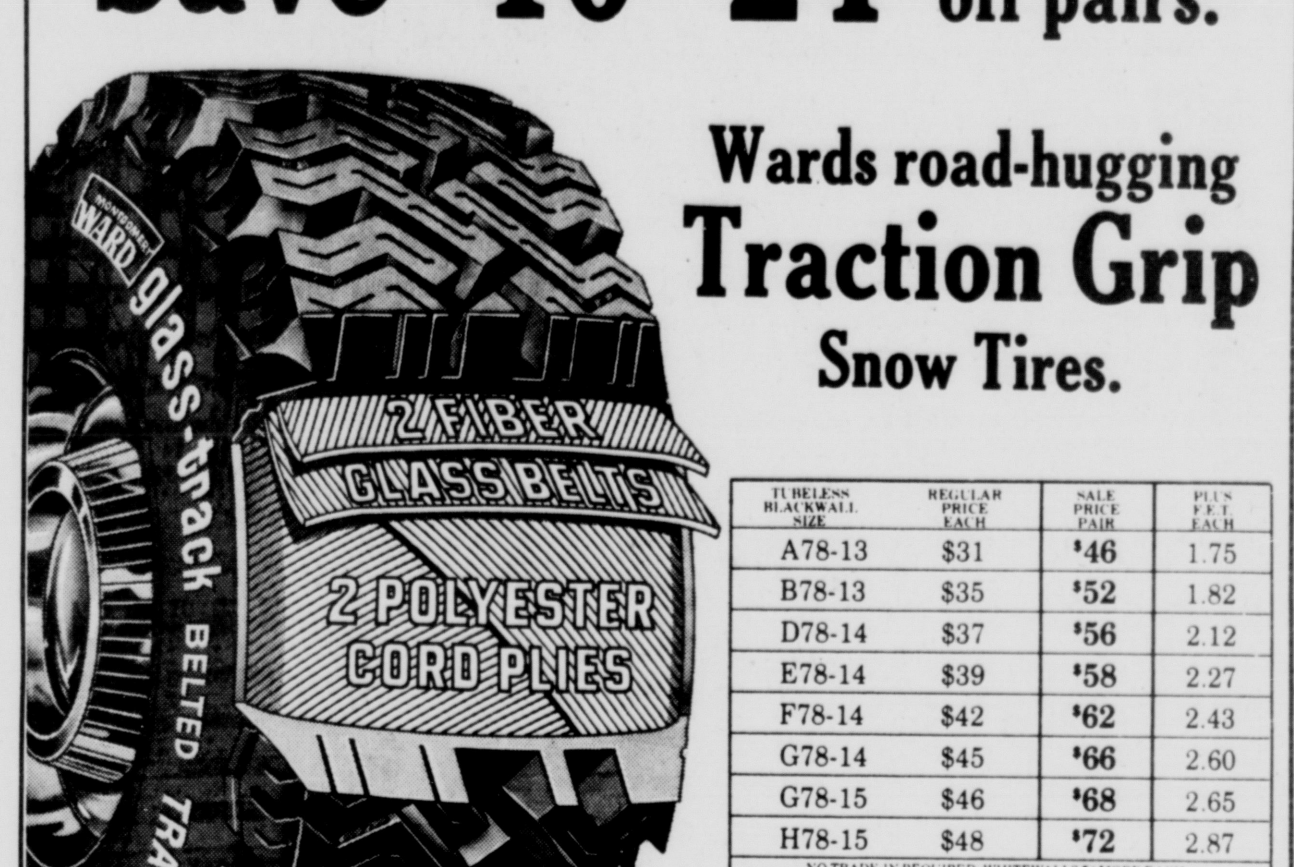

Eugene Short, who played his rookie season a year ago, is with the newcomers and first-timers at Monmouth. Among those with NBA experience already at camp are Ticky Burden, who last season paced the Virginia Squires of the now-defunct American Basketball Association; Randy Denton, who also played in the ABA; and Dennis Layton, who played for Phoenix and Portland.

Foremost among the rookie candidates is Lonnie Shelton, the former Oregon State ace who was the Knicks' top pick in the second round of the college draft last June.

EDWINSTOWE, England (UPI) — The trouble with Robin Hood, said Ian Solly, is that he is so popular his fans were killing off Sherwood Forest.

"It just got impossible," Solly said near two 400-year-old oak trees. "We were getting 20,000 people here on a Sunday. The trees just couldn't stand it."

Solly is head ranger of a forest rescue project which is trying to rejuvenate the only patch of Sherwood Forest still surviving as Robin Hood and his Merrie Men may have known it.

He presides over the striking new Sherwood Forest Visitor Center, a series of half-buried huts blending into the surrounding woods, which opened earlier this year.

"Everyone who comes here comes because he's heard of Robin Hood," Solly said.

So an exhibition dutifully tells visitors of this legendary outlaw who poached the king's deer and robbed the rich to help the poor.

But then the exhibit cunningly leads visitors on through the history of Sherwood Forest itself. It makes social points about the brutal "forest law" which made Robin an outlaw, makes ecological points about the still-continuing rape and ruin of his great forest.

A few hundred yards into the forest sprawls the most famous tree in England, the gnarled old giant called the Major Oak. It is a huge, much-doctored tree. Its burl trunk is some 32 feet around.

The Major is supposed to have been Robin Hood's "headquarters" tree, a rallying point for his outlaw band. This belief brings so many people to touch the Major that their feet were killing the old oak tree, compacting the ground so hard that food and water could not reach its roots.

So this year a new path winds from the Visitor Center. The old path is closed. Now, a fence surrounds the patched-up old tree. Its venerable branches rest on props and are tied together with cables. A sign on the fence pleads, "Give it a rest."

Unsuspecting visitors to the new center — built on concrete rafts to avoid harming tree roots — find a few romantic notions about Robin Hood and his golden age gently deflated.

There is a weird, grotesque look about this stretch of ancient oaks 142 miles north of London.

Its green glades are punctured by massive oaks which seem blasted on top, their dead branches bare and contorted like witches' arms. The forest looks virgin, untouched since the beginning of time.

Playboy: The Male Virgins Up

CHICAGO (UPI) — Women college students are more active sexually but male virginity has grown in the last six years, according to Playboy magazine.

The magazine, reporting the results of its annual college survey, said that 49 per cent of the women polled in 1970 said they graduated as virgins. Only 26 per cent made the same claim this year.

Male virgins increased from 18 per cent in 1970 to 26 per cent in 1976.

"This magical equality of percentages means that students have arrived at that promised land — a sexual utopia where the women are just as active sexually as the men," Playboy said in its October issue.

Researchers chose 20 colleges and universities for their survey, polling a random sampling from school directors. In all, 3,700 students responded.

The turkey's best friend, who also had little good to say about the bald eagle, was Benjamin Franklin. In 1784 he wrote his daughter from France: "The bald eagle is a bird of bad moral character, like those men who live by robbing, while the turkey is a much more respectable bird, a true native of America." He recommended the turkey, instead of the bald eagle, as the national symbol, The World Almanac notes.

Landowners once "farmed" oak trees commercially here. They simply abandoned it 180 years ago when they found coal underneath — 11 major mines in the Sherwood Forest area now produce 9 million tons a year.

then, were just left," Solly said. "They're now, say, 400 years old and nearing the end of their life — dying of old age. Oaks tend to die off from the top, which is why they look as they do."

Another surprise is that Sherwood was never an unbroken impenetrable forest. Even when it covered a third of Nottinghamshire, it included farms and open land. The "forest law" which ruled it was brutal and savage — its penalty for poaching the king's deer was blindness or emasculation. Fences were banned. Cutting a tree brought fearsome retribution. Even carrying a bow and arrows was a major crime. The law was conservation of a sort. But its severity made outlaws of many bands of men. Were any of these men named Robin Hood?

Robin ever really lived," the exhibit confesses.

He is first mentioned in literature written about 1377. Ballads about him were the underground literature of medieval England.

40 for HHH, None for Mondale

Honorary Degrees...But Are They?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — One Minnesota senator, Hubert H. Humphrey, has 40. It may be the record.

The other Minnesota senator, Walter F. Mondale, apparently has none.

Is this good or bad? Until a few weeks ago, the consensus surely would have been that honorary degrees were entirely honorable.

But that was before the Washington Post published a report that the South Korean government had tried to win friends and influence people on Capitol Hill by offering honorary degrees to members of Congress.

Scandalwise, this disclosure was hardly in the class with the revelations of payoffs to foreign officials by U.S. corporations doing business overseas.

Nevertheless, one House member who turned down a Korean honorary doctorate said he regarded it as "a form of bribery."

In the post-Watergate climate of extreme political sensitivity toward anything that smacks of corruption, it could be that the lawgivers now will begin to think twice about accepting even domestic honorary degrees.

A check of the 1976 Congressional Directory indicates that traffic in these ceremonial ego-builders has been heavy. Of the 535 senators and representatives whose biographies appear in the directory, more than 75 list themselves as recipients of one or more honorary doctorates. And that may be just the tip of the sheepskin.

There undoubtedly are a goodly number of other lawgivers who have been so honored but for some reason did not include it in their biographical sketches.

Possibly modesty forbade them to mention it. Perhaps they were arrogant enough to deem it unworthy of mention. Whatever.

Moreover, some lawgivers list what are obviously honorary degrees without identifying them as such. To the untrained eye, it might appear that these degrees were scholastic achievements.

The Post named 11 House members as having received honorary degrees from South Korean institutions of higher learning. Yet only one of them made mention of it in the directory.

On the other hand, one senator and one House member not named by the Post identify themselves as holders of South Korean degrees.

Obviously, the directory is not a reliable indicator of how widespread international honorary degreeism has become.

For the record, one congressman holds two honorary degrees from Canada. Two others have doctorates from colleges in Peru and West Germany.

However, the vast preponderance of honorary degrees come from American institutions. Among them are several honorary doctor of law degrees given out by osteopathic colleges.

Curiously, there are no honorary doctor of osteopathy degrees awarded by law colleges.

No one has accused osteopaths of trying to curry favor for their profession by buttering up congressmen with honorary degrees. Oftentimes, however, there is a quid pro quo at work in these matters.

Obscure, backwater colleges have been known to use honorary degrees as bait to lure big name speakers to their commencement exercises.

Should honorary degrees become suspect as a result of the South Korean controversy, the cloud could spread to other ceremonial badges of distinction — honorary citizenships, keys to the city and the like.

Carried to extreme, the day would come when no congressman would dare enlist in the Nebraska Navy or be commissioned a Kentucky Colonel.

Hippie Squatters Live Like Lords

ONDON (UPI) — A group of hippies drawing welfare benefits is living like lords in a $360,000 west London mansion full of antique furniture — as squatters.

There have been comfortable "squats" in London before, even in stately Regent Terrace, owned by the Crown and overlooking Regent's Park. But the occupants had to make do with orange boxes as furniture.

This house in sedate uppercrust Kensington has so many more of the desirable comforts of life.

Reporters who visited the house found squatter leader Michael Stewart, a 35-year-old West Indian who wears his hair in tight ringlets fastened with colored beads, sitting in a Chippendale-style chair beneath the crystal chandelier in the drawing room. His companions lolled about on the deep-pile carpet in front of the Adam fireplace.

In the evening the occupants can spend a quiet evening in the library or languish on one of the green velvet sofas in front of the huge circular television — one of two color sets in the house.

It is a house fit for a top politician or an oil sheikh. Indeed, that is what it was — the former residence of Conservative opposition trade spokesman Michael Heseltine. The squatters say it is owned by a Saudi Arabian, although the Saudi Embassy denied any connection with the property.

Stewart has been living in the house for seven months with his Australian girl friend Chrissie Gray, 30. Squatters from Nigeria, China and Wales share the eight-bedroom house with them.

He first occupied the house opposite and moved across the street when he noticed No. 50 was empty.

"It was nicer than the house we were in," he said. "I climbed through a drainpipe and got in through the window."

The neighbors are nice too.

"A member of the aristocracy who lives next door has been okay," said Stewart, who is unemployed and draws a $33 welfare check. His girlfriend gets $39. The state gives them extra for rent, he explained, although none is paid out.

"Everyone must do their bit in cooking, clearing up and housework," Chrissie said. The eight adults each pay $36 weekly towards bills.

Man, 102, Keeps Vivid Memories

DENVER (UPI) — William Barrington, 102, does just fine on 100 cigars a month, an occasional game of sharpshooter pool and crystalline memories of the West when the West was just an ebullient youngster.

His memory is very clear about the day he stepped on 11 rattlesnakes while farming his 160-acre homestead in Colorado.

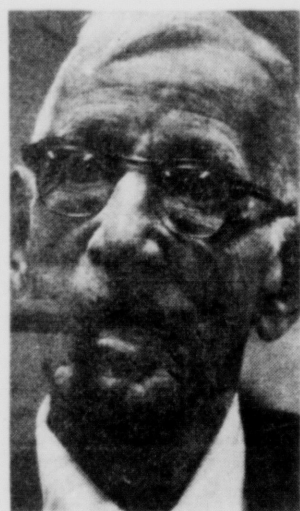

"I walked around on the newly plowed land before dinner and stepped on 11 rattlesnakes. I asked for my high-topped boots and said if they didn't protect me I wanted a pair of stove pipes," he said. "I won't forget that for a long time."

Barrington, wearing a dark suit with a white carnation in the lapel and high-topped shoes, joined 11 other original Colorado settlers for a Bureau of Land Management open house last week. His memories of life on the prairie are vivid.

In 1907, Barrington took out a homestead deed on the farm in southeastern Colorado after spending several years as a blacksmith in Lamar. He remembers the severe winters, the endless winds and the grass-covered distances between farms.

President Woodrow Wilson signed Barrington's deed, which gave him possession of the land in five years if he stayed. The Homestead Act was passed in 1862 to encourage Western settlement and 287.5 million acres were given away nationally.

"There were few settlers and houses, no roads or highways, just paths beaten through the grass," he said. "All our machinery was horse drawn. It was rough and many people gave up."

Doing just fine

Barrington's childhood was marked by covered wagon trips with his six brothers and sisters between his father's farms in Texas and Oklahoma. He learned the blacksmith trade and settled in Oklahoma after he married Laura Maude in 1901.

"It was tough being a blacksmith," said James Barrington, his son. "People didn't pay. I once saw in his ledger that he had $15,000 in back receipts not collected."

So Barrington signed up for the homestead land and turned to farming. Crops included corn, maize and cane. His first house was a 14-foot-square lumber building with a tarp thrown over the top.

"Then later, I built a cement foundation with bolts and built one part of the house at a time and bolted it down. I put a porch on the front and bolted that down," he said. "Someone said the wind would blow it off, but I said it would have to be a cyclone."

Bangladesh..the Four Horsmen Coming

DACCA, Bangladesh (UPI) — Bangladesh imports rocks. It also imports rice, a million tons or more each year. It should export grain, but its yields per acre are the lowest on earth, about one-third the worldwide average.

"The outlook is hopeless," one foreign economist said during a chat about the prospects of the economy of Bangladesh.

"The fact there was an improvement in the last two years means nothing. One of the Four Horsemen is going to be here in the next two, three, five years. They just can't put it together."

In the Bible, the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse are War, Famine, Plague and Death. Singly or in groups they usually visit Bangladesh every year. This year they rode on by, deterred by good monsoons and resultant good crops.

Bangladesh imports rocks from India. They're used for ballast and in road construction. The main import still is food and the total import bill usually runs about $1.2 billion per year.

The main export is jute, which accounts for more than 80 per cent of all exports. The one-crop economy in effect makes Bangladesh a "jute republic" akin to a "banana republic."

The nation, formerly East

Pakistan, became independent in 1971 after a devastating series of rebellions, repressions and a war that shattered the economy. Production is now about even with the 1969-70 level and exports have run about $350 million per year.

During the war of independence, a high U.S. official called the land that would become Bangladesh an "international basket case." Most foreign economists here feel it still is.

Foreign aid keeps the economy going. Since independence the total has gone to $4.4 billion, with the United States accounting for just over $1 billion, much of it in food assistance.

All the aid has been "humanitarian" — no weapons — and it would seem that never have so many given so much to so few. Some would add, "with so little to show for it."

"Even the optimists talk about 30 to 50 years (of more aid)," the foreign economist said. "Nobody's talking about tomorrow."

Will the aid continue? "Yes," he said, "that's what the world does nowadays."

Will it do any good? "My guess is no."

Many officials from voluntary agencies and diplomatic missions here feel the aid has been badly spent.

"There are a lot of missionaries here in a new guise," one official of an international agency said. "People come in and they say, 'My God, what we need is a new sparkling hospital.' They have a two-year grant and a two-year contract. They build a building! There are hundreds of abandoned buildings around here."

One agency will tell stories about the mistakes of another, but of course not about themselves.

The United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) has helped equip rural health centers. For various reasons, mostly poor government planning, fewer than half the beds in the centers are used. More than 50 per cent of the refrigerators UNICEF supplied to the health centers are not used because they need minor repairs.

About half the 500 autos and minibuses the Fund has given to health and family planning programs are off the road, some needing repairs but many beyond fixing. By one account UNICEF recently destroyed $150,000 worth of medicines because they became contaminated while in storage.

Another agency is said to have taught villagers how to build sturdier housing with corrugated iron in addition to the bits of wood and mud usually employed. But the new material couldn't be anchored and when a cyclone came, the iron went spinning through the air like razors, slicing through any person in the way. The villagers rebuilt their houses in the old manner.

Some officials say there are signs that government civil servants themselves want a change.

"The few good men in the government wind up spending 90 per cent of their time trying to convince Western aid donors to rethink their programs," one of the donors said.

Newspaper editor Enayetullah Khan agreed. "We think we should lessen our dependence on aid and develop self-reliance," Khan said.

The military strongman of Bangladesh, Maj. Gen. Ziaur Rahman, is credited by foreign economists with making some progress on the economic front. The rampant corruption that characterized the administration of Sheikh Mujibur Rahman, who was assassinated on Aug. 15, 1975, has dwindled. Ziaur Rahman has removed some of the government controls and consequent red tape from businesses.

Many of the foreigners working here admit to periodic bouts of despair. Yet the same man who says, "this country is the largest one with the most hopeless outlook," adds in the next breath, "History is not on the side of those who predict doom and gloom."

HCL Hike For Some Federals

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Most federal government employees will get a 5 per cent cost of living pay raise Oct. 1 under terms of a proposed congressional compromise.

But Congress decided to deny the increase to itself, federal judges and top-level bureaucrats.

Approving a compromise $1 billion legislative appropriations bill, members of a House-Senate conference committee also agreed to accept a Senate proposal for repeal of the automatic 1 per cent increase added to cost-of-living raises for military and civil service retirement pensions.

This so-called 1 per cent "kicker" enacted by Congress in 1969 has resulted in pensions being raised over the past seven years by 71 per cent, while the Consumer Price Index has increased 56 per cent, resulting in a 15 per cent overpayment.

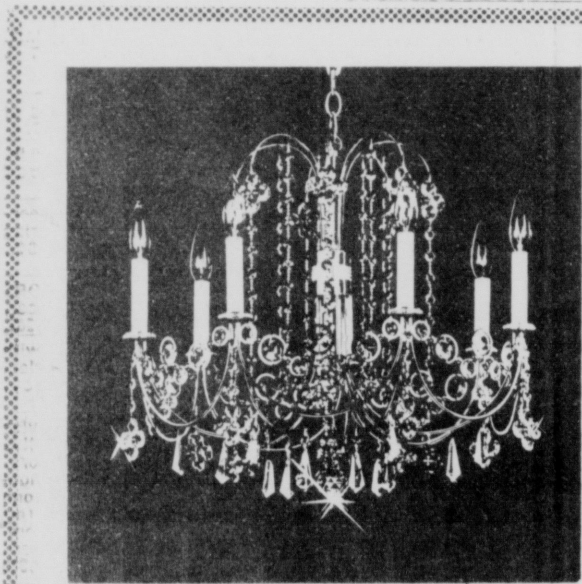

Indianapolis, capital and largest city of Indiana, is located at the geographical center of the state. It is the 11th largest city in the United States, with a consolidated city population of 745,739 according to the 1970 Census and a Metropolitan population of 1,111,173. Indianapolis has an area of 379.4 square miles.

The frontier was no place for squeamish women during the Revolutionary War. Women faced not only rape by enemy soldiers but also abduction, scalping and torture by the British-allied Indians. "Mad Anne" Bailey, the "White Squaw of the Kanawha" in what was then western Virginia, served as patriot scout, messenger, and Indian fighter. A superb horsewoman, Anne rode the frontier in buckskin breeches. The World Almanac recalls, recruiting "Liberty Men" to fight.

Marshall Plan
The famed post-World War II Marshall Plan originated in a June 5, 1947 proposal by Secretary of State George C. Marshall to extend U.S. financial aid to all European countries "willing to assist in the task of recovery." During the next 3.5 years, Congress authorized the spending of some $12 billion on Marshall Plan aid, which was credited with restoring economic health to Western Europe.

If you buy a new Opel now, you get more than a nifty little car with things like rack and pinion steering and a 4-speed manual transmission. You get more than a great deal on the price. You also get 200 gallons of gas. From Buick. This offer runs through October 31. So see your nearest Buick-Opel dealer and strike your best deal on the Opel of your choice. At the estimated EPA city mileage alone of 23 mpg that's 4600 miles. (On the highway, Opel's EPA estimate is 36 mpg.) And we think that's a pretty good way to get in on the fun of owning a new Opel.

City, Highway EPA estimates with manual transmission. Your mileage may vary depending on how and where you drive, the condition of your car and how it is equipped. In California mileage estimates are lower.

What's 'In' In Kingston

Do you aspire to anything higher — and if so, what? Status seekers don't like to talk about it, but a reporter uncovers a few common clues.

Status. Making it. What it takes to rate, to be in— at least in Kingston— is defined more by what it isn't than by what it is.

Status isn't a subject anyone wants to be quoted on.

And it isn't something any two people seem to agree completely about.

What does pervade local opinion seems to be a collective nostalgic look back at the 'used to be days' when social positions were clear, neighborhoods well defined and economic and educational considerations important.

There are still, of course, the "old families" who, in the words of a local realtor "have always been here."

"They're the native. You can go to cocktail parties with them and have a lovely time, but they're really a very close knit, rather exclusive group."

Many of those natives show up on the parish list of the Old Dutch Church, a bastion of traditional devotion to God and county and perhaps a symbol of status in its own right.

But dropping one of those old names seems to have lost its punch in the Kingston of today.

"I think a lot of changes came with the influx of IBM employees in the late 50s," says one life-long Kingstonian.

"They brought a society all their own, largely rooted in their position within the company."

The influx of new faces also disrupted the previously stable housing market.

"If I had to say where the better homes were situated now, it would be a variety of places," comments a woman who has dealt with some of the area's better properties over a number of years.

"You have Pearl Street Extension, Hillside Acres, Skytop. Some of the professional men still live in the grand old houses on West Chestnut and Fair Streets, but mostly everything else is new."

Wiltwyck Country Club may be a symbol of status to the golfing set.

A Spokesman for the Club declined to discuss admission policy without a written request for information which he would then put before Wiltwyck's board of directors.

Perhaps that was a status move in itself.

"I just don't think there is any handful of indicators of real status in Kingston," says another born- and- bred local. "Things that mean something to one group hold absolutely no interest to another."

But there do seem to be a few common status symbols around— judging from the list this reporter compiled while talking to folks around Kingston. Here are a few of them:

- Parents gain status from the academic achievements of their children.

- People with poodles have more status than those with mutts. And shitzus are swankier than poodles.

- Owning a BMW (Bavarian Motor Works) car is in.

- You can add to that by slapping UC license plates on the car.

- Club women belonging to the Junior League or the American Association of University Women are said to have more status than those belonging to an auxiliary.

- Shopping at the Governor Clinton Market is chichi— but only if you're one of the regulars who calls the deli-man by his first name and can bag three dinner invitations between the frozen food and the home-grown cauliflower.

- A personalized tee shirt is trig.

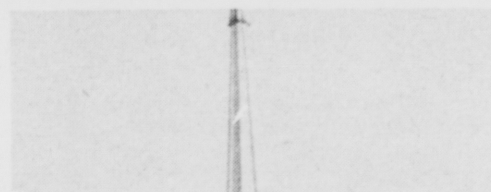

- And a custom- chromed motor cycle is the dernier cri.

Then there's Bombay Gin (which has one-upped Tangueray as a locally in gin), pillboxes from Cartiers, The Palm Beach News on the coffee table next to the hard-cover edition of 'Cole'(Porter), Bobby Short records—and, out in the stable, a couple of anglo-arabian horses.

But if you don't have any of these things, don't worry about it. Status, according to New York Psychologist Hal Wells, is one of the most ephemeral concepts around, a now-you've-got-it, now-you-don't sort of game that's trickier to play than the commodities market. Why waste your time?."

High Falls Restoration

The Brodhead House on Route 213, restored and preserved by American Revival, Inc. as an Inn, offers guests an authentic glimpse into the late Victorian past. The meticulous decorations are the work of Mrs. Dorothy Lynch, left, who spent four months researching and working on the project. Her work included hand-stencilling gold patterns on the dark green-walled hallway pictured on the opposite page—a design she copied from the wall of an old upstate church. American Revival has scheduled an open house at Brodhead Oct 3 from 1 to 5 p.m. Guests can have breakfast and lunch at the new groundfloor restaurant.

Brings New Life

To Historic Buildings

The Bicentennial Year has sparked a lot of interest in historic conservation. But as more communities focus on salvaging landmarks to preserve local character, they're faced with the difficult task of where to begin and what to choose.

The list of possibilities is long—one room school houses; old churches and meeting houses, courthouses, forts, vaudeville theaters, opera houses; rustic farm buildings; mills, dams, railroad stations; viaducts and bridges; cabins and fine mansions.

And many structures in which "George Washington never slept" form an important part of an area's visual surroundings.

Where to begin and what to choose was the task faced by a group of young High Falls men who incorporated their restorative ambitions in 1974 when they set up a business called American Revival. AR's eventual aim is to make "living museums" of as many early High Falls buildings as possible...and to make them economically self-sustaining. The first building purchased by the group was the old Brodhead House on Route 213.

Built in 1855 as a private home and used around the turn of the century as a hospital for laborers on the waterworks, the Brodhead house was approaching terminal delapidation when the group took it over.

But its checkered past has since been erased by plastering, stencilling and period decorating—and the building's unique architectural character and picturesque quality has been revived.

The second floor of the house is now an Inn for overnight or weekend lodgers, and American Revival is confident that the building will eventually pay for its own preservation.

Though it was built in the mid 19th century, the old house been redecorated in the style of 1879—often called Eastlake Victorian. Every corner is filled with antiques, most of them gathered in Marbletown. The Inn offers a choice of rooms appointed in red, or blue, with completely authentic, restored furniture and accoutrements of a century ago at today's motel prices.

Guests can bathe in an enormous claw-footed tub in the blue-and-white picture-printed bathroom, then settle into bed to browse through a 1909 Woman's Home Companion magazine, or a 1903 Harper's Weekly.

The meticulous period decorations represent more than four months of work by interior designer Dorothy Lynch of High Falls.

By poring over the 1887 Sears catalogue and countless women's magazines of long ago, Mrs. Lynch got in step with the Victorian Age. Her nights were spent reading old advertisements and stories, her days occupied with shopping for furniture and those authentic extra touches—celluloid vanity sets, bamboo towel racks, satin and lace handkerchief holders.

With help from several area antique dealers and a real find of furniture at a Minnewaska sale, Brodhead's rooms took form. But gathering antiques for the ambitious project was only the beginning. Mrs. Lynch spent long hours stencilling walls, reproducing tinsel paintings, restoring gold leaf work, painting furniture, and making draperies, bedspreads, and pillows from Battenburg lace and combinations of more modern fabrics.

Victorian style a la Brodhead is far from dark and heavy. The furniture is indeed substantial, but walls have been papered and stenciled in light, airy colors. Period paintings and fringed lamps add a pleasing warmth.

Restoring the old and the lost is a Lynch talent. All the wall and antique restoration on the nearby Depuy Tavern is the result of her art. So, too, is a wall stencil restoration at the Farmers Museum in Cooperstown. An expert pattern maker and restorer of antique clothing, Mrs. Lynch's magnificent costumes will soon be seen in "The New Roof," Kingston's special Bicentennial film. The Lynch touch on other projects has resurrected such oddities as old dogtreadle churns and mail wagons of the 1800's.

To introduce to the public what overnight guests have already relished, American Revival will hold open house Sunday, Oct. 3 from 1 to 5 p.m. at Brodhead. The festivities will include breakfast and lunch at La Gouloue, the new restaurant on the first floor which has replaced the Paradise Bakery.

The young men of American Revival—John Novi, Terry Von Hightower, and Michael Lynch—hope Brodhead House will inspire emulation by others.

His Recipes 'Real', Not Americanized

Don't talk to John Chang about Chop Suey or sweet-and-sour shrimp. Those dishes aren't his cup of tea, and he refers to them rather disdainfully as "Chinese-American style cooking".

What Chang serves at his Saugerties-based Dragon Inn is, in his words, "real Chinese food"—and any customer will be able to taste the difference.

For Chang, there are no substitutes for authentic Chinese ingredients (He'd never, for instance, substitute celery for Chinese Cabbage) and his food has a crispness and clarity to it rarely found outside the best restaurants of urban Chinatowns.

Chang is owner and head chef of the Inn, a lovely old brick building with separate dining rooms and an intimate bar. He moves around the compact, specially equipped kitchen as if he was born to it—and in a way he was.

Chang, who came to this country with his family from Taiwan, first started cooking because, as he puts it, "I love to eat."

He learned the restaurant business in the Kitchen of a large New York City Chinese eatery and took over the Dragon Inn about a year ago. The restaurant serves Mandarin, Szechuan and Hunan dishes as well as those from Chang's native island. He keeps a Cantonese menu in the back—in case anyone requests it—but there are no teagarden variety selections on it.

With one of his sons, Danny, serving as interpreter Chang recently set out to explain and prepare one of his favorite recipes: Polynesian Shrimp.

If you've never ventured into oriental cooking before, read the following directions through at least twice before even making out a shopping list; and make sure you have all the necessary bowls, pans and ingredients before you start.

Quick cooking is the secret of Chinese preparing this and most other Chinese dishes.

Ingredients

8 or 10 large shrimp (about 1 lb.) peeled and cleaned
 ½ cup sliced water chestnuts
 3 or 4 black mushrooms
 4 oz. snow peas (baby pea pods)
 4 oz. miniature corn ears
 2 egg whites (beaten) cornstarch
 1 egg white (unbeaten)
 salt, pepper, MGS salad oil
 sugar
 1 large clove of finely minced garlic chicken broth cooking wine (preferably sauterne)

Kitchen Tools

2 medium sized bowls for mixing a cutting board
 a sharp knife
 a wok or heavy frying pan large enough to hold all the ingredients a strainer set over a heat proof bowl or grease can measuring cups and spoons
 a heated serving platter

JOHN CHANG IN HIS KITCHEN

Method

Slice each shrimp, lengthwise down the middle into long, flat pieces. It's important to try to keep the pieces about the same thickness to insure quick, even cooking.

Slice water chestnuts. You should get three to four pieces from each whole chestnut.

The black mushrooms usually come dried, in a cellophane package. Remove the number you need and soak them for at least an hour in warm water, until they regain their natural soft texture. (Although you may substitute regular white or brown mushrooms in this recipe, you will lose the distinctive taste and texture of the black.)

Baby corn ears come canned and you can find them in some specialty stores. The Changs have also indicated that, given a few days advance notice, they would be happy to order an extra can from their New York suppliers for area residents who wish to try the their recipe.

Starting today, Tempo will feature weekly articles on professional area chefs and their favorite recipes. Today's story was written by Chazy Dowaliby. Photo by Alan Carey.

EXECUTIVE SUITE

Roommates Summer Johnson (Brenda Sykes left), who runs the company day-care center, and Glory Dalessio (Joan Prather), the shop foreman's daughter, discuss the tense undercurrents of the large corporation against which their lives are set, in the premiere episode of 'Executive Suite,' new continuing drama series, Monday, Sept. 20.

A bomb rips the giant Cardway Corporation. Other events are equally explosive, including a bitter fight over adding a new member to the board of directors, and the disclosure of a beautiful woman's past.

While the company's manufacture of a suspected cancer-causing chemical involves the president's maverick daughter in a violent protest group, the firm's leadership quarrels over corporate responsibility in the crisis.

•RECIPE

Preparation

Beat two egg white until frothy, but not quite stiff enough for meringue.

Take sliced shrimp and place in bowl with one unbeaten eggwhite, scant 1/2 tsp. salt, dash white pepper and mix (Chang, like most good cooks measures and stirs with his hands, to get the feel of the food).

To this mixture add about a tablespoon of corn starch and a tablespoon of salad oil. Mix again.

In a separate bowl put 1/2 tbs salt, 1/2 tbs. sugar, 1/2 tbs MSG (Accent — which can be omitted) 2 tbs. sauterne, white pepper to taste, 1/4 cups chicken broth, a level tbs. cornstarch and 1 tbs. sesame oil — if you have it — or vegetable oil. Mix well. That's all the preparation you'll need.

What comes next is the stir-fry cooking that must be done quickly, over a high heat and with a sure hand.

The beauty of Chinese cooking lies half in the unique blend of tastes and half in the delightful arrangement of color and texture the food presents.

The only way you can achieve the blend is to not overcook the ingredients. Food retains enough heat to keep cooking even after you tak it out of the pan, so when in doubt, take it out. Undercooking is better than overcooking this dish.

Cooking

Set the wok or fry pan over a very high flame and pour in at least a cup of vegetable oil. There should be enough to almost cover the shrimp. Cook shrimp on all side, quickly.

When the oil is hot, but not smoking, pour in the shrimp and its batter and stir around in the oil with a slotted spoon.

Almost immediately slide the beeten egg whites into the pan and toss them around with the shrimp. They will puff up into delightful white balls that will all but evaporate by the time your recipe is done, leaving only a smooth semi-sauce behind. Next, slide all the vegetables into the pan, stir once or twice to blend the mix and remove from the fire immediately.

Pour the entire mixture into a strainer that has been set over a heat-proof bowl or grease can. This leaves you with quick-cooked shrimp, vegetables and egg white but no heavy oil residue.

Put the pan back on the fire and return the cooked ingredients to it. Take your remaining bowl of broth, cornstarch and seasoning and pour it into the pan. Add the clove of minced garlic, stir quickly and turn out onto a heated serving platter.

This amount of food serves two generously, and we suggest you set your table with white plates, chopsticks and some small bowls of steamed white rice. A semi-dry white wine, rice or plum wine or light, sweet beer goes well with this dish.

John Denver

Few people seem to know that RCA's JOHN DENVER both wrote and recorded 'Leavin' On A Jet Plane' before Peter, Paul and Mary swept the nation with their version of the song. Denver's cut was in an album which was not successful, but the Peter, Paul, and Mary version made up for that.

A lot of things have changed for John Denver since then. In 1974, Henry John Deutenforf, (Denver's real name), sold more records than any artist in the world. He has received the Country Music Association's highest award, 'Entertainer Of The Year,' as well as winning 'Song Of The Year' for 'Back Home Again.' His newest effort is an album entitled 'Spirit' for RCA Records.

A fair is seeing and maybe touching baby animals.

A fair is often held in the summer or fall.

Have you been to one or are you planning to go?

He has won 38 of 46 events since he began diving in AAU (Amateur Athletic Union) competition five years ago.

His honors include winning three gold medals in national Junior Olympic competition. He has also been a national and international age group champ.

Ronnie practices two or three times a week during the school year. In the summer he goes to camp where he dives in morning and afternoon sessions. When he is home from camp, he dives every day in his backyard pool or at meets.

He also enjoys tennis and plays on his school's basketball team.

This fair-goer and her mother are trying their luck at "hanky pank" or a game of skill.

Many fairs have carnivals or traveling shows brought in to draw the crowds.

Carnival people have certain words that have a special meaning to them.

Below is some carnival language.

Build a tip — draw a crowd.

Tip in a mark — draw a crowd into a show.

Jenny — merry-go-round.

Grab stands — quick lunch counters.

A red hot — a town that turns out good crowds.

Punk rack — a row of furry animal prizes.

Jackpots — bull sessions where carnival people gather to talk.

The Man — the carnival owner.

Setting up the Carnival

Running a traveling show takes a lot of power. Thousands of feet of cable carry power to where it is needed. Some shows carry their own generators.

Many of the people who work for the carnival travel on the train. Others travel in their own trailers and park near the show site.

A Fair Way to Do Things!

"Families today want to do things together. That's the reason fairs are such a success," says Jim Strates, owner of one of the largest traveling carnivals in the country.

Left: a 4-year-old exhibitor and his calf wait their turn to be judged. Wonder what they are thinking about?

For Parents 'n Teachers

This section of The Mini Page is especially designed for parents and teachers to use as a guide to this week's Mini Page.

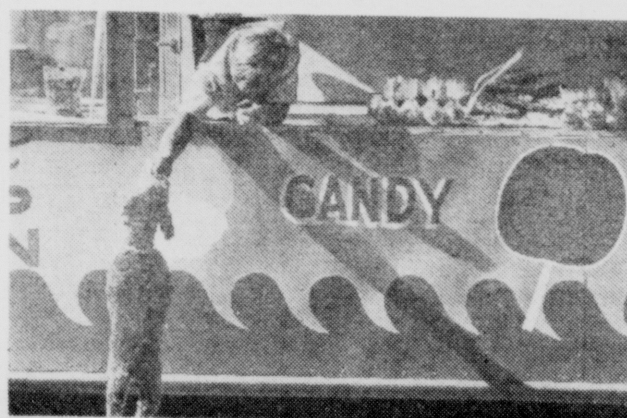

Page 1: A well planned trip to a fair can save your family time and money. Study the fair map and plan how you are going to spend your day. Study the calendar of events carefully. Many fairs are offering free grandstand shows and other free entertainment. Hours can be spent looking at wholesome and educational exhibits.

Page 2: Carnival Talk: Have the child study the definitions. Then you make up sentences using the words and see if he can tell you what the meanings are. For example: Would you like to take a ride on a "jenny?" What are you planning to buy at the "grab stands?" Are you going to visit a "mitt camp?"

Page 4: Recipe: This is an excellent recipe for your child to make the next time he or she is having spend-the-night guests! He or she can make it the night before and pop it into the oven just in time for dinner.

What Would You Do? Talk about what the child should do in case he gets lost.

Have you ever driven a tractor?

Here's a snack for a hungry poodle.

Prince Valiant IN THE DAYS OF KING ARTHUR
by Hal Foster

Our Story: PRINCE VALIANT RETURNS BRINGING KING KASOV WITH HIM, AND THE WAR IS OVER. TELAMON LOOKS UP FROM HIS TASK OF BLENDING TWO WARRING CITIES INTO ONE KINGDOM. "THANK YOU, SIR VALIANT, JUST PUT HIM WITH THE OTHER KING."

HE STRAIGHTENS UP AS HE MARCHES TOWARD THE FATE THAT INVARIABLY AWAITS A VANQUISHED KING, WONDERING IF THE HEADSMAN'S AXE WILL HURT.

A SUNNY ROOM OVERLOOKING THE GARDEN WOULD HAVE BEEN A PLEASANT JAIL, BUT THERE SITS EX-KING HAJAS, HIS HATED ENEMY. "OH, FATE WORSE THAN DEATH!" BELLOWS KASOV. "MUST I SHARE MY REMAINING DAYS WITH THIS CONNING LITTLE BALD-HEADED WEASEL?"

"SIT DOWN, YOU FAT INCOMPETENT," GRINS HAJAS, "YOU DESERVE WORSE." (IT IS RECORDED THAT THESE TWO SPENT THE REST OF THEIR DAYS PLANNING GREAT CAMPAIGNS WITH TIN SOLDIERS AND TRYING TO CHEAT EACH OTHER AT CHESS.)

VAL'S QUEST IS ALMOST COMPLETE. HE HAS ONLY TO BRING HELENE HOME. BUT FOR ONE REASON OR ANOTHER SHE KEEPS DELAYING THE JOURNEY.

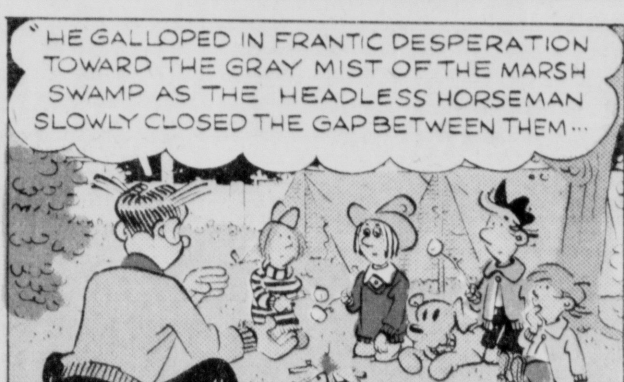

TELAMON ALSO NEEDS HIS ADVICE, FOR VAL HAS BEEN TRAINED FOR KINGSHIP SINCE BOYHOOD.

NOW HE HAS NOTHING TO DO BUT WAIT AND DREAM OF ALETA AND HIS FAMILY.
